

DANGER lurks IN EVERY ONE OF US

We Are As Full of Deadly Poisons As A Germ Laboratory.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious kidney and bladder troubles; that it upsets the stomach, causes indigestion, loss of appetite and sleeplessness; that chronic rheumatism, gout, psoriasis, eczema, and other skin affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs. One box, 6 for $2.00, trial size 25c. At all dealers or send on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

White Ribbon News.

Woman's Christian Temperance Union first organized in 1874. A.M.—The protection of the home, the abolition of the liquor traffic and the triumph of Christ's Golden Rule in custom and in law.

Motto—For God and Home and Native Land. DANCE—A knot of White Ribbon. WATCHWORD—Aglute, educate, or garbize.

OFFICERS OF WOLFVILLE UNIONS. 1st Vice President—Mrs. Irene Pritch. 2nd Vice President—Mrs. J. Miller. 3rd Vice President—Mrs. Armstrong. Recording Secy.—Mrs. W. O. Taylor. Cor. Secretary—Mrs. Ernest Liddell. Treasurer—Mrs. H. Pines.

LABORERS' UNIONS. Laborer Work—Mrs. Fielding. Lumbermen—Mrs. J. Kempton. Temperance in Sabbath schools—Mr. Edson Graham. Evangelistic—Mrs. Purves Smith. Press—Mrs. J. P. Freeman. White Ribbon Bulletin—Mrs. Dr. McKenna. Local Temperance Legion—Miss Egan. Red Cross Work—Mrs. J. Vaughn.

Freedom.

Men! whose boast it is that we come of fathers brave and free, If there's a slave on earth a slave, Are ye truly free and brave? If ye do not feel the chains, When it works another's pain, Are ye not worse slaves indeed, Slaves unworthy to be freed?

Women! who shall one day bear Sons to breathe sweet Freedom's air, If ye hear, without a blush, Deeds to make the roused blood rush Like red lava through your veins, For your sisters now in chains— Answer! Are ye fit to be Mothers of the brave and free?

Is true freedom but to break Fetters for our own dear sake? And with lantern beams forget That we once marked a detour? No! true freedom is to share All the chains that others wear, And with heart and hand to be Earnest to make others free!

They are slaves who fear to speak For the fallen and the weak, They are slaves who will not choose Hatred, scolding and abuse, Rather than in silence shrink From the truth they need; must think: They are slaves who dare to be In the right with two or three.

—LOWELL

King George a Strict Teetotaler

Impetus has been given the campaign for pledge sitters for the period of the war, which English W. C. T. U. leaders are conducting through the circulation of the following information, given to Miss A. G. Z. Slack, one of the honorary secretaries of the World's W. C. T. U., in an interview with Lord Ranksborough. Knowing that he was serving his usual fortnight as lord-in-waiting to the King, Miss Slack asked him if His Majesty was a teetotaler. He replied: "Most rigidly so. We have no liquor or wine or beer at Buckingham Palace or at any of the King's residences."

If a man is really in love with a girl her freckles are lovable. Don't forget to laugh when your boss tells a story with wakers on it. Some mothers teach their babies to talk and then expect them to learn to keep still. If a man is abused while on earth and praised after shuffling to the mortal coil—well, that's tame. When some people have no other excuse for failing to do their duty they blame it on the weather.

Edith—You made a good impression on everyone in the family but pe. Cholly—Really? But I thought your mother was the real boss, you know. Edith—Yes, but she lets pe. decide on little things.

Supple at Sixty

Age and ripe experience mean happiness and contentment when mental and bodily powers are preserved by keeping rich blood in the veins. Nature's own combination in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the best and most reliable means of attaining this state of health. Write for free literature.

Private: "By you did, sir, but the Sergeant here wouldn't have it!"

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Best—It's simply absurd! What's the use of showing me low-cut collars like these? Do you mean to say you keep nothing but 'em? Shop-Girl—I'm sorry, but I can't next size in collars.

Canning V. gettin' 'em.

Shell the peas, blanch them in steam or boiling water for five to ten minutes, counting the time from the moment the peas go into the water. This stops the boiling, but the time is counted nevertheless. Then take from steam or boiling water and immediately plunge them into a deep pan of ice cold water as possible. Just dip in and take them out at once. The jars should be ready and hot, then fill with the cold dipped peas; add a teaspoon of salt to each quart jar and fill jars full of boiling water. Adjust rubbers and covers to partially seal the jars and place them at once in a boiler containing boiling water, so that the water is two inches over the top of the jars. Boil (sterilize) for two hours, remove jars at once and then seal completely and test for leaks.

