LOBSTER PROPAGATION.

Splendid Success of a Nova Scotia Experiment—Canada's First Artificially Controlled World's Supply of Lobsters.

Canada to-day practically controls the world's supply of lobsters, and the experiments, which are being successfully conducted in Cape Breton coast waters to prevent the extinction of the crustaceans, are generally adopted, the control will remain in the hands of the Canadian packers. The lobster catch of the Dominion is now worth annually about $3,250,000 and to this total Nova Scotia alone contributes over $2,000,000. Experts of the Canadian Department of Fisheries have given the lobster preservation question serious study, and have adopted a scheme devised, by Mr. H. B. Baker, one of the leading packers of Nova Scotia, which provides for the propagation of lobsters by natural process.

The scheme was as follows: A large pound or water enclosure was constructed at Fourchu on the Cape Breton coast, enclosing an area of 65,000 square feet of ocean, which gives a suitable environment. The seed lobsters were brought from the fishermen at a price in advance of what they would bring were they sold for canning purposes. These seed lobsters, with their eggs attached, were placed in the pound and kept there during the months of May, June and July, while the fishing operations were going on. At the close of the season, when the traps were all ashore, the lobsters, whose eggs at this time were within a few days of being hatched, into young fry, were liberated along the coast to hatch their eggs in a natural way. At least 500,000,000 eggs were thus saved, which under the conditions heretofore prevailing, would have been destroyed. If only two per cent. of these eggs mature, 10,000,000 lobsters will be added to the lobster grounds of Cape Breton, against a total of 7,000,000 taken during the season.

These pounds at Fourchu have been built at a cost of about $5,000. They are surrounded by strongly-built breastworks of logs and gravel. On the eastern or ocean side the breastworks are about three feet above high-water mark. The piers are fifteen feet high and 165 feet long on the eastern side. On the western side the breastwork is above the high-water level and is surrounded by woven wire. The northern side is about the same. On the southern side is the seashore. The pound is divided into three sections, the partitions consisting of strongly-built piers and wire netting of a two-inch mesh. The bottom of the pound consists of sand, gravel and rock. At spring tide there is from eight to ten feet of water in the pounds at high, and from three to five feet at low water. The apertures at the sides of the pounds are 1 1/2 to 2 inches wide and through these a continuous supply of fresh salt water ebbs and flows from the ocean.

The lobsters are fed on herring, which are cut into small pieces, about an inch square, and thrown into the pound every third day. Seaweed and kelp are also thrown into the pound at intervals and are much relished by the lobsters. Perfect cleanliness is absolutely necessary, together with pure salt water for the successful impounding of the lobsters. Every day during the season the dead lobsters are removed. The average dead loss for season was as follows: monthly, May 23 per cent. June 34 per cent. July 4 per cent. The lobsters were distributed along the coast of Richmond, Cape Breton and Victoria Counties. The condition of the lobsters at the time that they were liberated could not be improved on. In a word, they were new-born. Now that this experiment has proved to be a complete success, it is likely that the plan will be adopted in Halifax, Gloucester, Shelburne, Yarmouth and other parts of Nova Scotia, where the lobster fishery is prosecuted.

Largest Town in Canada.

The largest town in Canada—this is the proud distinction held by the town of Berlin, the legislative, judicial and commercial centre of the banner County of Waterloo. Berlin has a population of 11,000, and this number is growing fast, no less than 700 people being added last year. One of the prominent members of the Berlin Board of Trade was asked why the town did not incorporate as a city. He replied:

"We would rather be the biggest town in Ontario than the smallest city."

The neighboring city of Guelph has only 1,000 more population than Berlin. It was incorporated twenty-seven years ago. At that time Berlin had a population of about three thousand.

The New Common Carpets.

It is to cost seven thousand dollars for new carpet for the House of Commons. The legislators, lobbyists and litterateurs were the old one out during the seven months' session, and now the people have to put up the price of a new one. Why should they? It will be thought by everybody who considers the subject that the best thing in the premises for the Parliamentarians to do will be to buy the carpet out of their sessional indemnity, or to get along with bare floors. Surely, the business of this great country can be transacted without seven thousand dollars' carpets. Writes Day by Day in Toronto News: Perhaps the aesthetic tendencies of some of the members would be violated by the change, but the economy would counterbalance that objection. Let the carpets go, and the corner of a Parliamentarian's head, planked down his money and shout of "Patrick Murphy, married," London Tit-Bits.

