

HINDOO JOURNALIST AT CLUB LUNCHEON

Mr. Saint H. Sing to Address Londoners at Midday Gathering Saturday.

The luncheon to be tendered to Mr. Saint H. Sing, the distinguished Oriental scholar and journalist, by the Canadian Club of London on Feb. 2, will doubtfully prove one of the most entertaining and interesting of the series. Secretary Glasse was fortunate to get in touch with Mr. Sing, and announces that arrangements have been made for his visit to London as indicated. Mr. Sing is a journalist from Raval Pind, Punjab, India, and is now on a tour of the world. He is a writer for the Indian Review, and a syndicate of Indian newspapers and journals. He is a gentleman of unusual culture, having been educated at the State University of Punjab, and is the possessor of a highly-trained intellect. His life work, he declares, is devoted to the nationalization of India and the uniformity of caste, creed and color. He is a native of the extreme northern part of India, and of high caste—lives down the caste prejudice. Since leaving India sixteen months ago he has traveled nearly 80,000 miles, has delivered innumerable addresses and speeches, and is a contributor to all the leading Indian, Japan and China journals, as well as to those of Europe and America. If it were not for his distinct Oriental cast of features, his charming bonhomie and cordiality of manner might easily lead one to suppose him to be a late arrival from Trinity College, Dublin. There are very few prominent men in Japan that Mr. Sing does not know intimately and personally, and his articles on the subject of Japanese university life has rare insight into new conditions. Mr. Sing touches every condition of life at its center and thus discloses the innermost of the human mind. As yet, however, his leading men, or with members of a Young Men's Christian Association of this continent, he leaves behind him a bright trail of Oriental intellectualism, making one wonder what the Orient will be when the world has reached the level of Mr. Sing.

Mr. Sing has in hand an undertaking that might well cause a less courageous man to shrink from it, and that is nothing less than writing his impressions about the men, women and things he meets in the circuit of this little earth of ours. Just at this time it happens that his presence in Canada is extremely opportune in the face of what is termed "Hindu Invasion." He strongly repudiates the injustice with which Hindus have been treated in British Columbia, and rightly urges that they are citizens of the British empire, and that if fairly dealt with, they would become permanent settlers in Canada, as the climate of the Punjab differs but slightly from the coast lands of Canada.

Mr. Sing possesses rare qualifications for his work in that he speaks several languages fluently, besides possessing in a great degree those journalistic qualities that appear to be born rather than acquired.

Of the Indian people Mr. Sing says they are more loyal to the British empire than the people of Canada. They are agitating for a greater measure of self-government, but it is a constitutional agitation, and the change will be finally brought about without bloodshed. They occupy much the same position in that respect as did the people of Canada fifty years ago. Just as Canada has remained an integral part of the British empire, while enjoying the largest measure of freedom possible, so will a self-governed India remain true to that empire.

Mr. Sing will address the members of the Canadian Club here on Feb. 2, next, at their midday luncheon, when doubtless every member who can attend will avail himself of the opportunity.

CONDENSED LOCAL NEWS

—Dr. Homer Black, of the Victoria Hospital house staff, is confined to his home with a severe cold. It is expected that he will be around in a few days.

—William Patton, a local contractor, was arrested yesterday on a judgment summons issued by Judge Macbeth. James A. Patton, a brother of the prisoner, claims that the latter owes him over $700.

—A landslide occurred on the Grand Trunk near Hyde Park yesterday, as a result of which it will be impossible to use the north track for two or three days. The landslide did not interfere with traffic.

—Last evening a most interesting recital was given at the home of Mrs. A. M. Armstrong by two of her pupils, Misses Edna Robinson and Maud Payne. In her violin numbers "Largo" (Handel) and "Simple Aven" (Thorne), Miss Payne showed much musical ability. Miss Robinson delighted the audience with her piano numbers. Miss Edna Calhoun, a pupil of Miss Belle Brown, contributed vocal numbers, as did also Dr. E. Wilson. Both vocalists were very highly appreciated. Master Frank Nichol also very kindly assisted with two whistling solos.

CAMPBELL—ACTION.

Campbell, of Lobo. Rev. Dr. Ross officiated. Many friends joined in wishing the young couple every happiness and success.

ADULTS THEFT OF WATCH.

John Crasey appeared in the police court this morning on a charge of stealing a watch from William Jones, a roommate. He pleaded guilty, and was remanded until Friday for sentence. Frank Gregorie was charged with neglecting to send one of his children, a girl of 13, to school. The charge was laid by Truant Officer Weir. The case was adjourned until Saturday.

TWO NIGHTS AND MATINEE.