Following the foregoing directions for canning beans. Corn is blanched on the cob and cold-dipped before cutting off the cob. Follow the same process, but do not fill jars full; allow about one-half inch at top of jar for swelling, and boil (sterilize) for three hours.

Blanching is best done by having a large piece of cheesecloth in which the peas and beans are placed, and dipping in the boiling water is then easy. They are given the cold dip so as to give a shock which destroys certain bacteria that might otherwise cause taint.

The method of putting up plain sweet tomatoes is as follows: Place tomatoes in wire basket or cheese cloth, and lower it to boiling water for one or two minutes, until skin cracks. Dip in cold water and remove skins and core with a sharp knife. Cut up the tomatoes into 1/2 inch cubes, and fill jars with their own juice. Add one teaspoonful of salt for quart-size jar, adjust rubbers and covers and partially seal, sterilize under boiling water twenty minutes. Seal and test for leaks.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S CATARRH POWDER 25c. Improved Flower, Headache, Cough, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, etc. A box, 6 for $2.00, trial size 25c. At all dealers or send on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Bewhiskered Russia. (By Walt Mason.) I fear that Russia won't be very useful to her people to have. We can't look for good horse sense in men whose shrubbery is dense, whose lambskins obstruct the view, and often block the traffic too. I hope to see sad Russia rise from that deep pit in which she lies; and I hope to see her rise in time, and I hope to see her shine, but first her men will have to have the whiskers that impede their vision. No nation can be truly great whose voters pack a hundred or eight of spinach up and down the street so long it gets beneath their feet. When poor old Rus is spiced with beans, and swapped her birthright for some greens, when windy demagogues arise and turned her over to the foe, when desolation o'er her crept the allied nations looked and wept. There was no harshness in their gaze, they sympathized with those Polish Jews, by long advisers led afar from where the wreaths of glory are. The allied nations wept and sighed, they bit the long lubbagan sides; such spectacles disgust, deject; but who can say one spect from men whose whiskers seem to grow eight inches every hour or so? An' 't has 'twel' ever, always be, no future for the Russ we see, with, with motion staves and the, he resp. hi. whate'er with a scythe.

Got Rid of Bronchitis.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Iowa, writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, 7 years, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it cures coughs and colds."

Ever hear of him?—Talking of unusual names, I once knew a man who was baptized I. p. d. h. I wonder how many students of the Bible could identify his prototype without recollections. He only appears once, and I fancy he must have been a benighted man. His only claim to fame is the reference, "D. b. o. h. the prophetess, the wife of Laphoth."

CASTORIA COAL

For Infants and Children In Use For Over 30 Years Always bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Watson

A private in a certain regiment had occasion to go before his Q. C. on the fourth charge of absence. Q. C.—"Didn't I tell you the last time that I wish to see your face no more?" Private—"By you did, sir, but the Sergeant here wouldn't have it!"

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Best—It's simply absurd! What's the use of showing me low-cut collars like these? Do you mean to say you keep nothing but 'em? Shop-Girl—I'm sorry, but I can't next size in collars.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Port Williams Fruit Co. LIMITED

Get Our Prices on Flour and Feed. Oats also on hand. Try a bag of Ground Wheat or Barley. Best feed on the market to day for pigs or horses.

Stop and Rest" Inn

AN EXCLUSIVE RESORT FOR MOTORISTS, HOUSE and Week-End Parties. Evening Functions and After-Theatre Suppers arranged. Afternoon Tea. W. S. STACKHOUSE, WOLFVILLE, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Old Eton At the War

It has been said by many a good judge that the real secret of this war, and its fortunes hitherto, has lain in the careful difference between the German officer and the British, quite as much, in fact, as between the voluntary spirit of Thomas in the ranks and the Boche with the bayonet behind him. As a matter of fact, writes J. Collins in London to The Boston Transcript, this is exactly stating the same proposition twice. It is better to lead men than to lead 'em, and it makes all the difference to the value of the impetus supplied when it is given in the form of a shining example of valor, than in the form of a noble emulation is also yours, judging by all the signs. The figure of a sublimely mounting the parapet and waving his men on with sword or revolver has become so tragically familiar that we have almost ceased to think what a high proportion these gallant youngsters of ours make in the enormous total of officers on our roll of honor, or even to realize that we are used to do when anyone cynically referred to this terrible toll of life as "the massacre of the innocents." This man, therefore, as you talk to them in hospital about their eyes and shake an aching head as they recall a feverish leader plunging through a barrage or down a trench, and waving his men on with a last gesture as he dropped. That is why you find so many letters from the front and widows of junior officers who "went west," which conclude with the telling words, "he was beloved by all his men" or "the platoon would have followed him anywhere."