LADY LANSDOWNE.

Occupies Commanding Position in Society—Lansdowne House Has Become Social Centre of London Past Few Years.

Lady Lansdowne, says M. A. P., occupies a commanding position in society, and, of late years, Lansdowne House has become the social centre of London. Its chateau has been responsible for a new and welcome departure in the matter of political receptions. Instead of limiting her invitations to members of the present Government and their supporters, she exchanged duty and dullness for brilliance and variety, with the result that her evening parties have become the most successful on record. Splendid entertainments were given at Lansdowne House during the coronation season and last summer witnessed a notable banquet, arranged in honor of the French Ministers who accompanied President Loubet to England. Dinner took place in the white and gold ballroom, and eighty guests were seated at one long table, which was decked with the choicest silver and delaware and the two score massive silver bowls which are among the most cherished possessions of the Fitzmaurices. On this occasion each of the forty silver bowls was filled with La France roses. Lady Lansdowne made a distinguished figure in the coronation, and like Lady Spencer and the Duchess of Bedford, had her lord's coat-of-arms embroidered on her coronation robes. It has been stated that the most precious pearls in London belong to Lady Cork. Lady Lansdowne has a diamond necklace and certainly the pearl necklace owned by the latter can find few rivals in the markets of the world. Pale blue is Lady Lansdowne's favorite color, and she wears it on almost every important occasion.

A BULGARIAN HERO.

Sugaroff, Whose Name is Reversed by All Bulgarians—The Reason Why.

A name that is reversed by all Bulgarians in the present Balkan crisis is that of Sugaroff, and his memory is honored by all who are loyal to the Bulgarian cause. Sugaroff was an officer in the Bulgarian service, but threw it up to join the Macedonian insurgents when the present movement commenced. He was one of a band in the earlier stage of the fighting hemmed in by a strong body of Turkish and cleft with rocks. There was only one way out, and that a narrow road blocked by the Turkish troops. The ammunition of the insurgents was giving out, and when that was gone they knew their fate was sealed. Sugaroff, who had been in the thick of the fight, lay behind a rock badly wounded. He called to his comrades and showed them two bombs. "With these," he said, "I intend to leap among the Turks in the pass and blow a way through them for you. When you hear the explosion make your charge. Then he made his way down the road, and the Turks, who fired at him as he came, but without stopping him. He got close to the Turkish bayonets and then crashed both bombs amongst them on the rocks. The explosion was terrible, scattering the ground before him. The Turkish troops, and with dead and mangled recover the insurgents made a dash and cut their way to safety. Sugaroff was blown to fragments with his foes, but, say the Bulgarians, "He has left us his memory and example."

Occupations of Jews.

It is a common fancy to think that the well-to-do Jews are all bankers or merchants, the poor Jews all small traders and street hawkers. That very many do earn their livelihood in this manner is beyond cavil; the laws and usages of the Jews have made them the only means of existence for them, and modern legislation in Eastern European countries has tended to conserve inherited customs, says The World's Work. But this is only a part of the truth. Even under most adverse circumstances the Jews have gone into every walk of life and have engaged in every manner of work. In 1893 the number of Jewish artisans in Russia was 395,942. In Roumania the statistics of 1902 show that there were at least 1,015 Jewish artisans, making up with their families a round 100,000. In 1899 there were 4,082 artisans among the Jews of Algiers. Still more interesting is the fact that Jewish agriculturists are not as infrequently met with as supposed. In 1899 in Russia there were 978 Jewish agricultural colonies with a population of 63,223, and 11,934 working outside the colonies. In Palestine there are 4,450 and in the Argentine Republic 4,885 Jewish farmers.

Single and Married.

A native of Ireland landing at Greenock wanted to take the train to Glasgow. Never having been in a railway station before, he did not know how to get his ticket. Seeing a lady, however, going in, he thought he would follow her and he would soon know how to get aboard. The lady, going to the ticket box and putting down her money, said "Maryhill, single." Her ticket was duly handed to her, and she walked off. He, thinking it all right, planked down his money and shouted, "Patrick Murphy, married," London Tit-Bits.
