DECEMBER.—To raise cream in winter, keep it moderately warm and add to each milking, or once a day, a little hot milk. Heat the milk almost to a boiling point;—heat it fresh from the cow. The quantity is a pint to a pailful to each milking. The effect of this is to prevent the cream from turning bitter; the buttermilk will be as sweet and fresh as in summer, and the butter will be better than without this treatment. We have this from an old experienced dairyman, who has practiced it for many years; and others have tried it successfully. It is a point that should be known, for there is much bad butter made in winter, and the buttermilk unfit to use.

WE KEEP SAUCES AND CURRIE POWDER.
