

Executions in Toronto From 1798 to 1908—27 Have Suffered

(Toronto Telegram.)

The death on the gallows of John Boyd at the jail is the twenty-seventh execution which has occurred here since the city was founded. One of these was for forgery, two for high treason, and the remainder for murder. (An account of the executions in Toronto is given in Robertson's "Landmarks of Toronto," Vol. III, p. 257.)

The first execution to take place in the town of York, now the city of Toronto, was that of John Sullivan, a young Irish emigrant who was hanged Oct. 11, 1798, for having a promissory note for three shillings and nine pence, Halifax currency, 75 cents of our money. The execution took place in the yard of the first jail, a log building, on the south side of King street, nearly opposite Toronto street.

Nineteen years elapsed before there was another execution in York, as it was not till Aug. 10, 1816, that a farmer named Elijah Dexter was hanged for the murder of a neighbor, James Vanderberg. That hanging also took place within the precincts of the old log jail.

One Instance of Lynch Law.
On Feb. 15, 1819, the only instance of lynch law in the annals of Canadian justice occurred, the occasion being the summary execution by some of the residents of York of a man named De Benyon, who had killed a boy, who had been working for him, up to a stump of a tree, then by lighting a fire near him literally roasted him to death. News of this terrible act at once, almost, reached York, with the result that a party of the townspeople soon made their way to Whitby, and, finding De Benyon, brought him as far as the Don bridge of that date, and there hanged him to a tree growing conveniently near the river.

A Double Execution.
In 1828, Charles French and James Christie were hanged in the second jail, the former for the murder of a companion of his named Thomas Joslin, the latter for having enticed a boy named Charles Wood to leave a wagon he was in charge of and enter some adjoining woods on a supposed squirrel hunt and there shooting him. The jail where the hanging took place was on the southeast corner of Toronto and Court streets, and a portion of the building is still standing.

Nine years elapsed, then, on Dec. 14, 1837, Julia Murdoch, a young woman of but twenty years of age, a servant maid, was hanged for the deliberate murder of her mistress, Mrs. Harriet Henry. The murder was a peculiarly revolting one, as it was accomplished by putting poison in the food the maid had prepared for Mrs. Henry to eat. In reporting the execution the Christian Guardian remarked: "It was exceedingly revolting to see among the spectators a large number of females."

In Rebellion Times.
In April, 1858, occurred the execution of Samuel Lount and James Matthews for the crime of high treason, though every possible effort had been made by their friends to obtain a commutation of the sentence. After the sad scene was over the heads of the two unfortunate men were delivered to their friends, who gave the remains Christian burial in the cemetery on the north side of Bloor street west, known as Potter's Field.

In the autumn of 1843 James McDermott suffered the extreme penalty of the law for the murder of Thomas Kinneary, a Scotch gentleman of good family who lived near Richmond Hill, on Yonge street. McDermott's execution was carried out at the jail on the bay front at the foot of Bay street.

Self Convicted Man.
William Turner was executed in Toronto in 1847, just four years later than the McDermott case. Turner's crime was the murder of a storekeeper's clerk named Walter McPhillips, and the probability is that if Turner had not been found guilty of the crime he would never have been convicted of the crime. It was wholly through a letter written by Turner to his wife in which the crime was referred to that brought about his conviction. Turner was a Scotchman of good family who lived near Richmond Hill, on Yonge street. McDermott's execution was carried out at the jail on the bay front at the foot of Bay street.

Robert Hamilton was hanged on the same date and at the same place as James Turner for the murder of a farmer in Toronto Township named John Easton. The crime was one which had nothing but robbery as its motive, and little or no sympathy was felt for the condemned man.

A Soldier's Crime.
On November 14th, 1849, Robert Smith, a private in the 10th Regiment, stationed at the Old Fort, was hanged for shooting one of his comrades named Richard Eastwood, the whole trouble having arisen through a very trifling quarrel between the two men. Smith took offence at some slighting remarks Eastwood had addressed to him, and brooding over the trivial occurrence, watched his opportunity, and when it came shot Eastwood dead. Smith who won the scaffold neither blanched nor quivered, but looked as like a soldier on duty as a man about to face his Maker.

Wife Murderer's Fate.
On Monday, December 4th, 1854, Martin Richard Kehoe was hanged for the murder of his wife on July 30th previously, by cutting her throat in three places. The evidence was entirely circumstantial, but the medical evidence was very strong, it showing that the wounds received by the woman could not possibly have been self-inflicted. Kehoe protested his innocence to the last, yet there was no one who did not think he was guilty of the crime imputed to him and of which he had been convicted.

