The World has received several letters from citizens condemning the Gilmore-Patillo affair as an exhibition of brutality, etc. While The World does not intend to enter into any defense of these exhibitions, still there is a great deal of misunderstanding about them. The real motive, as far as the contestants are concerned, in gabout them. The real motive, as far as the contestants are concerned, in posed to go to the winner; but in reality peach get a portion, the winner, of course, getting the lion's share. Among the audience were several business men, lawyers, students, etc. There is really no brutality. The men sparred with soft gloves, and the day after the contest it would be impossible to tell by their faces that they had been paying tribute to the marquis of Queensberry. Gilmore had one of his eyes discolored—a very simple matter—while one side of Patillo's face was raw beef steaked, but the men being well-trained, and in good healthy bodily form the hospital committee met last night and resolved to enquire into the matter on prove brutality exhibited in open air sports than in a sparring exhibition. This is the name of a club which was formed last night. Its object is not as Sandfield collar, and the bland and formed last night. Its object is not as some might suppose to encourage the development of that harrowing musical monstrosity, but on the contrary, to wage against it a stern war of suppression. The club had its origin in Cooper & Donnelly's Terrapin, where military men and bicyclication. Terrapin, where military men and bicyclists most do congregate. Many of them Terrapin, where military men and bicyclists most do congregate. Many of them last night had fled from the street with fingers in their ears to shut out the sound of the awful kazoo. Scarcely had they breathed easily and congratulated themselves on the holy calm that pervaded the sample room before a buzzing noise was heard proceeding from a back room. The sound was unmistak able—it was the kazoo. Faces grew pale. But military courage pravailed and a forlorn hope was quickly formed and the back room stormed with irresistible valor. The door was burst open and in a moment the gallant be-pockets packed with kazoos, trump burst open and in a moment the gallant besiegers returned with — Ferguson. He bore in his hand the hated instrument, the damning proof of his guilt.