The Brien-Burns fight motion pictures, which will be presented at the Grand for two nights, commencing Friday and Saturday, by the Miles Bros., and made under the supervision of Cooper Hewitt mercury vapor light, are positively the finest clearest and cleanest ever produced. Of special interest are the training quarters at Venice, a beautiful California resort near Los Angeles, where the men are shown going through their various exercises, such as bag-punching, sparring, shadow-fighting, weight-lifting, dumbbells, roughing, medicine ball, etc. The ring-side, and the introduction of local and national celebrities, including the great James J. Jeffries, the referee. Every incident preceding and during the heaviest hitting contest in the history of the prize ring, are shown with startling distinctness.

FIGHT TO GET LEVY

American Authorities Will Lodge New Charges, If Present Case Fails.

The arguments in the Levy extradition case will probably be heard some time next week. As yet, however, the prisoner's counsel has not made a motion for argument, and this must be done before the case can be heard.

The writ of habeas corpus which was granted on Saturday by a high court judge, New Jersey is defeated in the present extradition proceedings. The case will not end, as a number of other charges will be laid against Levy.

It has been learned that Levy is a former resident of this city, his father having been employed in a local wholesale clothing establishment some years ago. The family removed to Hamilton and from there to New Jersey.

The cost of the plant, of pumping will not be great, and that the city will be able to operate the plant to advantage when we turn it over to the commissioners. At The Grand.

The Cliff Dwellers, who meet at the Grand tomorrow night, have among them a wonder-worker named Shung-opai, a mysterious man, now in the prime of life, who possesses occult powers that defy explanation by any American or foreign scholar who, so far, has been privileged to witness his marvelous performances. He seems to have solved the mysteries of space and time. His feats of legendarism are wonderful. He is assisted by Miss Lillian Hayes, a specialist in clairvoyance, and a violinist of unusual gifts, and Miss Lavinia Whitcomb, pianist, a graduate of the New England Conservatory.

WILD STORIES OF THAW CASE BRIBE

Thaw showed his love for his mother again yesterday, as he was leaving court for the day. In passing, he stooped, kissed her, and whispered words of cheer, which made her smile. Thaw continues to watch the selection of the jury closely. Four times yesterday he caused his counsel to issue peremptory challenges.

The Artists Barred.

Justice Fitzgerald threw something of a bombshell into the camp of the newspaper artists in the court this morning by announcing through the court officers that no more sketching should be made during the trial. This came as a complete surprise. Artists from most of the principal cities of the country have been in court from day to day and have not been restricted hitherto in any way.

Wild Tale of Bribe.

Thaw was disappointed on entering the courtroom to find that his wife was the only member of his family present. The others, it was stated, had been detained uptown by the snowstorm, which began early last night, and continued today.

There was a wild story going throughout the criminal courts building to the effect that $100,000 might be given to any talemans who could qualify as a juror. Where the rumor came from no one could say, but it was given no credence whatever in the quarter. It was also stated that the talemans who are yet to be examined are under the surveillance of county detectives, but this could not be verified.

The statement of Harold R. Raibe, one of the jurors excused yesterday, that he could offer no explanation as to why he was replaced in the jury box, was repeated on many sides today, and it was rumored that he had been in court an explanation of the action taken in his case.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who conducted the examination of the first talemans today, asked each of them specifically if he had been approached by anyone in connection with the case since being summoned as a possible juror. Today was the first time the question has been put in such a direct form, although many of the talemans have heretofore been asked whether they had discussed the case with anyone after coming to court.

None of the talemans said they had been approached.

The first big surprise of the trial of Harry K. Thaw came yesterday, when Justice Fitzgerald, on the motion of District Attorney Jerome, and with the consent of the attorneys for the man accused of the murder of Stanford White, announced that two of the jurors selected in the early days of the proceedings would be excused from further service.

"Without any reflection on the jury-men whatsoever," said the presiding judge, "Jurors Nos. 4 and 6 will be excused."

The men in question were Arthur S. Campbell, a superintendent of telephone construction, and Harold R. Raibe, a printer and publisher of a pamphlet circulated in Wall Street.

The courtroom was crowded for the opening of the afternoon of the trial when the announcement was made.

"By agreement," said District Attorney Jerome, "the reasons for the action will not be made public, but they are of a business nature. Counsel representing the people and the defense have agreed to this, and a unanimous decision was arrived at."

When the excused jurors left the courtroom they were besieged by questioners. Mr. Raibe created a mild sensation in the corridors when he asserted with confidence that he had utterly in ignorance of any reason why he should be asked to step down. He said:

"The announcement in court was the first knowledge I had of the intended action. In passing through the court house corridors this morning I heard a man remark that two of the Thaw jurors were to be excused today. I had no idea that the remark could include me. About three years ago, when I was connected with a brokerage concern, two detectives from the district attorney's office, who said they visited the places which sell unlisted securities, dropped in on me, asked some impertinent questions and wanted to know if I would be willing to go up to the district attorney's office any time I might be wanted. I said 'Yes' but this was the last I ever heard of the matter."

Mr. Campbell, the second of the excused jurors, declared he had too much respect for the court to give an interview.