Another Double Hanging.
On the morning of March 4th, 1859, William Fleming and John O'Leary were executed at the same time in front of the old jail on Front street. Fleming's case excited a great deal of interest, the culprit, who had been convicted of having stabbed to death a companion of his, one Thomas Maddigan, with whom he had just previously been carousing in Welch's Tavern, on the corner of Wellington and Bay streets. O'Leary's crime was of course altogether of murder, of a man named Hugh Kelly, of the township of Georgina, with whom he had had a quarrel relating to a lawsuit in which both had been interested.

Four years passed before another execution took place in Toronto, then on March 10th, 1862, James Brown was hanged at the old jail for the murder of John Sheridan Hogan, M. P. P., on Dec. 1st, 1859.

The Hogan Murder.
Mr. Hogan had been murdered at the Don bridge on the date named by being struck on the head by a stone tied in a handkerchief, which stunned him; he was then robbed and his body thrown into the river.

Brown was first placed on trial for the crime in April, 1861, and found guilty, but his counsel, the late Mr. James Doyle, succeeded in obtaining a new trial, which was held in the innocence of his innocence to the last and with such earnestness that the clergy who attended him, among whom were the late Dean Grasset and Archbishop Bodley, expressed their belief in his innocence. He was executed at the old jail before an immense concourse of people, whom he addressed as follows:

"This is a solemn day for me, boys. I hope this will be a warning to you against bad company. I hope it will be a lesson to all you people, old as well as young, and rich and poor. It was that brought me here to-day to my last end, though I am innocent of the murder I am about to suffer for. Before my God I am innocent of the murder. I know nothing of it. I am going to meet my Maker in a few minutes; may the Lord have mercy on my soul. Amen."

First in New Jail.
A little more than a year later Robert Collier was hanged for the murder of James Kenny on the night of November 18, 1861. The execution took place at the new jail on June 1st, 1863. He was a powerfully built man and died hard, having made no confession. Between two thousand and three thousand people witnessed the execution, a much smaller crowd than that which attended the hanging of O'Leary and Fleming.

John Travis was convicted of the murder of John Johnston on November 22, 1871, near Queensville, in the Township of East Gwillimbury. He was tried January 11, 1872, found guilty and sentenced to be hanged on February 23rd, following. Travis made a full confession before he died.

On November 30th, 1877, John Williams, of New York, was strangled at the new jail for the brutal murder of his wife on the night of September 21st previously. Williams died extremely penitent, his last words being: "I am happy that I got a fair trial, and I thank the public for what they have done for me. I am also deeply grateful to my clergyman. That is all."

Hon. George Brown's Murder.
One of the most sensational crimes ever committed in Toronto was that of the murder of the late Hon. George Brown, on March 25, 1880, which was executed on July 23, 1880, by the execution of George Bennett, who was also known under the alias of George Bennett.

Bennett shot Mr. Brown down in his office, from the effect of which he afterwards died. Bennett maintained that the shooting was on the impulse of the moment, but a very strong feature in the evidence against the prisoner as to felonious intent, was a letter found with others on him at the time of the arrest, in which he intended to kill Banks and his late master for fancied ill-treatment, and to complete the tragedy by committing suicide.

When on the scaffold Bennett remarked quite coolly, "I am prepared to die. All I have to say is: May God have mercy on my soul."

Killed Prison Guard.
Robert Neil was executed at the present jail on Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1888, for the murder of John Rutledge, a guard at the Central Prison. On the morning of Jan. 13 previously Rutledge had entered Neil's cell for the purpose of removing a bucket, when Neil suddenly plunged a broom-maker's knife into his abdomen, Rutledge dying two days afterwards from the effects of the wound.

The crime was committed on Jan. 13, 1888, and Neil was found guilty on Feb. 26, and was hanged for his crime on Feb. 28, 1888. In his case, at any rate, retribution soon followed the crime.

Thomas Kane was convicted of the murder of his wife on Saturday, Nov. 16, 1889, and at the assizes held in the forenoon of December by Judge Street was sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 12, which sentence was carried out effect on Feb. 12, 1890.

Burglar and Murderer.
More than ten years went by before there was another hanging in Toronto, it not being until April 4, 1900, that Harry Williams paid with his life for the wilful murder of John Edward Varcoe, a grocer, Queen street east, during the night of Nov. 4, 1890.

