LONDON, June 19, 1873. The Zanzibar mail contract mistake hange dismally over the Chancellor of the Ex-chequer: and whether or not the incubawill be raised from him to-night remains t one generous act without a fuss being made.

The Opposition would doubtless forgive an act of liberality in him, but they came overlook a slip on the part of the self-suf-ficient Minister. Three years ago the Gov-erament desired, with a view to obtain greater influence in Zanzibar, to establish a

Mail service between that country and the Cape. The British India Steamship Company, which took the mails from Aden to the Cape for a consideration of £10,000 a year, offered to do the service between CANADIA
