AT SMITH'S HALL.

Knew About the Fatal Fight Beceased's Mother on the Stand. The enquiry touching the death of William long was resumed last night before Coronel Riddel in Smith's hall, Kingston road. J. S. Fullerton was present to watch the case for Thomas Crozier, the young man in custody charged with being one of Long's assailants. Crozier was brought over from the jail and was present during the enquiry. The hall was crowded to suffocation with young men and boys who took a deep interest in the proceedings.

The first witness called was Robert Swanton, a brick-maker of Leslieville. He met deceased for the first time at Corother's hotel, Leslieville, on the night of July 12 in company with John Banks. They drank two glasses of beer. Neither of them were their sober. There were others in the bar also drunk, including a young man named Ferguson. All of the parties who were in the bar had ligner before them. Swanton, a brick-maker of Leslieville. He

The hall is used by the orangemen and young britons. Did not hear any quarreling among the young men abont a girl. Ferguson and Banks had a "bit of a spar," but didn't know whether it was in earnest or not. Banks borrowed a dollar from deceased and spar, treaty cents of it in not. Banks borrowed a dollar from deceased, and spent twenty cents of it in drinks. Deceased afterwards wanted to make a match to fight young Ferguson on Sunday morning against Banks. They kept arguing after that, but no match was made. Did not know at what hour they left, but after they got out did not hear any quarreling or any fuss. Saw the prisoner (Crozier) and Hugh Kelly in the bar, but do not know whether they were there while the others were. Hugh Wise the oarsman was also in the bar. Heard before I went to bed that young reterson had his leg broken. Afterwards saw himlying on the sofa.

One of them, Charles Greenwood, stood talking and walked as far as wilton street with me, when he turned back. Do not know who the others were. Afterwards met John Banks and James Cole opposite Wood's hotel, and they came as far as the track with me. Saw a crowd coming down the track and I told Banks and Cole to run, which they did. Saw the crowd come as far as Salter street, when they disappeared. Ten minutes afterwards saw deceased and John Banks come up Strangestreet. They stopped and spoke to me. Deceased had a revolver in his hand and said he would like to catch the fellows that kicked him. He did not say who they were. Heard the report of a revolver before deceased and Long came up to me.

To Mr. Fullerton—Saw Dr. Carroll that night near Wood's hotel. It was some time after I saw the parties running referred to above.

James Cole saw deceased in Carother's hotel on the night of July 12. Saw Ferguson strike deceased in the chin afterwards outside of the hotel. Deceased fell into a ditch which was behind him. He fell from the force of the blow. Afterwards saw deceased and he told me four parties had pitch.

To Mr. Fullerton—Do not know any of the persons who were around Peterson, when his leg was being fixed by the doctor. Saw a young lady bathing Peterson's leg-with water, but do not know who she was.
