Our early estimates of winter rations had to be revised. Reporting for the quartermaster's department, Elizabeth calculated that the yield for 200 linear feet of bean rows we planned to plant, based on the potential harvest as indicat-ed by the seedsman's catalogue, would allow us a crop sufficient for fifted dozen quart jars of beans. It was plain, then, that bears should be a staple in a war garden, the first line of defence. Allow-ance had to be made for the fact that we detest and rarely eat string beans—infact, never, unless politeness requires us to while we are dining out; but then Eliza hever, unless pointeness requires us to while we are dining out; but then Eliza-country. She was not sure that I could beth said that next winter, many of the leave the office long enough to go and in-bars of conventionality would be let down, and that when we were asked out she would thoughtfully send over a jar of our beans to our, host's in advance and sei that Would simplify her work tremend-our would thoughtfully send over a jar of our beans to our, host's in advance and sei that Would simplify her work tremend-ously wad then Lowed fail that I had beans to our host's in advance, and so in that way we would benefit from the con-servation of things out of our garden. Then Elizabeth discovered that fifteen Then Elizabeth discovered that fifteen dozen quart jars of beans gave a net avail able ration of 180 jars. Reference to the calendar disclosed the fact that this sup-ply would presage string beans at least every other day for the fiscal bean year closing next luk: or avara day for the so may other ways to assist the pation closing next July; or every day for the siv months of the fiscal bean year begin-ning October 1 and ending March 31. siv months of the fiscal bean year begin-ning October 1 and ending March 31. An immediate rearrangement of the dis-position of vegetables in our war garden was effected, and the beans suffered a loss of all positions along a frayt of 175 feet. Twenty-five feet of bean rows would be enough for the cook, who was likely to leave, anyway. It seemed best to devote the flower of of any asin our garden and indicated yields continued us that no surfeit was likely here. As a matter of fact our experience has demonstrated the falsity of the simile of being like as two peas in a pod. So far as we have discovered, there never are two peas in the same pod, although the picture in the catalogue shows seven. Another praiseworthy thing about the pea, Elizabeth said, was that it matured early in the season, and so provided for a

Which flows to the Skoodoowabskooksis
 Where it joins the Skoodoowabskook.
 Then never of Waweig of Chamcook
 Then never of Waweig of Chamcook
 Thit think, having you in my arms;
 We'll reck not of Digdeguash beauties,
 Nor care for Pocologan's charms;
 But as emblems of union forever;
 Upon two fair rivers we'll look:
 Mhile you'll be the Skoodoowabskooks.
