Smaller Beer Glasses for Chicago Bowlers

Kenneth, Wis., June 3.—Michael Volung was killed here last night in a peculiar accident. While working with a tube connected with a compressed air tank the escaping air came in contact with the man, which was torn away.

The air, with a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch, was forced into an intestine. The man's internal organs were displaced and torn, as were the muscles. The man lived for four hours after the accident, but did not regain consciousness. The police heard that some of Volung's fellow-workmen had been responsible for the man's death by trying to play a practical joke and an investigation was started.

LUCKY ORGAN GRINDER

Boston, June 3.—For fifty years Pietro Bonelli turned the handle of a street organ, visiting in succession practically every important city in England, Canada and the United States. Last week he decided to retire, and today he is in Italy with £50,000 in his pocket. At a farewell reception given him by his friends, Pietro said:

"I have probably seen more of England, Canada and the United States than any individual tourist, and in the fifty long years that I have been turning the handle of my organ, I have seen some things which are not to be seen elsewhere. I have seen some things which are not to be seen elsewhere. I have seen some things which are not to be seen elsewhere."

BEST BEER IN SWEDEN

Binghamton, N. Y., June 3.—Mr. Harry Dahl, of this city, is believed to be the first suffragette in the United States to be given a penitentiary sentence for husband beating. He was arrested on a warrant obtained by Mr. Dahl, who complained that in a fit of rage she gave him a wound between the eyes. Albert Matthews found her guilty and declared that if women desired more prerogatives they should also have more punishment when found guilty of violation of the law. He always dealt severely with wife beaters, he said, and accordingly he sentenced her to three months in the penitentiary.

SHADE AS A FOOD

New York, June 3.—The increasing consumption of candy in the country has been the subject of considerable comment at medical meetings here recently. According to the New York Medical Journal it is generally agreed that the food value of candy is beyond dispute and that it has a therapeutic use in certain forms of disease. The absence of fat, it seems, is an indication that children should not partake of it in unlimited quantities, although the only danger from eating it lies in the fact that it is often adulterated.

BEER UP IN PRICE

Chicago, June 3.—The wholesale price of beer is to be raised 50 cents a barrel to-morrow, according to an announcement made by the official organ of the local brewers' association. This is the third increase within eight months. Increases in the price of barley and malt are given as reasons.

Young Mrs. Astor to Entertain Him at Lunch

New York, June 3.—Captain A. H. Rostron, captain of the Carpathia, upon which were rescued the 705 survivors of the Titanic, will be entertained at luncheon to-morrow afternoon by Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

Only members of the young widow's immediate family and a very few intimate friends will meet the gallant officer at the luncheon. Mrs. Astor has been in strict retirement since Cal. Astor's death, and to-morrow's luncheon will be the first of any kind of social function in which she has participated. She is giving it merely to testify to her appreciation of Captain Rostron's heroism in making his ship to the rescue of the Titanic's survivors and of his kindly attention to her while she was aboard the Carpathia.

The luncheon will be given in the Astor mansion in Fifth avenue.

PRISONERS CHEER

Duke of Connaught at the Culegh Prison Farm

He Makes an Encouraging Speech to the Prisoners

Culegh despatch: It was surely the strange, tribune the Duke of Connaught received since he set foot upon the soil of Canada as Governor-General. The three lady chaperons and attendant staff came from two hundred and fifty unbroken work-hardened prisoners who used their thumbs not because the Duke wanted to cheer. And the Duke, acceding through he is to sometimes wearying approval, liked it. The Duke of the prison farm might have felt bitter at the contrast in fortune, the visit of the Royal party probably they might have conceived being made objects of interest. But the Governor-General, disarmed them. Moving through the big dining-hall as the men around the tables disposing of a dinner that ran through several courses, he quickly cut them at ease. He had a friendly word for two or three and a cheery smile for all. The few remarks he made to the crowd here little resemblance to the formal addresses with which he honors civic and other dignitaries. It was straight from the shoulder, good advice, couched in language they could understand and set down a correct thinking.

Just before noon the wireless began to beep to the dining hall from all parts of the farm. When all were seated the Royal visitors entered. At first the men eyed the visitors doubtfully, but the feeling of restraint disappeared when the Duke passed through chatting with men here and there. He talked with one man who had worked for him years ago, and with another named Pettie, who informed the Governor-General that his father was a former member of the Royal Academy. He was serving an 18 months' sentence for "false pretences." Out in the kitchen the Duke wandered around inspecting the food and conversing with the cooks.

