Morris's Latest Outrage.

On Friday last, we drew attention to the talk around town that Sir Edward Morris was endeavoring to obtain power to increase the number of members in the Legislative Council, and that he had submitted the names of three fish merchants as proposed members of that Chamber.

This report has not been denied. The Daily News has published two issues since that time, and has not denied the rumor. The Evening Herald in its issue published almost three columns in reply, but carefully avoided denying either one rumor or the other. The Hon. P. T. McGrath devoted himself to abuse of Mr. Lloyd, the Editor of the Evening Telegram.

That feature, of course, was not unexpected. He cannot help it. It would have been a surprise, had he not done so. Nor was it exceptional for Mr. McGrath maliciously to attribute our article to indulgence in "Shandygaff." We may, however, inform Mr. McGrath and all of his ilk, that his insinuation is not only malicious, but is absolutely false that we have not indulged in any "Shandygaff" or any other alcohol beverage either during New Year's festivities or during Christmas. We state this fact to prove conclusively that Mr. McGrath is resorting to straight falsehood to back up a rotten case.

It is also false that either the Proprietor or Editor of the Evening Telegram ever approached the Morris Party with a view of supporting them—either for seats in the Legislative Council or House of Assembly, or any other consideration.

The columns of the Evening Telegram ever since Sir Edward Morris broke away from the Liberal Party afford clear evidence of this. In support of this, we now cite the abuse of us, made by Sir Edward Morris, in his speech, delivered at Bonne Bay, a few months ago.

Here is part of what he said: "The two men who edit the Opposition papers have, since the day I took office, pursued me with a venom and malignity unsurpassed in our political annals. Both lived largely out of the late Government from whom they had fat fees and by the defeat of their party, have been forced to work for a living."

That was the opinion offered by Sir Edward Morris himself to the people of Bonne Bay. It was published in both the Daily News and the Evening Chronicle, and the speech itself put up in pamphlet form and circulated widely. The opposition we have put up has evidently inflamed Sir Edward Morris, and he like Mr. McGrath, resorted to falsehood to bolster up his abuse of us, for it is absolutely untrue that the editor of this paper lived largely out of the late Government, and that we have had to resort to other means of working for a living, since the defeat of the Bond Government.

We are, however, not the only object of Mr. McGrath's venomous pen. Of the Fishermen's Advocate Calendar for 1913, Mr. McGrath says: "The notorious Coaker issues a calendar with his paper to-day, the prime feature of which is a photo of himself looking like 'Lefty Louie' the New York 'gunman'."

This gross insult and wicked insinuation against the President of the Fishermen's Protective Union is even more abominable than his defamation of us. Here is a falsehood about us: "Just think of Dr. Lloyd, whom outport people cross the street to avoid, trying to pose as the fishermen's friend, and shrieking like a fury for Bond, when rumor credits him with trying to bell out his leader a year or two ago."

Outport people, instead of avoiding us, make a point of calling at the office to see us. More than this, only a few hours before McGrath published this distribe against us, the official organ of the Fishermen's Union told a very different story.

Here it is:—Dr. Lloyd, the Editor of the Telegram, who has been the strongest supporter of the F.P.U. in the Colony outside of the ranks, again expressed his appreciation of the Union and its work. Last year in his review of 1911 he wrote very fairly of the Union's standing, but our readers will recognize that his words this year are very much stronger and are open and above board. Dr. Lloyd proclaims his opinion of the Union to the world and is the only Editor in the Colony who has come out straight in support of the Union that has become such a mighty power in the North. We ask our friends to read Dr. Lloyd's words carefully, and to remember them, for very few men of Dr. Lloyd's standing, ability and as monarch and urchin were surrounded by the commanding figures of Prince Von Furstenberg and Generals von Plessen and von Moltke, the police were unable to intervene. Noticing the urchin by his side, the Kaiser's irritation at the obstinate piece of string disappeared, and, turning to the boy, he said, with a charming smile, "Come, my little man, you throw the carrots for me." The boy did with all the coolness in the world, and he is now famous in the town as "the boy who threw the Kaiser's carrots." Those who knew the German Emperor's kindly nature need hardly be told that he also took away a more solid memento of the moment of his life.

Son Saves Mother

From Being Shot by Drink-crazed Indian, but discharge strikes dynamite and boy was killed by explosion.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 28.—Abandoned by his wife he sought to kill, and his friends and relatives, Chief John Williams, of the Tuscarora Nation, lay four hours in his wrecked cottage on the reservation, twelve miles northeast of here without medical attention and may die from loss of blood and exposure. He is to-day in the Lockport City Hospital under constant surveillance by a deputy sheriff. The body of his 16 year old son, Alexander, is in a morgue and his wife and two daughters, Mary, 21 years old, and Rose, four years old, are being nursed back to health at the home of his brother, Daniel Williams.

Williams had been drinking for a week and following a game of cards in which he, his son, Delancey Graham and Chauncey Anderson, two other Indians, participated, the drink-crazed man picked a quarrel with his wife because she chided him about his inebriety. He took the shot-gun from its resting place, placed two shells in the barrels and deliberately aimed at his wife.

The son rushed toward the stairway leading upstairs and Graham stepped between the woman and the murderer in time to turn the muzzle of the gun. The charge hit three sticks of dynamite and a second explosion followed. It was this explosion that killed the boy and injured the woman, her husband and children. The entire front of the cottage was blown out.

The Kaiser and the Urchin.

Thanks to the rapid recovery he made from his recent indisposition, the Kaiser was able to be present at the Swiss army manoeuvres, and the rough-and-ready ways of the Swiss must have been somewhat of a relief to him after the rather heavy formalities of Potsdam. There were several little diversions from the strict military routine when the Kaiser was able to be his mental self; and a pleasing and touching incident occurred when His Imperial Majesty paid a visit to the bears for which Berne is famous. Visitors are provided with bundles of carrots with which to feed the animals; but the Kaiser, owing to the infirmity of his left arm, experienced great difficulty in untying his bundle.

Now, it happened that a small street urchin, having evaded the police who endeavored to stay his progress had wormed his way to the Kaiser's side; and influence have been eager to assist our Union, and on behalf of the members of the F. P. U. we thank Dr. Lloyd for the support he has given us the past year, and for the appreciative reference in his review of 1912 events."

With such a testimonial, and not the only one, from the spokesman of fifteen thousand fishermen, we can afford to smile at the puerilities of Mr. McGrath.

The fishermen know how to resent such aspersion. They have already shown what they think by the resolution they passed at the Convention at Bonaville. More than that, three thousand people at Bonaville have already demonstrated their opinion of Mr. McGrath by burning him in effigy for his previous attacks on Mr. Coaker.

Reverting now to the main issue of our articles of Friday and Saturday last, the questions we propounded then have not been answered. We have not yet been told what need there is for an increase in the membership of the Legislative Council. Nor have we been told why Sir Edward Morris proposes to put three fish merchants in the Chamber. We have received plenty of abuse, but no answer to our queries.

St. Joseph's Concert

The concert to be held in St. Joseph's Parish, Holytown, the earlier part of this week, promises to be all that which our local talent can accomplish. Under the management of Miss Ida Howlett, and assisted by other lady and gentlemen vocalists, those who attend can anticipate a rare treat. As the affair is in aid of St. Joseph's Church, the Pastor of which is the Rev. Dr. Kitchen, everybody ought to be present and to show by a large gathering how appreciated the work of this good priest is. It is to be hoped then that this New Year concert will be largely patronized, and that local talent will receive that applause which is ever due them.
