

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

"CANADA'S GREATEST STORE."

Ladies' The supremacy of Stylish our Cloak stock has been so clearly demonstrated that women of taste and stylish dressers never think of choosing a new Cloak or Wrap without first seeing what we have to offer. Nearly everything they want or ought to have will be found here. The volume of our sales is the best evidence we want that our stock meets with popular approval. These represent some of the newest and most fashionable garments:

Ladies' New Black Beaver Cloth Capes, made with black Thibet fur collar, lined with black Thibet fur, and high storm collar, black or white, 4.00
Ladies' Warm Black Beaver Cloth Capes, with good black Thibet fur collar, lined with black Thibet fur, and high storm collar, black or white, 5.60
Ladies' Heavy English Black Beaver Cloth Capes, made with black Thibet fur collar, lined with black Thibet fur, and high storm collar, black or white, 6.50
Ladies' Handsome Black Brocade Capes, heavily lined and lined with black Thibet fur collar, lined with black Thibet fur, and high storm collar, black or white, 6.50
Ladies' Elegant Black Silk Capes, with black Thibet fur collar, lined with black Thibet fur, and high storm collar, black or white, 11.00
Ladies' Choice Black Silk Capes, with black Thibet fur collar, lined with black Thibet fur, and high storm collar, black or white, 11.00
Ladies' Fine Kersey Jacket, colors black, fawn and bright navy, roundly cut, French dart sleeves, lined throughout with choice colored satin, French dart sleeves, 13.50
Ladies' Jany's Whipped Jackets, in pretty fawn shade, new cutaway fronts, lined throughout with choice colored satin, French dart sleeves, 15.00
Ladies' Elegant Kersey Jackets, in light fawn, new double breasted cutaway front, with French dart sleeves and lined throughout with superior colored taffeta silk, 16.50

Flannels and Much in demand Flannellette, mand at the present time, and more so because of the smallness of the prices we are asking. When have you known equal qualities selling for so little as these for Tuesday?

Heavy English Striped Flannellette, soft, pure finished cloth, assorted in new patterns and colors, 33 inches wide, regular price 10c, Tuesday, 8c
Fine English Plain Cream Flannellette, soft, pure finished cloth, 33 inches wide, regular price 10c, Tuesday, 8c
2-inch Flannellette, Sheeting, heavy and well napped, in greys and whites, soft, pure make, 36 inches wide, regular price 20c, Tuesday, 15c
All-Wool Grey Flannellette, the Campbellford, St. Hyacinthe, Chamby and other standard makes, assorted in light and dark shades, regular price 25c and 28c, Tuesday, 20c
Fine Extra Super White Flannellette, soft, pure finished cloth, 33 inches wide, regular price 20c, Tuesday, 15c
Wool Blankets, soft and lofty finish, finished, full bleached, fancy borders, six pounds, regular price $2.40 a pair, Tuesday, $2.00 a pair
Extra Superfine Unshrinkable White Wool Blankets, special improved finish, full bleached, fancy borders, seven pounds, regular price $2.75 a pair, Tuesday, $2.35 a pair

Fancy How little need be Dress spent in buying the Goods. material for a new dress or costume? How much goodness can be crowded into a little price—at this store? Three items to illustrate our meaning:—

45-inch All-wool Boucle Curl Fancy Dress Goods, in colors red, green, blue, brown and purple, mixed with black, regular price 35c, Tuesday, 30c
45-inch Choice All-wool Fancy Bourette Dress Materials, elegant designs and all latest shades, regular price 65c, Tuesday, 55c
50-inch Plain Costume Cloths, for cold weather wear, in blues, greens, fawn, brown and grey, extra heavy and fine quality, regular price 50c, Tuesday, 45c

New Black If you're an Dress Silks, expert or an authority on Silk we'd like your opinion about these four lines at a Dollar a yard. We consider them among the best values in the Silk section. All guaranteed qualities and of the newest weaves:

23-inch "Imperial" Black Luxor or Peau de Sole Dress Silk, heavy and bright, rich double-faced goods. Our special value, 1.00
25-inch "Lyonsaise" Satin Dress Silk, a beautiful rich black dress silk, regular price $1.35 a yard, Tuesday, 1.00
21-inch Black Faint Dress Silk, an elegant fine corded silk, guaranteed to give entire satisfaction. Special value, 1.00
22-inch Heavy Corded Black Dress Silk, very fashionable and a splendid wearer. Special value, 1.00

Water Jugs There's a fine Half Priced collection of Mottled Glass Water Jugs in the Basement selling at Twenty Cents apiece. They are very pretty patterns and come in assorted shapes and colors. On Tuesday morning we cut the price in two and sell the balance at

25 CENTS EACH.

A Startling Basement Bargain.