Williams on the night named, with a companion, broke into Varcoe's store; then when they were discovered, in the scuffle which followed, Williams drew a pistol, shooting Varcoe, wounding him so severely that he died very shortly afterwards. Williams went to the scaffold most collectively; from the very first he was apparently resigned to his fate, as, after his conviction in passing sentence Chief Justice Meredith had held out no hope for mercy.

Constable Boyd Shot.
Frederick Lee Rice was hanged on July 18, 1902, for having shot County Constable Boyd, who was in a back in charge of Rice himself, and two other prisoners named, respectively, Routledge and Jones, conveying them to jail, where they had been committed to take their trial for burglary committed in Aurora some time previously. The crime was a most sensational one, as the pistols with which the shooting was effected were thrown into the back in which the constable and prisoners were travelling by a third person, whose personality has never yet been discovered. The three prisoners all came to an untimely end, James was so terribly injured in the fight for liberty which took place between the constables and their charges that he died in the General Hospital a day or two later. Routledge committed suicide in the jail two days after Boyd was shot, and Rice, perhaps the least guilty of the three, perished on the scaffold.

The last man to be hanged at the jail was Alexander Martin, who had been convicted of the murder of his infant child by striking it on the head with an iron bar, and his wife were in a boat on the bay; he then threw the dead body into the water. When Martin was brought up for trial there was practically no defence, and the jury had no difficulty in finding a verdict of guilty. Martin was hanged on the morning of March 10, 1905, his last words being: "I was an innocent man." Until the execution of Boyd this morning that was the last execution which took place in Toronto.

WINE-GROWERS.

Deputation Protests Against Clause in French Treaty.

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—A strong deputation of wine-growers, representing 18,000 acres of wine culture and about $2,000,000 capital, waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding to-day in reference to the wine tariff in the French Treaty. They desire some assurance that will guarantee the exclusion of spurious French wines from the Canadian market, wine that are already forbidden in France, as they are said to be made of mere chemicals, largely.

The delegation was composed of Messrs. A. W. Marsh, Niagara Falls, E. G. Brown, St. Catharines; W. J. Aikema, Dunnville; J. S. Hamilton, Brantford, and Pelee Island; W. J. Bunting, John Ewart, George Barnes and William Sheriff, St. Catharines. The Ministers promised to consider the matter.

ANCIENT CURIOS

Dug Up Beneath River by a Beamsville Man.

Beamsville, Jan. 15.—(Special)—John Ritchie is home, and brought with him some of the queerest curiosities seen here in a whole life time, considering where he discovered them. Mr. Ritchie has been working in the Perry Sound District as a contractor, and had occasion to dig a river about 16 feet deep. Under the river he discovered these queer specimens of apparently hand-made articles, which apparently had lain there for ages, and from which revelations in the future be made. Hieroglyphics are plainly seen on the face of two of the pieces of pottery and solid brown rock, seemingly as hard as flint.

The Social Club pool tournament is going on and the boys are enjoying a fine time among themselves.

Jordan hockeyists enjoyed a great snap by driving over to Beamsville to have a ride over the H. G. & B. line to get a good solid trimming in Grimsby.

The Masonic lodge met in the hall on Mountain street last night.

On the 17th a public meeting will be held in the Town Hall to organize for an Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion in conjunction with a three-day fair next fall. All are welcome to have a word from the township and village.

Constable A. B. Tufford is busy these days, and tramps are numerous.

FOUND WOMAN.

Murderer's Companion Arrested in Niagara Falls Resort.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 15.—In the arrest of Pauline Tezzine, 33 years old, in a resort on Eleventh street, the local police believe they have furnished a strong link in a murder mystery which stirred Niagara last Christmas.

Ever, 1906, when two Italians were mortally shot in a card game, and the assassin, an Italian, escaped.

On Monday Alexander Gigiglo was arrested in Toronto, and shortly after his arrest it developed that he was the man wanted in Niagara. He was arrested on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon, a loaded pistol, and a knife. One of the Toronto detectives noticed that he bore a resemblance to the alleged assassin, and after outwitting the alleged assassin, he decided to be held. However, Gigiglo would say nothing about himself, but he consented to return to this country with out extradition proceedings.

The Toronto police learned that Gigiglo was living with the Tezzine woman in Toronto, and started a search for her. She was traced to Niagara Falls, and located on the east side on a description.

In a confession to the police today, the woman said that she and Tezzine, together with Gigiglo, on the night he is alleged to have murdered the two men, she accused him of having committed the murder, but was afraid to tell on him, owing to threats he had made. Yesterday, she says, she saw an opportunity to escape from him and came to this city. She and Gigiglo will be taken back to Niagara on Thursday.

