that the farm doesn't pay. I could say lots more but I suppose other farmers will be wanting a "slap" at him also. I have enclosed a slip of paper cut from the "Family Herald and Weekly Star," which do me the favor of inserting along with my letter if you can possibly find room.

Industries Dependent on the Products of the Farm—Railways Make Profit on Increased Yields.

Who is the most interested in a good crop and a sure crop? The farmer, the manufacturer, the railroad man, merchant, or the banker? The more the problem is studied the more it looks as though the farmer is the best fixed to stand a poor crop, and that it hurts the others more. The farmer loses less sleep over it than any of the others and proportionately fewer farmers fail than any of the other lines of business mentioned, in a time of poor crops. The farmer can get his living from the farm, can reduce expenses and economize in a way that the others cannot. From this it is plain that it is of vital interest to all that good crops be a sure thing for each year, and each of these industries which has really grown out of the farm, ought to put forth their best effort to see that the farmer handles his farm according to the best that we know of farming.

A most wonderful change has been brought about in the last two generations. Then nearly everybody lived on the land. Now less than one-half of the people get their living directly from the soil, and the others are in one sense working for the people who live on the soil. They make machinery. They make clothes. They manufacture their grains. They build railroads to transport these grains to the factory and other products back to the farm. So that while industry has developed into this complicated system, the farm remains at the foundation of it, and as this development goes on it becomes more and more necessary that the soil shall be made to produce up to its capacity.

A vast fund of information has been worked out during the last sixty years on how to manage farms, and institutions are now at work digging out more of this kind of information. Other institutions are at work giving this to the farmer and these need every support, as the products of the soil are going to depend upon how much of this information gets to the farmer and is put to work, and as we have said before, all lines of industry are conditioned on the amount of crops produced, so that such institutions as experiment stations, agricultural colleges, farmers' institutes, and the extension departments, are advancing farming as fast as their means will allow; and in advancing farming, they advance all forms of industry. So that they might in one sense be called "the prosperity makers of the nation." The wise men have realized that, and support these institutions from the national treasury to some extent, but do not furnish sufficient funds for them to develop to their full capacity, so that they have been left partly dependent upon the state. The railroads are anxious for more traffic and they realize the agencies that bring it about. They were the first ones to furnish money to run demonstration trains. The Great Northern Railroad at one time gave away large numbers of pure-bred cattle and hogs that the farmers along their railroad could produce a higher quality of stock that would give them a larger return for the feed that they fed them. In all these cases it was a business proposition with the railroad to increase the traffic along its lines.

It is well to stop and consider the great developments that have taken place and the new duties that this devolves on us, and also to consider what it is necessary to do in order to have this development go on and in order to bring it to its highest perfection.—Hoard's Dairyman.
