

Hart-Parr Oil Tractor and Hart-Parr Self and Hand Lift Plow doing a Fine Job of Fall Plowing

You Wouldn't Use a Tin Spade for Gardening

Then why do your fall plowing with horses and expect the best results?
Or why neglect it, when a Hart-Parr Power Outfit will do it on time and put more money in your pocket at harvest.

The horse is a weak, unprofitable tool for plowing or for the other heavy power work on the farm. He is costly to buy and costly to keep. He requires almost constant care, especially when working. He creates a lot of disagreeable barn chores that demand your attention after you have put in a hard day in the field.

His power efficiency is low in comparison to what he consumes. Heat and flies make his efficiency still lower. He tires easily and soon wilts under a blazing sun. And worst of all, when you plow with horses, you are merely scratching the surface of the soil, instead of turning up new plant life. You can't get good results that way.

It's different when you do your fall plowing with a

HART-PARR & HART-PARR

-OIL TRACTOR- SELF AND HAND LIFT PLOW

A Hart-Parr plowing outfit earns a profit every day you work it. Its first cost is low and its up-keep cost remarkably small. A little care each day keeps it in good condition and ready for hard service when you are ready.

It develops its full rated power on CHEAPEST KEROSENE, works steadily in hottest or coldest weather and never tires even on a 24-hour shift. And best of all, it goes into the field and easily plows 6 to 8 inches deep, turning up new crop fertility, and does this when conditions are just right. There are few delays with a Hart-Parr Power Equipment.

You operate the entire outfit right from the engine platform, save the plowman's wages and board and save yourself a lot of heavy drudgery. This same tractor is also an ideal outfit for the other power jobs on the farm—discing, seeding, harrowing, harvesting, threshing, hauling, etc. In every way it's a profit earning investment.

We have some intensely interesting facts and figures for the farmer who is dissatisfied with the "horse farming" habit and the farmer who is anxious to make his farm pay bigger returns. Write for them to-day.