Then upon the invitation of Hon. Mr. Hume, he mounted a box and talked to the curious crowd. He opened with a brief reference to the nature of the work that was being carried on at the farm. It was a work established upon lines which could not stamp out the self-respect of any man there.

"Lives which cannot crumble out, the self-respect of any of you here," said the Duke. "However, you may be set astray, it is the object of the authorities to give you a helping hand and help you learn a trade and profession and to turn you out better, I hope, and more useful men than you were before you went in."

"We all have two sides, one weak and one strong. Some of us let the weak side get the better, others are able to make the strong one overmaster the weak. Let me hope that those whom I have the pleasure of seeing here may profit by being here. As of you will understand that nothing is more obstructive to anyone in authority than to have to see oppression. I do not know anything that gives one more pain than to have to do it, but the laws of the country must be obeyed. I am sure you will all say that we have tempered these laws with as much leniency and sympathy as possible."

"I want you all good luck," said the Duke in conclusion, "and hope that I will never have the pleasure of seeing you here again, but that you may meet in other parts of Canada, where you will be free, and hope that you will all help as loyal Canadians, loyal subjects of the Sovereign in building up a great Dominion, ever with the flag flying today."

"This, I presume, is a strict matter of business," says Mr. Williams. "On the other hand, if the mariners were passengers they could, of course, be entitled to the same consideration as other passengers. On this point I intend to give an answer from a letter I have received from the father of a French musician who was lost 'White Star' in the Titanic. The aviator, who was second from the Titanic, declared that the mariners received an order to play all the time without stopping, so as to avoid a panic. The Pope has appointed Cardinal von Rausson pontifical legate to the Ecumenical Congress at Vienna instead of Cardinal Serafini Vannozzi, who represented the Pope at Dublin, Madrid and Montreal, and who has now fallen into disgrace owing to his failure to secure British interests in the Balkans, when he predicted Turkey's downfall. This provoked protest from Turkey to the Holy See.

A SOFT HEART,

But Not a Soft Head for Ministers

Kingsport, Ont., despatch: At the Montreal Methodist Conference last evening, Principal Smith, of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, made a most favorable impression. His address on "Education" was of a high character, and his appeal for men of intelligence and culture in the pulpits was stirring and effective. He called for men to men the pulpits of Canada, not names; pay, if possible, a minister might have a soft heart, but it was not necessary to have the same kind of a head.

NORTHWEST CROPS

Satisfactory Conditions in the Entire Canadian West

Winnipeg, Man., June 3.—A crop report covering the entire Canadian west to-day shows satisfactory conditions. Only 27 points reported the acreage for wheat actually carried by wet weather and the percentages were small, running as low as 3 per cent as high as 25 per cent in a single instance. In nearly every case the land either has been or will be reseeded to some degree.

Still there are sufficient number of those exceptionally small acreages to reduce the tentative estimate of the last report by five per cent. This would bring the total area in wheat to 12,942,500 acres.

The National Council has accepted the invitation of the Montreal Local Council to hold the next annual meeting in that city.

"Patriotism as Exhibited in Citizenship" was the subject of the evening's meeting of the National Council, with a group of prominent suffragettes shared the platform with the other speakers.

Dr. J. Gibson, speaker, as chairman, introduced Sir George Gibbons, who spoke on "Patriotism as Exhibited in Peace and Arbitration." The speaker did not believe in weakness, did not believe in peace at any price, did not believe in sacrificing principle, but he did not believe that those who talk loudly about these things do the fighting.

"After losses and best go out to kill others and be killed. If we could send out a lot of the old huns from our country and let them kill one another it would be all right." Sir George said that his opinion of the war problem would be the same as that of a number of prominent Americans, the establishment of a permanent court of men in the interests of their own countries, but in the interests of truth and right.

To discuss the patriotism of a nation is to discuss the women of that nation, for there is no dividing the two, said Mrs. Jean Blewett, speaking in her charming style. Referring to the famous objection to women hanging with the world that they will lose their modesty, Mrs. Blewett said that the modesty of a woman was like the power mentioned in Holy Writ, which she would not give her to take away. It is her own and she can take it to take it away but herself.

