Reputed Cure for Consumption.

A correspondent at Hood River sends us the following:

commenced bleeding at the lungs, and hectic flush was already on the cheek.

After trying this remedy to my own satisfaction, I have thought philanthropy requires that it should be given to the world. It is the common mullein, steep-ed strong and sweetened with coffee white or yellow paper, not printed paper. The medicine should be continued from four to six months according to the progress of the disease. It purifies the blood and strengthens the system, healing the lungs as fast as purified by the medicine, and health returns to the patient. It is the wish of the writer that every paper, and cool and makes a splendid spring that the system and cool and makes a splendid spring medicine.

The Social Pillar Sham

I have just returned from a long and ence with an old-time friend, whose face I had not seen for twenty years. During that time he has been in the penitentiary, and I, having been more discreet, have been less hampered. Thus our paths have led us through different walks of life. At least, mine

Me were comparing notes yesterday, and, among other things, the conversation drifted toward the subject of real and apparent wealth. My friend, prior to his retirement, had been engaged in the wholesale burgling trade and general grand-larceny business, and his experience had sharpened his judgement and knowledge of human nature. I call to mind now, several of his maxcall to mind now, several of his max-

Among others, he made it a rule never to follow a man very far who bought strawberries in January. He said that wealthy people were not the ones who bought the highest-priced seats to hear Patti, or who ate green peas for Christ-

It's the James Crow aristocrat and nickel-plated social favorite with the tinfoil-back diamond in his only shirt who buys things because they are high, and gets side-tracked at Sing Sing, with ten years for repentance.

I wish that I had a voice like a fog-

Only a few months ago a young man who occupied a fifteen dollar seat at the opera fainted, and when they had carried nim out and worked upon him for some time, and they were beginning to be alarmed and overhauled him a little, they found that his shirt bosom was pin-ed to his vest, and his cuffs were pinned to the inside of the sleeves of his spiketail coat, because there was nothing else to pin to, and he only wore one sock. Little do we know of the actual suffering that is going on all around us. Do you think it hurts my sensitive nature to be frowned upon by the proud and haughty milkman's alternate, as he rudely jostles me on his way to the dress-circle, while I joyously climb to the peanut gallery, softly humming to myself "Empty is the Cradle, Baby's Gone," or a bar from some other great oratorio? Not exactly. I am not sensitive that way. To the Editor of the Montreal Witness. SIR,-I have just returned from a two week's trip through Huron county. Huron is a fine county. I had a new experience while I was there—I had opposition. In Oxford and elsewhere if I wished a fight I had to go to the 'Anti's' meeting, but in Huron they have one fellow willing to come to our meetings and talk on behalf of the traffic. They had two, but one of them took the preand talk on behalf of the traffic. They had two, but one of them took the precaution to change his name from Collins to Bell before he talked for whiskey. He only tried it one night I believe. I told the people I did not blame the fellow for if I wanted to talk on that side I would change my name too. We had some wonderful meetings. Again and again although the opposition speaker was although the opposition speaker was present with his crowd, when we took the vote at the meeting so great was the temperance sentiment that no one voted against the Act.
