"Before the memory of the oldest inhabi-"And he has kept his name untarnished during all that period?"

Alvord was the man whose record and qualities were being discussed. To the midst of wealth; and it is the most soltrace the history of public men who have grown old in the service is a task both interesting to the investigator and entertaining to those who read his investigations. It was with this truth in mind that the writer set out to call upon the man, about whom those politicians were so carnestly talking, at his specious residence on Turtle street, Mr. Alvord, who has been and is, familiarly known as "Old Salt," owing to his advocacy of the salt interest, is now well advanced in years, being on the shady side of seventy. He has long, white hair and a snowy heard which give him an appearance both dignified and grand. His voice is full and clear, and the moment any stranger comes into his presence he cannot but be impressed with the inherent power of the man. Indeed he was endowed by nature with an un-usually strong organization, both mentally and physically, which all the strain of public life, both as speaker of the Assembly and Lieutenant-Governor, failed, for many years, to in any way undermine. It was during the year 1881, while Mr. Alvord was a member of the Assembly at Albany, that he first began to feel most peculiar. sensations. At that time he was in the midst of very important work, which was seriously interfered with by reason of the mysterious Greeley, Col., rejoices in the distinction of troubles which seemed to assail him. He accompanied by occasional violent retchings. History recounts that Nacoleon the Great while in the midst of his public career, was frequently attacked by an enemy greater than any he had ever faced, which came in the same insidious yet violent manner as the terrible troubles that overtook Mr. Alvord, and are to-day menacing so many thousands of others. In speaking on this subject to the writer, Mr. Alvord said :

"This same bitter experience came to me again in 1882 while I was a member of the Assembly, with symptoms identical with those I had felt the year before. I believe it was largely caused by my advance in years, for 1 had a 'worn out' feeling that was terrible. This conclusion is evidently the correct one, for I was again attacked last summer while away from all cares and recreating at my Island in the St. Lawrence river. All efforts to move my limbs or body were followed by intense weariness or exhaus tion. Those who have reached my years can

The interview then drifted to other topics, but as the reporter gazed at the man whose experience is so ripe and who has seen so much of the different phases of life he could not but wish that those who are suffering from the various forms of physical ailment, and especially those persons who are advanced in years, might see and converse with the veteran whose experience and knowledge have been so rich and who is so firm a believer in the efficacy of the remedy that cared him. There is no excuss for shortening life, as so many have done and are doing. There is no necessity for " breaking down" early in years. ## MR. HENRY GEORGE IN SCOTLAND.

Mr. Henry George, the well-known author is allowed at every meal on Sunday, and once of "Progress and Poverty," delivered a leo-a day on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and tute on "The Land for the People," in New Saturdays, except the Saturday of Ember some's Circus, Dundee, to a large audience.

The Rev. D. Macrae presided. Mr. George, who was received with cheers, said—I am glad to come before a Scotch audience (applause). I am glad for my own 21st year, though persons who have not at-sake, and because I know it will give tained that age are exhorted to mortify them. pleasure to a good many Scotch friends of selves and subdue their passions by fasting mine. (applause). I got a letter from one of them the other day, in which he said, "Get into Scotland as soon you can. Don't stay long in England. They are a beery kind of people, and when kind of stuff, so that their understandings are congged. But if you go up to Scotland you will find a logical people." As a mat-ter of fact—and there is no question about it—the Scotchman has a logical turn whatever it may come from. In the creative scheme there is no more regard for a Dake of Sutherland or a Duke of Argyll than for the lewest, poorest crofter (hear, hear, and applicate). If Scotland was made for Scotchmen, is it not an injustice, a wrong, an implety that some few Scotchmen should hold such vast areas, and so many of her Scotchmen have no right whatever to a square inch of its mil (hear, hear)? When I was in London a week or two ago a hundred acres of land within the city were shown It is worth something like £140,000, and it is increasing in value comething like £3,000 a year, while the taxes upon it are only £43 ("shame)." There is no use for families being crowded into single rooms when y u have men holding thousands of sores useless (applause). If any one says there should be compensation, let him when the time comes give it for himself. You can raise a contribution for the landlords;

31/2 Oc

It is all very well for the full-led, well olothed men sitting around a comfortable fire to talk about the necessity of compensation, which virtually means nothing; but they would think differently if their condition was that of thousands of people in this country—
if they were cold and hungry, if their children did not have enough to cat-and it is a terrible fact that in this country to-night there are thousands who have not enough for ordinary healthy animal existence —children stanted and starved, boys and girls growing up with nothing before them "Absolutely."

"He is a man I should like to meet."

The above conversation occurred beween two gentlemen at one of our leading otels. The interrogator was from abroad, he other a resident of this city. The conlandlords? Here is the fact that there is this poverty, this deep hell suffering, right in emn duty that devolves upon us as men and as citizens to do something to relieve it (ap-plause). What can we do? We cannot destroy that poverty by almsglving. It is something greater than charity that is needed. It is justice (applause)—that and that alone you have to do-to simply ask what is just, and let that be your guide (applause).

At the conclusion of the address Mr. George answered a few questions, among which were the following :-

"I should like Mr. George to tell us how we are to get the land for the people." (Arplause.)

Mr. George-Simply put your taxes upon the land—(applause)—and then raise them as fast as you can till they consume the entire rent (laughter and applause). There is this difference between a tax on land and a tax on anything of human production—the landlord cannot shift it on the consumer, he cannot put it on the tenant-will it come out of his rent, and instead of holding back until he gets a higher rent he will be forced into the market (applause), and the ultimate result will be that the land will be valuable only to the man who is using it—the result will be the abolition of the landlords (applause).

"Why not give us houses for nothing as well as land for nothing?" Mr. George-Houses cost labor; land don't (applause). Mr. George (said another querist) draw an analogy between those who buy land and those who stole pants or boots. I fail to see how those causes are analogous.

Mr. George-A right that depends solely upon law ceases whenever that law is repealed. The people having consented to the buying and selling of land, can with-draw their consent whenever they please. Have the people in these islands been in a position to make the law (applause and " No, no")? is it not the fact that the laws have been made by one class? Give universal suffrage (loud spplause.) Give every man and, as I have come lately to believe, every woman a vote, and then put the question, and you will have the popular will. Oan one generation make a law that will bind another (" no, no," and

At the close a vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. George.
