rented the land for a month, paying cash.

That there is no lack of money in the band was evidenced when a deputation of five members interviewed Robert Birmingham at the immigration offices and one of the chiefs displayed a roll of bills which he declared totaled one thousand dollars. This did not make a great effect however, and at the conclusion of the interview it was understood that the band would depart at once. Since then a different decision has been arrived at by the gypsies' leaders. They are preparing to defy the efforts of the county police to eject them.

"There will be no developments for at least two days," said Mr. Birmingham last night. He did not say that the central office would take up the case, but it is expected that the local officials are waiting for further instructions from Ottawa.

In the meantime the county police and the city detectives will see to it that the gypsies do not carry on their occupation of fortune-telling.

The Safe Car to Buy: The 1914 Russell-Knight

After a year of exhaustive tests, the improvements that placed the 1913 Russell-Knight a year ahead of its competitors have been refined and improved to the point where it would seem that motor car engineers can go no further.

Ever a pioneer in improvements called for by Canadian road conditions, the Russell-Knight 1913 Model led with left-hand drive, centre control, electric lighting, electric starting, power pump, tonneau windshield, and tonneau heating. These were, indeed, radical departures, and it is no wonder that many 1914 models are being heralded now as possessing such conveniences. With the 1914 Russell-Knight, however, they are proven Standard equipment.

Think what that means. Standard equipment--not experiments! A whole year has been devoted to refining and perfecting these features. Twelve months of rigorous road tests, in every Province of Canada, have taken place. Twelve months of sifting of countless reports and data from hundreds of owners, drivers, and Russell agents have passed by Twelve months of printteling features. by. Twelve months of painstaking factory research, investigation, and improvement are behind us.

Now, with augmented power in an engine built under the personal supervision of the greatest staff of automobile engine experts in the world, headed by Charles Y. Knight—with a grace of line, with a degree of comfort and convenience impossible without this expenditure of time and experiment, 1914 Russell-Knight comes to you as the safe car to buy.

As to the superiority of the Russell-Knight sleeve-valve type of engine over the poppet valve, there is no longer any question in the minds of experienced motorists. The recent test of one of America's most noted makes of poppet valve motors before the Automobile Club of America. compared with that of the Knight Engine made four years ago before the Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain, determines the superiority of the Knight Engine, conclusively and on every count. And be it remembered, the 1914 Russell-Knight engine embodies all the improvements that Knight engineers the world over have devised; for all work together for the common good of Knight licensees.

Unworthy feature, there is none. Untried feature there is none. Old and unused ideas masquerading under the guise of modern wonders there are none. But the 1914 Russell-Knight does come as a tried and proven car of such merit as can be found nowhere else on the market to-day. Any doubt in your mind as to the suitability of the 1914 Russell-Knight can be readily solved by a "turn at the wheel." A demonstration, more complete than you could ask for, will be arranged on applica-