Here's a bargain picnic for five hundred buyers. Don't stop to ask us for any reasons. The fact that will interest you most is this: On Tuesday morning you can buy from 500 Semi- Porcelain Toilet Sets that we have been selling right along at $1.75 a set—and they were cheap enough even at that price—for $1.25, making it the biggest and best offering of its kind you or we have known for a good long time. These are the details:—

Semi-Porcelain Toilet Sets, embossed and neatly printed in brown, blue or pink, each set is made up of ten pieces, viz., a large ewer, a large basin, a chamber and cover, a three-piece soap dish, a tooth-brush holder, a hot water jug and a mug, our regular price is $1.75 a set. On sale Tuesday morning for.....

$1.25

This is an opportunity that seldom comes your way, and you simply can't afford to ignore it. Be prompt. Be early, and get first choice on Tuesday morning.

Reduced Prices in Clothing.

Kind of a "clear up" this in the Clothing section. The "left overs" of our quick selling lines and those without a complete range of sizes will have to make themselves scarce on Tuesday. We don't hesitate at half prices in order to gain our point. Here are the facts:

On Sale Tuesday Morning at Eight O'clock.

REDUCTIONS IN MEN'S CLOTHING.

Men's Waterproof Coats—Paddock shape, without cape, single-breasted, fly front, all-wool black or dark blue, velvet collars, sewn seams and stitched edges, bottom facings, checked linings, sizes 40 to 46, our regular selling price $10.00. Tuesday reduced to.....

4.95

Men's Fancy Vests—In silk and wool mixtures, brown and green figured cloths, double-breasted, four pockets, collar, good trimmings, sizes 34, 35, 36, 37, 39, 40 and 44, our regular price $2.50. Tuesday reduced to.....

1.50

54 Men's Odd Coats—In dark tweeds and Clay worsteds, three-buttoned, cutaway styles, good Italian cloth linings, sizes 36 to 39, our regular selling price $3.50 and $4.00. Tuesday reduced to.....

1.95

REDUCTIONS IN BOYS' CLOTHING.

Boys' 2-piece Suits—In dark Canadian tweeds, mixed patterns, single breasted coats, some neatly pleated, good Italian cloth linings, pants lined; sizes 23 to 26. Our regular price $2.50 and $2.75. On sale Tuesday.....

1.50

30 Boys' Fancy Fauntleroy or Brownie Suits—All-wool imported worsteds, in blue, grey and fawn shades, deep sailor collar on coats, separate vests, good trimmings, pants lined; sizes 21 to 26. Our regular selling price $6 and $6.50. On sale Tuesday.....

2.50

Boys' Knee Pants—In navy blue serge (slightly imperfect), lined throughout; sizes 22 to 28 waist. Our regular price 25 cents a pair. On sale Tuesday at.....

.19

This is not an accumulation of old stocks, but all new goods this season. At our regular prices they were considered very reasonably priced. Prudent buyers will come early on Tuesday morning for first choice.

A Special Event in Ribbons.

Many months ago we recognized the demand for an up-to-date Ribbon store, and saw the possibilities of a greatly increased Ribbon trade. We immediately set to work to establish ourselves as the chief Ribbon distributors in Canada. To that end an experienced buyer visited the leading European manufacturers. With unlimited capital at his command, and a thorough knowledge and a keen appreciation of the wants and fancies of the buying public, he gathered the choicest productions from these fountain sources, and at prices that would mean a revolution in the Ribbon trade generally. What has been the result? In little more than a year we find nearly four times the space devoted to Ribbons, a staff over fifty per cent. larger, and doing a business that far exceeds our greatest anticipations. Nothing like it to be seen in Canada, and for that matter few places in America make equal showing.

But enough about our Ribbons in general. To-day we wish to emphasize a Special Ribbon Event—or a Ribbon Sale, if you wish to call it so—for the next few days. Many prices have been carefully revised and will take effect on Tuesday morning—not before. These prices and values will mean a handsome saving to those who take advantage of the occasion. This list tells you all about it:

