THE MERCHANT.

The following lines were written by a contributor to the The Caskey, a paper edited by the ladies of St. Anthony, Minnesota...

Tare and tret, Gross and net, Box and hogheads, dry and wet, Ready made, Of every grade, Wholesale, retail; will you trade?

Goods for sale, Roll or bale, Ell or quarter, yard or nail; Every dyer— Will you buy? None can sell as cheap as I.

Historical Survey of the Industrial Sciences.

The parentage of the Industrial Sciences is to be sought in the necessities of human life—their birth in the preparation of food and clothing.

The necessities of human life, to which we have referred the parentage of the Industrial Sciences, are those of an infant race entering upon an untried career in a new world.

The fruits of these rude endeavors were all garnered, and religiously committed to tradition. The father handed over his wisdom to his son as he handed over his flocks; and in this way, the human race became wise by each age being cradled in the knowledge of the preceding one.

Agriculture is the oldest and most important of the Industrial Sciences. Farming was undoubtedly the earliest employment of man.

In looking back to that distant day, China is the first agricultural nation that claims our notice. Shackford has made it more than probable that Noah and his immediate descendants passed into that section of the earth, and carried with them the knowledge of the antediluvian world.

Egypt early discovered that her wealth was laid up in her soil. The fertile valley of the Nile, watered and enriched by a favoring Providence, was tilled by Mizraim.

We cannot linger much longer in ancient times. We must leave the banks of the famed Indus and the vale of Cashmere—we must pass over the plains of Chaldea, and the agricultural homes of the Jews.

We pause for a few moments at the Anglo-Saxon race. This wonderful people have always evinced a strong love for agricultural life. The whole line of their march, from Southern India across both continents, is marked by the care of cattle and the culture of the soil.

HUNTING AND FISHING.

The chase was one of the first pursuits of man. His fields, and flocks, and person were to be protected, and called for the club and trap, and spear.

of food and clothing. The fruits of the earth ceased to be man's sole dependence. The dense forest and sea yielded themselves to his control; and the conquering dart added to his security and comforts.

The work of utility became one of pleasure. Man was not content to kill in order to protect his property and meet his wants. He killed the beasts of the field in the joy of slaughter.

Fishing has even a greater interest for us than hunting. The living treasures of the rivers and seas of the world are its legitimate domain. At a very early period, man began to look to the waters for a supply of his wants.

Mining, by which we mean the working of subterranean pits to obtain useful or precious minerals, is one of the most important pursuits of man. The mine is a concealed spring of wealth; and on it, in all ages, has been suspended much of the progress of civilization.

Although this was a prominent topic with farmers a year ago, circumstances still render it expedient to keep it before the public. It is now certain that the present hay crop is deficient in many situations, and the question presented is, How can this deficiency be supplied?

At this late period of the season, the best articles to be grown for the support of stock are turnips and Indian corn—the latter to be used as fodder. Either of these will make a fair crop if put in any time this month.

For corn-fodder, sweet corn has advantages over any other kind. Animals are more fond of the stalks, and, from its habit of tillering, or suckering, and producing abundance of leaves, it gives a large yield.
