Wedding bells have pealed forth merrily this week, many marriages of social interest having taken place. This week found many strangers in our midst attending the Educational Institute meetings. A well child sleeps well and during its waking hours is never cross but always happy and laughing. It is only the sickly child that is cross and peevish. Mothers, if your children do not sleep well, if they are cross and cry a great deal give them Baby's Own Tablets and they will soon be well and happy again. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Chas. D. North Tremacamp, Que., writes:—"My baby was greatly troubled with constipation and cried night and day. I began giving her Baby's Own Tablets and now she is fat and healthy and sleeps well at night." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

2EDTIME STORIES

Uncle Wiggly and

BY HOWARD R. Copyright, 1916, by McClure

Uncle Wiggly Longears, the nice old gentleman rabbit, was hopping along through the woods one day when he heard a sad little voice saying: "Oh, dear! Oh! How it hurts! Oh, it feels like a burn!"

"Yes, and it is a sort of burn," spoke another voice. "It burns like fire!"

"My goodness! Fire!" thought Uncle Wiggly. "I hope nothing is on fire in these woods! If there is, I had better call out the water bugs. But first I'll take a look."

So he looked through the bushes, and the old rabbit gentleman did, and he saw Sammie Littleall, the bunny boy, standing near an old stump, holding one paw in the other. And near him was Dr. Possum, who took care of all the sick animals.

"Oh, how it burns!" cried Sammie, most sadly.

"Now, never mind," spoke Dr. Possum, kindly, "I will soon see the thing to put on that will make the pain less."

"Why, what is the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggly, as he came out from behind the bush.

"Oh, Sammie, got in some poison ivy," explained Dr. Possum, "and now his paws are burning as if they were burned by fire."

"Yes, just like that," Sammie said. "But I will soon make him feel better," spoke Dr. Possum. "Near here, on the bank of a little brook grows some yellow flowers called jewel weed. The juice of their stalks, squeezed on Sammie's paws, where the poison ivy burned him, will make him well. I'll go to get the jewel weed."

So Dr. Possum led Sammie along toward the brook, and Uncle Wiggly followed, for he wanted to see this queer flower that was good for poison ivy.

"Here it is!" cried Dr. Possum, and he pointed to where, on the edge of the little brook, there were growing some tall, green plants with clusters of orange-colored blossoms hanging from them. "This is the jewel weed," the animal doctor said, and Sammie and Uncle Wiggly noticed how the yellow blossoms hung down like a lady's jeweled pins.

"And will that cure the smart of my poison ivy?" asked Sammie, trying not to cry.

"The green stems will," spoke Dr. Possum. "Then he took some of the stems, pounded them up on a stone, with a bit of wood, and caught a snail in a cup made from the leaf, and poured the juice on Sammie's paws. Sammie felt much better!"

"But when the green juice had they poured on the place where his sting
