LEADS TO CONFUSION.

The late A. J. Cassatt, at a dinner at the Philadelphia Country Club was once asked his opinion of the fashion of women riding horses astride. "I don't altogether favor this fashion," said Mr. Cassatt, smiling. "I think it leads to confusion."

"I was driving one afternoon on the Lancaster Pike when a rider was thrown violently from a spirited horse. Luckily the accident happened in front of a pharmacy. "The pharmacist ran forth with his clerk. He propped up the head of the unconscious rider, and, seeing a cold cigarette case lying in the road he took it up and read the address 'S. Browne, 1317 Walnut street.' "Jack," the pharmacist shouted to his errand boy, 'telephone to Mrs. Browne, 1317 Walnut, that her husband has—'

"But just when a tiny gold band mirror with a powder-puff attachment fell from the rider's trouser pocket, and the pharmacist called: 'I mean, Jack, to telephone to Mrs. Browne that Mrs. Browne has fallen.' "But at this point the clerk, who had been burning a feather under the rider's nose, tickled her lips with it, and she smiled and murmured: 'Jim.' "And then the pharmacist shouted: 'Telephone Mr. and Mrs. Browne that Miss Browne has fallen off her horse.'"

NOT SO UNSOPHISTICATED.

Not all young matrons are so unsophisticated as is the customary "Mrs. Newly-wed" of the newspaper funny man. One striking exception resides in Harlem. Entering a butcher shop on the eve of a large house-party to be given at her home, she saw displayed a dozen chickens. "Please pick me out a half dozen chickens that are tough," she said. "I have a special reason." The butcher put aside seven. "Are these all?" she asked. "Yes, ma'am," was the reply. "These are all tough ones." "Then send the other five to my house at once," said the young matron. The butcher is still guessing.

NO SNORING IN COURT.

At a certain county court the judge is, in his private capacity, a very kind-hearted man. The usher of the court is aged—but as he had been a faithful servant for many years, he was retained in that capacity. One morning he fell asleep in court and began to snore. The noise he made naturally disturbed court proceedings, but the judge displayed great tact in dealing with the matter. "Usher Jones," he called out loudly, "some one is snoring!" The usher woke up. He jumped to his feet and stared ferociously round. "Silence!" he roared. "There must be no snoring in court."

RELAXATION FOR THE MOTHER.

The old-fashioned idea that a woman should be an absolute slave to her family and home is happily exploded. It belongs to the bygone with the hoop skirt and the thousand things that money will never be resurrected. Women have waked up to the knowledge that while doing their entire duty by their family and home they still have a duty to themselves. That they must have time to think, to expand, to cultivate both mind and body. It is a very great mistake to allow the family and their demands to encroach upon all the available time is taken up. There are many dear little mothers whose self-forgetful devotion to the children leads them to forget all else. Even the husband and father is forgotten, and this is often a fruitful source of his seeking relaxation and amusement outside his own home.

WHEN NOT TO EAT.

It is the greatest mistake in the world ever to eat a heavy meal when tired. Indigestion is sure to be set up, and the food never nourishes the body. After a long, fatiguing expedition, or journey, or a day's shopping, a woman should never sit down immediately to a heavy dinner or supper. Let her take a cup of hot-tea or a sandwich, and a glass of milk, and rest. In half an hour or an hour she can then eat the meal she requires with benefit.—Morning Leader.

Boy is a Human Storage Battery

Galveston, Sept. 11.—E. G. At'oy, a seven-year-old boy of Russian descent, born in America and living in Houston, has been discovered to be a human storage battery of electricity. The widowed mother fears the boy is possessed. He is red-headed, freckle-faced and blue-eyed. A court of medical experts, electricians and a physician has made remarkable tests with the boy.

His strange powers were accidentally discovered by a metal filing which had been put in one tooth. The boy picked up the disconnected porcelain knob that was used to connect the electric fan with an electric light wire and thrust it into his mouth. As the metal cap touched the metal tooth filling, the fan began to revolve and then to buzz at full speed. A thirty-two candle power bulb was attached to the end of the wire and the light burned brilliantly.

When a steel tumbler was put on the boy's finger and he grasped the end of the wires in his hand, the same result was obtained. A piece of iron held in the boy's hand for a few moments becomes highly magnetized. A hammer with an iron handle held in his hands will attract tacks at a distance of four feet. Placed on a glass-legged stool, any one touching him received a distinct shock. An ordinary flat iron held in his hands for five minutes and then passed over ten penny nails driven in to hard wood will pull them with ease.

BUILD UP A NATION.

Today we say emphatically to the people of Canada that there is a tendency to rush the development of the country which we think bad. When for their own purposes—political immigrants arrive in one year in one country whose total population is less than seven millions, we think that it cannot absorb so many either commercially or socially. Let its development solidly. We want to build up a nation, not rather together a mob. Some men in high places are rushing the development of the West for their own purposes—political purposes. They are out to make a fortune—nation-building does not concern them. Do not let us sell our birthright for a mess of pottage. Brave men, not wealth, can alone make and save nations. Look at United States and take warning.

There you have millions of farmers living foreign lives, in foreign quarters of American cities—people as alien to the ideas and principles of George Washington and Alexander Hamilton as were their ancestors a century ago in Italy or Austria. The system of government set up at the time of the Declaration of Independence has gone down before an alien law. The mould of government was not strong enough to carry the metals thrown into it. If crime and lawlessness are rampant across the border today it is because the laws—good laws, and the Constitution—a good constitution—have been mastered by a mob.—Canadian Life and Resources.