SISTERS' PROTECTOR.

Rome, Jan. 15.—Cardinal Satolli, former papal delegate to the United States, has been elected Protector of Sisters of Loreto, or the Friends of Mary at the foot of the Cross whose mother-house and novitate are at Nerinx, Marian county, Kentucky.

PRUSSIAN LOAN.

Berlin, Jan. 15.—Subscribers for the loan which the Prussian Ministry of Finance recently announced would be received January 14, have reached an amount according to officers of the Prussian state bank, that insures the success of the loan.

IRISH REGALIA.

London, Jan. 15.—The Tribune hears from a source which it regards as trustworthy that the missing Irish regalia is held intact for a large ransom and is to be returned to the British government. It says that the mystery of the disappearance can, however, only be solved by a public inquiry which would reveal amazing and romantic features.

CORTLEYOU MAY RESIGN.

New York, Jan. 15.—The Times in a special from Washington says: "There is a persistent rumor there to-night that Secretary Cortleyou will soon resign from the Roosevelt Cabinet."

LOTS OF CARS.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Railroads of the U. S. and Canada have 206,800 freight cars in excess of business demands, according to a statement that will be issued this week by the car service commission of the American railway association. Shortages exist on only a few roads.

OAKVILLE RECTOR.

Marriage of Rev. L. W. B. Broughall and Miss Hagarty.

The marriage took place very quietly at St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, yesterday afternoon, of Miss Sophy Hagarty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hagarty, to the Rev. L. W. B. Broughall, rector of St. Jude's Church, Oakville, son of the Rev. Canon and Mrs. Broughall. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends of the bride were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Canon Welch and the Rev. Canon Broughall. Miss Beatrice Hagarty was her cousin's only bridesmaid, and Mr. Dudley Hagarty acted as best man. Mr. Hagarty gave away his daughter, who wore a most becoming pale grey tailor-made with pale blue cloth revers and cuffs, pale blue panne hat with shaded maroon feathers, mink fur, and a large bouquet of lily of the valley. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Rev. L. W. B. and Mrs. Broughall drove direct to the station and left for the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, whence they will go to New York.

DROWNED IN TUB.

Discouraged Over Her Husband's Loss of Work.

New York, Jan. 15.—Inability of her husband to obtain permanent employment is believed to have led Mrs. Louise McClure to end her life to-day. Her body was found lying in a foot of water in the bath tub in their home, in West 24th street, by the husband when he arose this morning. The couple were married in Canada two years ago. It was a runaway match, Mrs. McClure became deeply despondent, and when she did not recover her strength after the birth of a child a few months ago, she worried continually over the family's desperate condition.

STEAMER SINKS

With Twelve Passengers in Puget Sound.

Bellingham, Wash., Jan. 15.—The gasoline passenger steamer Island Flyer left Bellingham yesterday for Anacortes, 25 miles up the Sound, with twelve passengers aboard. She had not been heard from since, but her route is that followed by a dozen Sound steamers daily, and it is feared she has gone down with all on board. Ordinarily she makes the run in two and a half hours. Three vessels are now searching for the steamer. The boat was in charge of Captain Fred King, of Anacortes. It is alleged that her machinery was deranged when she left port yesterday.

The Island Flyer is one of the largest passenger launches on the Puget Sound.

JAP DESTINY

In Asia, Corea and Manchuria, Says Oaki.

Honolulu, Jan. 15.—A local Japanese newspaper prints an interview with Viscount Aoki, Japanese Ambassador to America, in which Viscount Aoki is quoted as follows: "I do not approve of manual laborers going to America. They cannot expect after Japan's long isolation, to establish themselves in any western country. Destiny and opportunity are in Asia, Korea and Manchuria."

Viscount Aoki also expressed himself as opposed to Japanese seeking naturalization in America for the reason that citizenship is only needed by those who contemplated permanent residence.

LOCAL LEGAL.

Whitman vs. Hamilton Steel & Iron Co.—A. M. Lewis (Hamilton) for plaintiff. Case placed at foot of list.

Dewey vs. Dewey—A. O'Hair (Hamilton) for plaintiff, appeared from order of Riddell, J., of 10th January, 1908, dismissing plaintiff's appeal from order of J. F. Monck, local judge at Hamilton, whereby he vacated the lis pendens of the plaintiffs, on various grounds. C. J. Holman, K. C., for the defendants, contra. It appearing that judgment in the action had not been obtained, judgment on this motion reserved to allow an application to be made in Weekly Court for judgment.

