THOUGHTS ON METHODISM, &c.

CONTINUED.

X. METHODIST MISSIONS; HOME AND FOREIGN.

It has been said "Methodism is Christianity in earnest." As such it cannot exist but in a state of mental and moral activity...

Consider what its Home Missions have done and are still doing for the moral renovation and general improvement of thousands of the poor...

But one of the most pleasing and important parts of the Home Mission work is its mission to the Army and Navy—the British soldier and sailor.

XI. EMIGRATIONS, &c. The Emigrations, Immigrations and Migrations which are in different Countries...

Again, the Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church are in every respect worthy of our earnest sympathy and help.

Our countrymen are in every respect worthy of our earnest sympathy and help.

From honest Farmers, Mechanics and Merchants, some of whom the most eminent leading professional and business men of education and reputation, testifies to the efficacy of the Ivory Eye Cups, and to the fact that they are cured of their eye disease, and to be cured of their eye disease.

Prof. W. Merrick, of Lexington, Ky., wrote April 24th, 1869, "I have used your Patent Ivory Eye Cups, and I am satisfied that they are good. I am cured of my eye disease, and to be cured of their eye disease."

It is not said in scripture blessed are the dead that die in their beds, in the arms of their friends, in their honor or good repute, that die suddenly or slowly, but "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." This important truth is confirmed by the immediate testimony of our Divine Spirit: "Ye, said the spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them. We have therefore reason to hope that our departed brother has finished his course with joy, and is now with the blessed dead."

Obituary. The late John Fisher, of Horton, N. S., the subject of this brief sketch, was born in Canning, June 6th 1795, and died at Waterville, October 10th 1873, in the 77th year of his age.

He lived, like the many, for a number of years, without a saving knowledge of God. The divine spirit frequently moved upon his mind, enlightening his understanding, and alarmed his conscience, still he disregarded these influences, or did not so yield to them as to give his heart to God. He lived merely for the world and the things of the world.

The Lord, however, was graciously pleased, some thirty-four years ago, to pour out His Spirit in a copious manner, on the Horton circuit, so that many experienced the Gospel to the power of God to their salvation. Our departed brother was one of them. He by faith in Christ obtained the remission of his sins, and the renewal of his nature by the agency of the Holy Spirit. The spirit now testified of his spirit that he was a child of God. He no longer became the subject of true religion, but he united himself with the Wesleyan church, and continued a member of the same until he changed mortality for eternal life.

During the revival of religion on this circuit two years ago, the life and power of vital godliness were greatly quickened in his soul. He evidenced this by both public and private conversation.

Although he was spared to a good old age, death came at last suddenly, and to his friends, unexpectedly. He went to Waterville on Tuesday morning, to his appearance unusually well for his year, but there he was taken sick, and died the following Friday. It is great consolation to his connections and friends to be assured that he was prepared for his last conflict with his last enemy. One who attended upon him said, "I hope you will soon be better, so as to return home." To this he replied, "I hope so, if it be the Lord's will, but if not, I am ready to go; I feel I am prepared."

His afflicted partner, who was better acquainted with his character than any other person said to the writer, with deep emotion, "He was a good man."
