BLINDED WATCHING SUN'S ECLIPSE.
STRASBURG, Sept. 25.—The recent eclipse was responsible for the loss of sight in the case of Charles Neerheim, a student at the university here. He lost the sight of one of his eyes through watching the eclipse of the sun. The matter was kept quiet and escaped publicity for a considerable period of time, since the medical attendants hoped to bring about a restoration of sight.
As the story goes, Neerheim had been gazing very fixedly with his naked eye at the sun for some minutes preceding the eclipse. Suddenly he uttered a piercing shriek and fell fainting to the ground. He was conveyed to the hospital, where it was found that the rays of the sun, being focussed with great intensity upon the retina of the right eye, had affected it as though passing through a lens or "burning glass," and had injured the retina.
