The story of their doings up till a year or so ago is pretty well known to Victorians, but from that time until Wednesday evening last nothing was heard from them save in occasional indefinite reports which the boys now pronounce years inaccurate and entirely now pronounce very inaccurate and entirely unauthorized. They were said to be taking in the World's Fair; then they were creating in the World's Fair; then they were creating trouble for the philanthropists of the city of brotherly love, and again they were reported to be lending their aid to the Czar in the government of all the Russias. This last announcement of all the Russias. This last announcement the principals now pronounce a canard pure and simple—quite likely the origination of political enemies. Their departure from Victoria, emies. Their departure from Victoria, according to their own report, was effected by way of a San Francisco line steamer which they boarded from the water while she was lying at dock, and on which they worked their way to Seattle, for which port she was then bound. Fred, the elder of the boys, says they remained in Seattle only a few days—they didn't like the town. Then they went to California and kept on the move until they reached Philadelphia. They were about three months on the tramp, working occathree months on the tramp, working occa-sionally along the railroads and picking up other odd jobs here and there. On reaching other odd jobs here and there. On reaching the Quaker city they soon found employment—in a boys' home it is said—and remained in that city until ready to start home. Fred claims to have been apprenticed to a shoemaker, while his brother learned the trade of a chair repairer. In corroboration of this testimony he exhibits a pair of shoes which he is now wearing, and which he proudly declares are the product of his own industry. As to his present intentions, he has, he says, firmly decided to settle down and go to work. He has not yet got employment, but hopes to obtain work soon, and do his share toward supporting the family, deprived, during his absence, of the father's care.

LODGERS' CHATTELS.

The subject of the liability of travellers or other lodgers' goods to seizure in satisfaction of the debts due by the landlords of hotels where they may be staying in utter innocence of any financial stringency on the part of their hosts, has been discussed of late, and occupied the attention of the Board of Trade at a recent meeting. The Government also, it will be seen, has given it consideration, and the Hon. Attorney-General yesterday introduced a bill entitled "An act to protect the goods of lodgers from distress," the provisions of which are as follows:

The American Tug Pioneer which was in port yesterday had a difficult task to perform in towing the British ship Dunboyne from Vancouver to Seattle on Tuesday last. She left Vancouver with the ship in tow on Sunday morning, but after a few hours out the wind freshened to such an extent that the Pionear took the years! heak to anchorage. Pioneer took the vessel back to anchorage, remaining only a short time however. After tentaining only a short time however. After starting again good headway was made until Monday afternoon when off Five Mile rock. This was just at 4 o'clock when the high wind came up and the ship and tug made sternway towards the rocks. Captain O'Neill set staysails to help the tug and not wanting to come into Seattle with the staysails. wanting to come into Seattle at night put back to Apple Tree cove and anchored until Tuesday morning, when the ship came on and docked at Baker's wharf.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" DELAYED.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" DELAYED.

The steamer City of Kingston, whose regularity is the pride of her agents and the joy and delight of the travelling public, missed a trip yesterday, owing no doubt to the rough weather of Wednesday. When she went out, several hours behind her time, she had to face a strong sou'easter, and this is no doubt to blame for the missed connection vesterday. The only informatained in a dispatch from Seattle announce

ON HER TRIAL TRIP.

A SEALER'S MISHAP.

The sealing schooner Florence M. Smith, recently purchased in Nova Scotia by Cap-tain Kelly and others to replace the wrecked C. H. Tupper, put into Pernambuco on January 8 in distress. She left Halifax during November, and at the time of her misfortune was on her way round to the Pacific sealing grounds.

TO SEARCH FOR THE SHIPWRECKED. The United States Government has decided to despatch a vessel in search of the pro-bable survivors of the schooner Mary Brown. The revenue cutter Wolcott, now at Port Townsend, will immediately proceed on a cruise along Vancouver Island in the vicinity of Clayoquot, in the hope of discovering the missing men. MARINE NOTES.

A sealer, which Capt. Locke, of the tug Lorne, reported heading towards Victoria on Tuesday, was anxiously looked for yes-terday, for it was the first day the wind was favorable for her to come in. Should the vessel be a Victoria schooner it is thought that stress of weather is delivery to the that stress of weather is driving her back.

The charge of smuggling against the Hay-tian Republic has been dismissed and the vessel has been handed over to the Northwest Loan and Trust company, who have a claim of $50,000 against her. Soon after ber release, however, she was again seized by the Kodiak Paoking Co.

The sealing schooner Borealis cleared yes-terday. She will carry a crew of six whites and twenty Indians on her expedition which will not extend further than the coast.