Education for Avocation

We hear much, these material days, of the value of manual training in the public schools, much of the necessity of providing toys and girls with instruction which will prove of practical use to them in their imminent task of earning a living. And it is good and sensible talk. None will deny the benefit of training the youthful hand and eye as well as the purely mental processes. In the efficient development of technical instruction lies one of the most important problems before present day educationists. But the value of education is not all in its practical side in its possible conversion into future dollars and cents; and there may be danger in considering too closely the utilitarian feature of public school training we may lose sight of something of greater value. With this thought in mind, Dr. N. C. Shaeffer, superintendent of public instruction for the State of Pennsylvania, addressed upon the National Educational Association in session at Cleveland last week the thought that preparation for a life which is truly worth living cannot, for the sake of financial gain, afford to neglect or ignore the things of the mind and the joys of the higher life.

"What the school can do to fit the pupils for the several callings by which they will earn their livelihood," he said, "is a question which is now more than ever before engaged in the serious attention of educators throughout the civilized world. This question is so important and all absorbing that there is danger of losing sight of the other equally important question: What can the school do to make life worth living during the hours in which the individual is not engaged in the struggle for bread?"

"The laboring classes are striving to get an eight hour day. In some cases they have already won this concession. Whether the victory shall prove a blessing or a curse will depend upon the way in which the remaining hours of the day are spent. If the hours which are not devoted to work and sleep are spent in dissipation and riotous living, the eight hour day will prove a curse instead of a blessing. "I have no quarrel," he continued, "with the toilers who seek recreation. Our insane asylums are filled with farmers' wives whose work was never done, who went through a ceaseless round of drudgery seven days in the week year after year, until the nervous system broke down and the individual sank into hopeless insanity. It is the inexorable demand of human nature that it shall seek and have relief from the drudgery of piece work in the shop and the factory. What keeps me awake at night is the thought that if these toilers had been taught at school how to use and enjoy a good book, they would seek recreation and enjoyment by visiting the public library instead of going to the roof garden and the saloon."

It is not easy to map out a curriculum that shall fit pupils for work in all the various industries that furnish employment; for some of these, agriculture and distilleries for instance, public opinion would not tolerate preparation at the public expense. But all can agree upon the desirability of fitting pupils to enjoy the things of the mind and the higher life, on the importance of teaching the right use of books, on the supreme duty of training the boy and the girl to think, the best thoughts of the best men as these are enshrined in art and literature. The pupil who is taught to think the thoughts of God as these are expressed in the stary heavens above us, in the moral law within us and in all nature about us, tastes the joys of a life which does not turn upon what we eat and drink and the thousand things that money will buy.

Education for avocation is quite as important as education for vocation. "Man shall not live by bread alone," is a maxim spoken by the greatest teacher of all the ages. He who himself earned bread and supported his mother by working at the carpenter's bench, did not mean that we should despise the arts which make bread; but His example and His teachings clearly indicate that a life worth living involves far more than mere education for a vocation.

SHARPS AND FLATS.

The joy of life is in the living of it. Nothing but man can smile—smile then. You can't fill a barrel until you stop the leaks. In life's game be sure to play the winning card. Let every little feeling go—Time is the best avenger. If you don't see your way out of the woods blaze you out a way. I'm for the fellow that toils for bread—and does it because he loves his own. Death is a vast democracy: equal privileges to all, special privileges to none. The real secret of a happy life is to push one's powers just as far as they will go.

Saved Furniture While Babes Burn

Winnipeg, Sept. 12.—A despatch from St. Paul says—The five children of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bardette, living on a farm near Brighton, outside the city limits, were suffocated in a fire that attacked the home at a late hour last night. The parents were away on a visit at the time, and the neighbors, under the impression that the children were also absent, devoted their attention to rescuing the furniture. While the neighbors were busy hauling the furniture out the parents returned, and not until then did the neighbors know that the children were inside.

Father and mother rushed through the smoke, battling their way to the rooms of their children. They rushed with the children out of the house only to find that life in the five bodies was extinct. The ages of the children ranged from five to thirteen years.

CARTERHALL, N.S.I. MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., Limited. Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of years. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications, and completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

Yours truly W. A. V. R. NON-PROFANITY.

Canada has always had a law against profanity, and it is not only the right, but the duty of every citizen in whose hearing profanity is used, to have the offender arrested. The magistrate trying the case may award half the fine to the person laying the complaint. This law has been enforced of late in several of the Canadian towns. The Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railways have issued an order forbidding the use of profanity on the part of their employees and requiring them to prevent the use of it by passengers. The Grand Trunk has discharged six of its employees for disobedience of this order. The Canadian minister of railways and canals is considering an order of a similar kind to the employes of the department. The Pennsylvania railway has issued a similar order. The mayor of Springfield, Wash., has ordered all saloon-keepers to prohibit profane talk on their premises. The fire board of Baltimore has issued a prohibition to all members of the department. No profanity will be tolerated on the New London, Conn., ferries. The St. Louis manufacturers have forbidden it in their factories on the recommendation of the state factory inspector. In 50 different cities and towns throughout America, the police have been given orders to suppress the habit.