Mrs. Henry Curtis, of Worcester, Mass., succinctly spoke of the development of the boy as he came to sacrifice himself and his interests for the good of his team.

Miss J. G. Owen, of London, England, spoke of patriotism as the spot of individualism, and the first duty in which is self-realization.

Dr. Augusta Stone Guller, introduced the patriotic problem frankly as a woman's outrage, which she claimed to be the greatest question the world has ever witnessed, for never before has a question been argued so earnestly for the interest of half the human race, and introduced by the right and liberties of the whole race.

Mrs. Torrington spoke graciously words of thanks for the hospitality accorded the National Council in London, and the chair of the First Methodist Church delighted the audience by singing "O Canada," and leading in the National Anthem.

Meredith & Co., the Montreal brokerage firm, which has purchased the business of the Tuckett, Clegg & Tolson Co. in Hamilton, Montreal and London, this morning announced that it was to be merged with the business of Sir William Macdonald, the business of any Toronto company. It was stated that the acquisition of the company was the first step in connection with its complete re-organization and enlargement. The name of Sir William Macdonald got mixed up in the matter through the fruitless efforts of other parties to merge their enterprise and that of Tuckett's at the same time as the negotiations between the Meredith Co. and the officers of Tuckett were being carried on.

All committees are in session today.

WATERS' STRIKE

May Be Walk-Out From New York Hotels

Negro Strike-Breakers May Come From South

New York, June 3.—New York faces today a possible strike of every union waiter and cook in the city.

The cooks and waiters from a dozen famous hotels and restaurants are now on strike and unless they win their fight for higher wages, shorter hours and recognition of their union within 24 hours their leaders have promised to order a general walk-out. This order, according to Edward Bioehinger, financial secretary of the "Walkers' Union," would call from their piece-cooks and waiters in every hotel not already affected.

Hundreds of restaurants and "quick lunch" establishments serving food at popular prices.

Approximately 1000 negroes are in readiness to be brought into the city from Southern points to break the strike, the principal hotel managers say. The negroes have been recruited, it is said, from hotels and employment agencies in Florida, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, St. Louis, and other southern cities. At the Plaza Hotel, where the waiters laid down their dishes last night, negroes have already taken up their work.

Most of the demands of the strikers have been granted by the hotelmen, but recognition of the union has been refused.

MURDER AT FALLS

Spurned Love for Girl Cause of Tragedy

Nagans Falls, N.Y., despatch: John Ungerer, twenty years old, was fatally shot near his home, No. 211 Elm street, to-night. The police are searching for Angelo Grella, a barber, twenty-two years old, who is said to be able to tell something of the shooting.

The police say Ungerer quarreled with the barber over the favors of a young belle of the district and when the woman spurned him, Grella is said to have threatened to remove Ungerer. The shooting, which followed was witnessed by hundreds.

The wounded man was carried to a lower hospital and Dr. Jones was called. Ungerer died half an hour. An inquest will be held to-morrow morning.

The fugitive is sometimes known as "Gentle," a smooth shaven and about five feet six inches tall.

When two brothers of the murdered man heard of the shooting they inquired of the owner of the tenets and are aiding the police in the search for the fugitive. They say they will not desert in their quest until the quarry has been found.

PRICE OF COAL

Committee to Investigate the Recent Rise

New York, June 3.—The committee of the Merchants' Association to investigate the advance in the price of domestic hard coal is to begin its work next week and several operators, it is expected, will be asked to come to the hearings and answer questions. Coal dealers will also be requested to appear.

This is the first time that the coal trade had undergone an investigation of this kind. Henry F. Towne, president of the association, said that while the company had no power to compel the attendance of the operators, it has authority that they would refuse to testify. Mr. Towne said: "We are going off at half-past six on the matter. It is the public right to know everything about the case. The price of anthracite has been increasing since last fall, and now 25 cents a ton is added, ostensibly because the wages of the miners have been increased to little over 5 per cent."

Washington.—A cablegram to the Italian embassy announced that 80 Italian soldiers including three officers, who were captured on the island of Rhodes by Italian troops, were sent from Rhodes yesterday to Italy, where they will be held pending exchange as prisoners of war, or the termination of the hostilities.
