My dear Miss Toynboe:

The beautiful Turner arrived safely some days ago. I am more delighted with it than words can express. I cannot thank you too heartily for selecting this particular picture for me. I am sure it has not its equal in your whole collection. It will be a joy to me to shew it to my friends and to let them know of your work. I only wish that I personally were in a position to take half a desen pictures instead of one.

I am at the moment very much engaged with the duties of the session of Parliament, and have time only to send this line of acknowledgment, not only of the picture, but of your last letter, of February 10, and the letter which preceded it, both of which have given me a great deal of pleasure.

Please thank Mr. Burrows for his remembrance of me. Tell him that I think a good deal of prejudice has been unjustly aroused against the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, because
