THE LANGUAGE OF UMBRELLAS.

There is a language of umbrellas as of flowers. For instance, place your umbrella in a rack, and it will often indicate that it will change owners.

To open it quickly in the street means that somebody's eye is going to be in danger.

To shut it quickly signifies that a hat or two will probably be knocked off.

An umbrella carried over a woman, the man getting nothing but the drippings of the rain, signifies a courtship.

When the man has the umbrella and the woman the drippings, it indicates marriage.

To swing your umbrella over your shoulder signifies "I am making a nuisance of myself."

To put an alpaca umbrella by the side of a silk one signifies "Exchange is no robbery."

To lend an umbrella indicates "I am a fool."

To return an umbrella means—well, never mind what it means; nobody ever does that.

GEORGE ADE AND THE TURKEY.

George Ade, on his last European trip, spent a good deal of his time in the Amerika's smoking-room, but, as his wont is, was quiet.

The humorists of the smoking-room clustered about Mr. Ade night after night. They told him all their latest stories. They did their best to shine before the young man.

One evening, toward the end of the voyage, they begged Mr. Ade to tell a story in his turn.

"We have done our best to amuse you," said a Western millionaire. "We have given you many a yarn that will come in useful when you get to work on your next book. Now it's your turn. Fire away."

Mr. Ade pondered a moment. Then he said:

"I can't tell you a story gentlemen, but I'll ask you a conundrum. What is the difference between me and a turkey?"

Everybody gave the conundrum up.

"The difference between me and a turkey," said Mr. Ade, slowly, "is that the turkey is not stuffed with chestnuts until after it is dead."

ORIGIN OF PRINTER'S DEVIL.

Why is the printer's errand boy called the "printer's devil"? A writer at the end of the seventeenth century explained it thus: "These boys in a printing-house commonly black and dawb themselves; whence the workmen do jocosely call them devils, and sometimes spirits, and sometimes flies." It is related, however, that Aldo Manuzio, the great Venetian printer of the fifteenth century, had a black slave boy, who was popularly supposed to have come from below. Accordingly, he published notice: "I, Aldo Manuzio, printer to the Doge, have this day made public exposure of the printer's devil. All who think he is not flesh and blood may come and pinch him."

A GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN.

Considerable amusement was once caused by a slip of Emperor Nicholas's pen in accepting the offers of several companies of Siberian militia who volunteered for service at the front. The petition read: "We humbly lay at your Majesty's feet our desire to be permitted to fight and die for the fatherland." The Emperor, in accepting, wrote on the margin of the petition in his own hand, "I thank you sincerely, and hope your wishes may be fully realized."—[Sacred Heart Review.]

"My wife sent two dollars in answer of an advertisement of a sure method of getting rid of superfluous fat."

"And did she get the information she wanted?"

"Sure; she got a reply telling her to sell it to the soap man."—[Mystic, Conn., Times.]