When we begin to cast up our debts, therefore, after the war, and attend to the moral as well as the material side of the account, we are glad to pay due honor in one outstanding quarter. The British public schools have not merely sent many thousands of their best products into the service; they are turning officers out as fast as they can, and will continue to do so as long as the war lasts, and beyond. For this is the main difference between the schools and the universities in war time. Oxford and Cambridge, so far as students go, are practically deserted, and the old familiar stately halls are given up to nurses and doctors for their right vocations, and though the average of age has dropped a year or two, the quality of the men who remain remains the same, and happily the supply has never failed us yet. Directly the war began, the pick of their pupils moved on to Sandhurst or Woolwich. Men who had meant their sons for other lines in life evoked their decision without a murmur, and yielded these youngsters the dearest wish of their hearts. Younger brothers have had the heritage to fill the gaps thus created and have gone forward in their turn, from the preparatory school or the private tutor to Eton or Harrow or Rugby, from there to the camp or military school.

There is no longer the old reluctance to leave school behind, that unaccountable resistance which has been the highest compliment that any school can earn. It is told of that fine spirit, the late Alfred Lavelle, that on his last day but one at Eton, after a brilliant record at nearly all his games, he said to a school friend (now Lord Middleton): "Just think, only twenty-four hours between me and utter insignificance!" It was the heartiest wish of one who had taken the lead in all the pursuits that lads admire, and was now dropping through into a hard world where nobody knew the thrill of a "bully" in the football field or the glory of pulling off the gold cup on a great "Twines" day. There is none of the reluctance at leaving school nowadays. Athletics and the games are a necessary part of the life of the school, but war, you may say, is life itself, and the men who are honored in young Britain are those whose war was a battle or a V.C. or a death that adds fresh laurels to their old school's fame.

Eton has many claims to be taken as the representative school in this connection. It has only one senior—Winchester school, which dates from the fourteenth century. Another decade or two brings in the fifth century of Eton's foundation, and it has an enviable list of historic soldiers on its roll, including Wellington and Roberts. Most of us remember the day in 1840, when fresh from his Indian triumphs, "Bobo" (he was only Sir Frederick then) went down to his old school, and there, to receive a presentation sword of honor in the great school yard, and incidentally to have his carriage drawn by the Eton boys as far as Windsor Bridge, to the huge delight of Lady Roberts. That ride comes dated back to 1849, and to the volunteer movement of 1859, in the following January, when the designs of Napoleon III. were making us stand three uneasy, and a year later this was considerable enough to be reviewed by Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort on the castle lawn at Windsor. It was Prince Albert's last appearance in public, by the way, so the day was memorable in other respects, and great things were to accrue from this rally of lads in their gray tunics with the school's pale blue. In the Illustrated Times of those days there is a school photograph showing the stars of King Henry VI, and they wear the top hat which the war has practically demolished everywhere, you may say, except at Eton, synagogues, and funerals.

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

What about the cows next fall? Bran and Middlings will be very scarce. Place your order now for Oil cake—34 per cent. protein—and avoid the rush. Open Wednesday mornings only during July and August. Port Williams, N. S.

Australian Slang Differs Greatly From That of Other Anglo-Saxon Countries.

The Australian language differs in many respects from the Canadian or English or South African; no reader of a Melbourne or Sydney paper, who has been in London or Toronto or Cape Town, but will find expressions novel in the mother tongue as he knows it. And Australian slang differs naturally, word and phrase of its own. Some words are purely English—as "blighter," "boko" for nose, "snood" (eyeglass) and "snood" (to observe). A good many are American, with the flavor of the California coast, from which they have been imported. But some are anti-podean, as any reader will find from C. J. Dennis' "Ginger Mick," a little book of slangy poems about an Australian soldier. We learn, for example, that "to lose in the alley" is to give up the ghost; that the "bad sergeant" is the commander; that a "tabby" is a female. To "track with a girl" is elegant Australian for wooing her. A "white-headed boy" is a favorite or pet. When an Australian wishes to express surprise, he says "Beechwood" or "What now?" he ejaculates "What price?" When an Australian goes to his work he goes to his "tucker." When he stops doing anything he "takes a pull." Whereas any good American would say that such an enterprise is "a blink," or perhaps would simply say "quered," the Australian takes from cricket the phrase that comes into his mind, "The next one he came down." "Back chat" is another phrase which can easily be studied out. Less easily comprehensible are "a fair cow," used to characterize a man's conduct; "obnoxious;" and "crack a bo," meaning to tell a secret. To do a bunk is to depart suddenly, and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology, and there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after the philology and his general could have made out "Bums," a word for filthy money that is obviously derived from Birmingham. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the Australian slang in the interests of philology,