It was generally reported that Mr. Campbell had asked to be relieved. He begged to be excused when first placed on the jury. One new juror had been added to the trial panel when the excuse of Raibe and Campbell was announced, and a second one was subsequently secured, thus offsetting the loss of the two previously sworn jurors.

When court adjourned there were nine men in the jury box. Forty-six talemans were called before the two satisfactory jurors were obtained. This constituted the original panel of 200 men and used up eighteen of the new panel of 100 in court yesterday for the first time.

The two new jurors sworn in yesterday were: No. 10, John S. Denne, traveling freight agent, 28 years of age and unmarried; No. 4, David E. Walker, real estate broker, 34 years of age and unmarried. Mr. Walker is a son of John Brisbane Walker. He was chosen during the afternoon and replaced Juror Campbell as No. 4.

Thaw seemed to be particularly well pleased with the selection of both Denne and Walker, and smiled when the prosecution withdrew all pending challenges against the talemans. As soon as Mr. Denne said he was in consultation with his lawyers.

Mr. Walker was accepted by the defense in spite of the fact that he said he knew Stanford White and many of the dead architect's friends. He also had formed an opinion in the case and expressed it many times. These facts

Mr. Walker declared, however, would not prevent it rendering an entirely fair and impartial verdict. He had not seen White for a year before his death.

Thaw's attorneys set a high-water mark for peremptory challenges yesterday when they summarily excused forty service seven talemans who had been selected legally competent by the court. The state challenged peremptorily but once. The defense now has thirteen on its peremptory challenges left and the state seventeen.

SHARP DEBATE OVER JUDGESHIPS

An Opposition Attack Which Winds Up in the Nature of a Boomerang.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—The fact that a vacancy in the judiciary of Nova Scotia has not been filled, this afternoon gave rise to the sharpest and keenest debate of the session. Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, sprung the matter on a few minutes' notice, and, aided by Mr. George E. Foster, Mr. W. H. Bennett and other speakers on the Opposition benches, sought to establish that the business of the courts was embarrassed and that the Government was delaying the appointments for political reasons. Mr. Aylesworth, who was made the subject of an attack during the debate, in reply recalled the practice of the Conservative Government in the matter of appointments to the judiciary and to the senate, and contended that the reasons upon which the attack was based were entirely unfounded. He pointed out that the Government had been based would justify the condemnation of Sir John Macdonald, Sir John Thompson and Sir Charles Tupper. The provisions of Mr. Aylesworth's bill to regulate the exportation of electric power were considered in connection with the matter of justice accepted the suggestion that the clauses referring to the issue of licenses, limitation of export to surplus of power beyond Canadian requirements, and revocation of license, should be submitted to the Ontario legislature for consideration. Some of the bill were approved, with some minor amendments.

Mr. Fielding, speaking of the vacant judgeships, suspected that the leader of the Opposition had sprung the question without notice in order to prevent the Government from looking up precedents and that this course had been instigated by Mr. Foster, who feared a comparison with the methods and practice in filling vacancies when he was responsible for what occurred. Had the Government had an opportunity of consulting with the Ontario legislature, the bill would not have felt so free as he had done to assume a "holier than thou" attitude with respect to the question under discussion. The contention of the Opposition was that owing to the fact that there are only six judges in active service in Nova Scotia where there should be seven, there had been delay and embarrassment in the administration of justice. It had been pointed out that under the Conservative regime six judges had done the work for two years, and yet no outcry had been raised that the public service suffered. Allusion had been made to the fact that the Conservative Government had appointed Liberals to the bench. At all events, in Nova Scotia for eighteen years every gentleman appointed to the bench by the Conservative party had been taken from the senior ranks, with the exception of one Liberal, who resigned his seat in Antigonish. Sir John Thompson wanted a seat at the time and was elected at the contest which followed.

The Opposition had assumed, as evidence of conspiracy, the fact that Mr. Henderson had come down from the bench to take part in the elections. While not for one moment conceding either the logic or the soundness of the argument, Mr. Fielding suggested that the same charge might be brought against Sir John Thompson; Sir Hector Langvin, who found a seat in Three Rivers when Mr. Macdougall resigned his seat to become a judge, or Sir Charles Tupper, who, when the Conservative party were in distress, was brought back to Canada, and found a vacancy in Cape Breton caused by the resignation of Mr. David Mackeen, who a few weeks afterwards was called to the Senate. He did not say there was anything corrupt about any of these transactions, but simply pointed out that to show that he had as good reason to attack as corrupt the transactions to which he had referred as Mr. Bennett had to attack him because he became the successor in a Nova Scotia constituency of a gentleman who afterwards became a judge.

THERE IS ONLY ONE ELECTRIC OIL. When an article, be it medicine or anything else, is advertised as being "the only one of its kind," it is invariably sprung up to derive advantages from the original, which they themselves could never win on their own merits. Imitations of Mr. "Homes" Electric Oil have been numerous, but never successful. Those who know the genuine are not put off with a substitute, but demand the real thing.