Fancy Plaid Ribbon, pure silk, 5 inches wide, new colorings, special value, 35c
Black Moire Ribbon, large pattern for streamers, French make, 6 in. wide..... 35c
Colored Moire Ribbon, new patterns, the latest New York tints, 4 inches wide, at..... 25c
Moire Ribbon, black only, 4 1/2 inches wide, French made, good black, at..... 28c
Fancy Shot Ribbon, new effects, five inches wide, for belts and neck bows, at..... 25c
Fancy Check Ribbon, in black and white, blue and white, red and white, 4 1/2 inches wide, very new for hat trimming, at..... 30c
Fancy Neck Ribbon, all colors, to be cleared at..... 15c
Fancy Hair Ribbon, for children, all colors, in check and plaids, at..... 12c
Double Faced Black Satin Ribbon, for frilling, 1 1/2 inch wide, 5c a yard, 1 inch for..... 7c
Double Faced Satin Ribbon, our very best quality, in 60 new, bright shades, for dress trims, 2 1/8 inches wide, at..... 15c
Fancy Plisse Ribbon, with draw string, for dress trims, all colors, very new, at per yard..... 6c
Colored Satin Ribbon, for fancy work, in all the latest shades, 1 in. wide..... 3c
Double Faced Satin and Silk Ribbon, 2 inches wide, all colors, at..... 8c
Pure Silk Gros Grain Ribbon, satin edge, all colors for fancy work, our best French make, 1 1/2 inches wide, at..... 10c
Velvet Baby Ribbon, with satin back, all colors, 3c a yard, or 18 yards for..... 50c
Black Velvet Ribbon, for dress trimmings, 7 yards for..... 30c
Colored Velvet Ribbon, all the latest shades, for millinery purposes, 8 1/2 in. wide, at..... 5c
Velvet for Dress Trimming, all widths, per yard from 5 cents to..... 35c
Baby Ribbon, all colors, 2 lines wide, 7 yards for..... 10c
Satin Baby Ribbon, 4 lines wide, 10 yards for..... 20c
Silk Baby Ribbon, 3 lines wide, all colors, 11 yards for..... 20c

Ordinarily our stock and prices easily discount the trade at every point. But when we make such extra inducements it ought to create a wide interest. Remember, on Tuesday morning the new prices take effect. That's the time to come and buy.

THE TORONTO WORLD

ONE CENT MORNING PAPER.
No. 25 YONGE STREET, Toronto.

BICYCLE PATHS FOR THE COUNTRY.

Mr. Kingston has got hold of the idea in regard to the construction of bicycle paths in townships and counties. We hope the C.W.A. and wheelmen generally will support him in securing the necessary legislation to have his views carried out. Whatever may be said as to the existing system of constructing and maintaining highways, we think it may be laid down as a sound principle that the expense of constructing bicycle paths should be borne by those who will use them.

Another principle which will be generally accepted is that the construction of these paths in many parts of the province is a public necessity. At the present time the law has no machinery for their construction. Mr. Kingston's idea, which seems to have been borrowed from what prevails in the United States, provides for the appointment of bicycle path commissioners in the counties or unions of counties to be determined upon. These commissioners will have power to lay out and construct paths, and to collect revenues by the issuing of licenses to such as use the paths. If a statute of this kind is passed the thickly populated parts of the province will soon be connected with a network of cycle paths. The expense of constructing them is very small compared with the benefit to be derived. Whenever bicycle paths have been constructed up to date they have been financed on the voluntary system. The great majority of wheelmen have never contributed a cent towards any of them, although they all have made use of them.

The leading feature about the proposed legislation is that everyone who uses a wheel will be compelled to contribute his quota of the expense connected with the building and maintenance of the paths. When it is considered that $30 or $50 a year will build and keep an average cycle path in good shape, it is quite evident that hundreds of miles can be built in short order, without taxing the riders more than $1 per annum. The tax levied for this purpose would be a paying investment all round. A man who owns a wheel could not put a dollar to better use than in the construction of bicycle paths. It is to be hoped that Mr. Kingston will get his bill in order and have it presented in such shape that its passage will be certain at the next session of the Legislature. The spasmodic and voluntary system of putting down bicycle paths has proved altogether inadequate. What is required is a general law which will make all wheelmen contributors to these much needed improvements. Mr. Kingston's proposed bill will effect this.

THE TWO MARKET PROJECTS.

Of the various projects now before the Council and the people, the most urgent is the enlargement and improvement of St. Lawrence Market. The Council, however, seems to think that the removal of the cattle market is by far the most important of them all. It has even gone so far as to pass a resolution declaring that the removal of the market is necessary in the interest of the city and of the cattle dealers. The passage of any such resolution in regard to the cattle market might have been postponed until it was ascertained whether a suitable site could be obtained in another section of the city, and until it was known what such a site would cost. The persistence with which some of the aldermen pursue this scheme for removing the cattle market looks as if they were more anxious to relieve some property owner of a burden than to benefit the city. As far as we can learn the cattle dealers themselves are not clamoring for a change. We do not desire that a new site might not be advisable under certain conditions, but it is not the proper way to handle this question by declaring that a change of site is necessary, and then looking around to see if the site can be obtained. Let the scheme be properly matured before the question of removal is decided upon. The resolution of the Council was quite unnecessary.

