

THE CONSTITUTION OF CANADA

The Constitution of Canada is the supreme law of the country. It defines the powers and responsibilities of the federal government, the provinces, and the municipalities. The Constitution also sets out the rights and freedoms of the citizens of Canada. The Constitution is a living document that has been amended several times since it was first adopted in 1867. The most significant amendments were made in 1982, when the Constitution was patriated from the United Kingdom. The Constitution of Canada is a unique and important document that has shaped the country's history and future.
