Sir Adam Beck possesses the confidence of the people of Ontario, Probably no other public man in the province, save Sir James Whitney, stands so well in the eyes of his fellow citizens. He is a man of marked ability, clean and courageous. He has developed well since heavy responsibilities have been placed upon his attended his efforts has not spoiled him in the least.

When it seemed that illness would force Premier Whitney from the firing line, if it did not carry him off, Mr. Beck's name was mooted as his possible successor. There then arose the objection that, from the auture of a premier duties, the holder should be a lawyer. It is true that in the past, berristers of outstanding ability have well-nigh monopolized such positions in the parliaments of the world. But a new border of things has come in. Practical knowledge and business refliciency is the key note in public affairs. The advances in good-government generally spring from the suggestions of business man. North A purchase hinged on the power of promoting navigation, given by the Constitution. In Canada the Dominion Government was also given the regulation of navigation by the British North America Act of 1867, and it has been suggested that, in those parts of eastern Canada where waste water-sheds clearly exert a detrimental influence on the navigability of rivers, the Dominion Government should co-operate with the provincial governments in there establishing and conserving forest growth. Such a water-shed is that of the Trent river, where, according to a report lately issued by the Commission of Conservation, as the result of repeated fires, about 150,000 acres are practically desert land.