CROWN COUNCIL.

The regular weekly meeting of Crown Council, No. 333, Royal Templars of Temperance, held in Green's Hall, corner King and Catharine streets, on Monday evening, was largely attended. The officers for the ensuing term have been elected and installed, and representatives to the grand council, which meets in February, at Toronto, were chosen. This council has the honor of having been elected by the Order in the Dominion, and is very active in temperance and beneficent work. New members are being initiated weekly, and there is every indication that the membership of the council will be doubled in the near future.

GOING TO CALGARY.

First Methodist Church Epworth League and Mission Circle joined on Monday evening in a farewell to Miss Myra Bradshaw, who is about to leave for Calgary. On behalf of the two bodies, Mrs. Ross presented a life membership in the Circle to Miss Bradshaw and a number of those present spoke. The recipient expressed her appreciation and her regret at parting in suitable words. Refreshments were served. Miss Bradshaw was, until recently, a teacher in Trolley street school.

Seems Surprised

(Brantford Courier.)
A Toronto paper has in its index of news "Franklin Intelligence." What?

Mrs. Frank Morrison, daughter of Mr. Geo. Miller, of Ernestown, Ont., died on a train near Desoto, Mo., while on her way to Canada.

THE SANITARIUM.

Lovely Winter Scenery, But Not Many Visitors.

Rev. R. J. Treleven conducted divine service on January 2nd leaving some helpful thought for the new year.

Mr. Best, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. took charge of the meeting on the 9th, and gave an interesting account of the religious revival that has been and is now going on in the city.

Ponds of ice here and there on the grounds have afforded skating for those who are well enough to indulge in the sport. The recent snow storm has spoiled the skating, but has transformed the sanitarium into a veritable fairyland of beautiful scenery, and the resident photographers have been busy "snapping" the pretty views. Visitors to the sanitarium, who come by the new electric road, will find a path leading from it to the mountain top. This is the quickest way to reach the sanitarium, but it is not the easiest or safest yet, and the management is developing it only to the successful or to the expert Alpine climber. A number of people have come that way, but some have not ventured to make the return trip by the same route. It is hoped that a road will be made in the near future.

The numbers of the grand jury visited the sanitarium last week, and were conducted through the different buildings by the physician in charge.

Dr. A. W. Smith will be at the city hospital at 11 a. m. on Thursday and will examine all patients meeting him there at that hour.

The following donations have been received and thankfully acknowledged: Mr. Edward Cartwright, magazines, St. Elizabeth's Charter, 28 pillow slips, Geo. H. Armstrong, tin of wafers; Mrs. H. B. Zealand, magazines, visitors—Rev. R. J. Treleven, members of grand jury, Mrs. S. Lyle, Mr. Best.

DEFEND THE OLD BIBLE.

Bible League Holds First Conference in Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—The Toronto branch of the Bible League of North America opened their first Bible conference last night in the hall of the Y. M. C. A. In the absence of Rev. Dr. A. C. Carmichael, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, Rev. Dr. John Somerville, president, and a moderate sized audience was present. Two addresses in support of the traditional view of the Bible were given, one on "The Story of the Development of the Higher Criticism," by Rev. Dyon Hague, M. A., of London, and one on "The Defenders of the Faith," by Prof. Luther T. Townsend, D. D., of Boston University, in place of Mr. W. P. Hall of New York, absent through sickness at home. Both addresses were marked by very strong statements in favor of conservative theology, and were favorably received by the audience.

The sessions of the league will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock, when Prof. Wm. Jackson, D. D., of Montreal, and Rev. Daniel S. Gregory, D. D., of New York, Educational Secretary of the league, will give addresses in the Association Hall.

SIX YEARS OF SILENCE.

Dreadful Penalty of Solitude for American Murderers in Mexico.

Mexico City, Jan. 15.—William Mitchell, Dr. Charles S. Harle and Leslie E. Harburt, the three Americans whose death sentences for the murder of two other Americans for their life insurance imprisonment by the Governor of the State of Chihuahua, arrived here to-day under strong guard. They are being taken to Vera Cruz, where they will be confined in the fortress of San Juan de Ulos.

The dismal cells of this grim old castle are far down in the ground, and it is said that few men live to serve out their sentences when once placed within its walls. The three convicts are prohibited from uttering a word to any one during their term of confinement. This provision of the law applies to all long term convicts. They will be kept in solitary confinement during this time.