The Council will well afford to let the cattle market project stand aside until the enlargement of St. Lawrence Market has been effected. There is no dispute that one hundred thousand dollars spent here would be a good business investment. The rental from cold storage rooms and market stands would pay the interest and sinking fund on the total amount necessary to improve the buildings. In addition to carrying itself, the enlargement of St. Lawrence Market would appreciate every foot of property in the vicinity, including the large amount held by the city. The improvement of St. Lawrence Market is a work that should be undertaken immediately. It will be time enough to take up the cattle market project as soon as the St. Lawrence Market improvement has been completed, or at least, provided for.

SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT OF INEBRIETIES.

One reason given by the Ontario Government against the establishment of a reformatory for the medical and scientific treatment of inebriates is that the temperance organizations have taken very little interest in the movement. We presume the temperance people, pinning their faith in total prohibition, have regarded with little favor all projects which fell short of their ideal. The prohibition movement having received its quietus, it is to be hoped that the influence of the temperance organizations will now be diverted into channels where progress in the cause of temperance is possible. If inebriety is regarded as a disease, and treated accordingly, it is claimed that 33 per cent. of all drunkards can be reformed. The scientific treatment of inebriates promises much for the cause of temperance. We are glad to notice that the public attention is being aroused to the importance of this branch of temperance reform. If the temperance organizations only take up this feature of the liquor evil they will accomplish immediate and practical results. The Ontario Medical Association has endorsed the principle involved in the scientific treatment of inebriates. The meeting at which Bishop Sullivan presided the other day appointed an influential committee to investigate the different scientific systems with a view to selecting the best and having it adopted in some public institution. All temperance people, whether they be prohibitionists or not, ought to be able to unite on a project of this kind. If they do, the Government will have no option but to give a fair trial to the system which is agreed upon.

THE WHISTLING NUISANCE.
The whistling nuisance can be got rid of if those who are interested in it will bestir themselves a little and make their wishes known to the Railway Committee of the Privy Council. A movement in this direction is already under way in Parkdale. Communication has been had with the general managers of the two railways, and the Grand Trunk, at least, approves of the suggestion to dispense with whistling at street crossings through Parkdale. But it is necessary to obtain the sanction of the Railway Committee before any change can be made in the present statutory regulations. The object of the petition is to influence the Railway Committee to make the necessary change in the regulations prescribed in the Railway Act. This is all right as far as it goes, but the petition does not cover enough ground. Wards 1 and 2 are as much interested as Ward 6 in getting rid of the locomotive whistle. The whole district from Toronto Junction to York should be included in the prohibited district. If the Railway Committee makes any change at all it will just as readily comply to this district as to Ward 6. In order to make the case as strong as possible a petition should be circulated in all the sporting circles, having in Ward 2 and 3 as well as in Ward 6. We imagine, however, that the necessary petitions would be dispensed with if the City Council were to take the matter in hand and apply for relief for the city generally. If the railways are agreeable to the proposed change in regulation we do not see why the committee should refuse to accede to the request of our Council.

Belleville Notes.

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 8.—Mr. F. A. Mitchell of Norwich, Connecticut, arrived yesterday and conferred with the committee appointed to receive the late Mr. Mitchell. A large curling, skating and hockey rink is to be erected here. An entirely new man, named Richard Lawson, has been captured near Caniton and brought to the city. Miss Sutton, an elderly woman who went from Belleville to China, died at Chiffo on September 3.

Young Liberal Club.

Mr. Walter Boland of the law firm of Macdonell, Boland & Thompson has been elected to stand for the presidency of the Young Liberal Club. Nominations will be held to-night. Mr. Boland is a Toronto boy and is well known in legal circles. He is also a very popular young man. Let them who know him say if he is not. In this manner, Mr. Boland is a remarkable hero of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of this week, including Saturday matinee, interpreted by Julia Arthur and her company, who will replace her sister, Clorinda, in all the power, wit, beauty and mastery of spirit. "It's not true, 'tis a poor lie, I am a woman and I do not suffer; I will not, that I swear, and when I take an oath I keep it, mark you. It is men women suffer for more fools they. No man shall make me womanly in such a fashion, I promise you. Let them who know me say if I am not." In this manner, Clorinda, that remarkable heroine of that most remarkable novel, "A Lady of Quality," which comes to the Grand Opera House the last night of