KNAPP'S ELFIN QUEEN ESTABLISHES RECORD

Both victories were achieved over a track covered with water, and both were, run in fast time. The palm in this respect, however, rested with Effin Queen, as the daughter of Disguise-Sprite skimmed lightly over the soft surface and established a new record of .59 3-5 for the event, displaying the figures of .59 made by Lena Mesha in 1915, and last year by Lucullite. The holiday card was the most attractive presented this season, and included a steeplechase handicap which resulted in a popular victory for Al Reeves, owned by the Greentree stable. Elfin was at all times mistress of the situation and scurried through the five furlongs, throwing mud in the faces of the sturdy colts which strained every effort in trying to follow her giddy pace. The purple and gold squares of the Oneck stable were ahead by a good three lengths as soon as the horses could be distinguished by the thousands in the stands. The filly was moving freely

FOE'S RUSH SLOWING

FROM ALLIES' RESISTANCE LONDON, May 30.—Slowly but surely the plunge of the German crown prince's armies is being halted by the French and British armies. While the momentum of the German masses has not as yet spent itself, there has been a notable slackening in its advance during the last day. The efforts of the Germans now seem to be devoted to the widening of the gap they have torn into the positions of the Allies between Pinon and Brimont. This work seems to be progressing slowly against seems to be progressing slowly against the desperate resistance of the Allied the desperate resistance of the Allied forces.

The French, having fallen back from the limits of the city of Soissons, have stood their ground against the attacks of the enemy, and the German official statement fails to show material advances there during the day's fighting. The French are here fighting on familiar ground, which has been made historic by numerous battles, some of which are named among the decisive combats of history.

On the eastern end of the fighting line some of the forts northwest of Rhems are said to have fallen, which was to be expected, from the fact that they have been outflanked by the tide of invasion that has swept far to the south of the city.

of invasion that has swept far to the south of the city.

The fighting has taken on the familiar aspect of the first invasion of France in 1914, the advance of von Mackensen along the Dunajec, and the fighting in Picardy in March. After breaking the French and British defensive positions, but not breaking the Allied line, the Germans are again moving their forces out in a fan-shaped figure, fighting hardest on the flanks of the extreme front of their advance. The situation, while apparently extremely serious, has not assumed the critical aspect of the fighting late in March.

ALLIES ARE HOLDING LINES AT SOISSONS.

PARIS, May 30.—"We have prevented enemy progress in the western outskirts of Soissons." says the official report from French headquarters tonight.
"To the south we solidly hold the left bank of the Crise River. The Germans are multiplying their efforts in the direction of Ville-en-Tardenois (southwest of Rheims)." west of Rheims). "In the centre the fighting has not diminished in intensity. The Germans ave occupied Fere-en-Tardenois and

HUNS TRY DESPERATELY TO REACH THE MARNE.

LONDON, May 30.—A dispatch from Reuter's correspondent at French head-quarters in France says that, being held on the flanks at Soissons and Rheims, the Germans are throwing their entire strength southwards, obviously with the Marne for their goal. It is probable that the Germans hope to establish themselves on the Marne, with a view to turning the directions of their resin serior treatment.

Teutons probably is to secure a position enabling them to turn to the westward with the bulk of their attacking armies. The efforts of the Germans since their first rapid advance appear to take a fan-like movement. The principal column of the Teuton divisions seems to be thrusting in the direction of Fere-en-Tardenois, which now is under a heavy fire. On both flanks also strong forces are engaged. The first strong forces are engaged. The first of these captured Soissons, while on the western flank they threaten Rheims. In the latter region, however, they are meeting with the sternest defence from the Franco-British forces which, never-theless, have been obliged to realign in order to keep the front straight.

HOW BATTLE LINE RUNS
Paris, May 31.—The extreme point of the German advance is Le Charmel, about two miles north of the River Marne, according to an outline of the battle front as marked out by newspaper correspondents, the Havas agency says. The fighting front, it is declared, runs as follows:

"From Chavigny, north of Soissons, it describes a circle west of that city, and rejoins the River Crise south of Soissons. Then it goes to Barzy, follows the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road until near Hartenneo, where it bends southeast to Grand Rozoy. Thence southward, leaving Mutchy-le-Chateau, it passes Nanteuil-Dotre Dame, and advances toward the Marne to Courcy, Brecy, Courpoil and Le Charmel, which marks its extreme southern point.

Through Vezilly, Brouillet, Savigny

Through Vezilly, Brouillet, Savigny and Thillois it runs northeastward to the environs of Rheims.

It is the resistance of the two wings of the allied force which inspires the confidence of all military critics. To take victorious advantage of the success they have so far gained, the Germans must succeed in bending these two hinges, and all their efforts to do this have up to this time been vain.
