

AMERICAN LADY CORSETS

Will Fit You Perfectly

American Lady Corsets are worn by thousands of ladies all over America. They stand for the final word in corsetry; producing to perfection fashion's demands for this season, namely, the modish low bust, the very long hip and back—in fact the uncorseted effect so sought after.

"American Lady" boning is very superior, made of specially selected material—flexible more or less to meet the demands of the various figures for which it is intended.

American Lady Hose Supporters are made of Para rubber thread webbing, giving the best possible wear.

We control "American Lady" Corsets for Charlotte town and guarantee them to give satisfaction.

(Continued from second page.) was seconded by A. A. McDonald. Mr. Richards, Leader of the Opposition, warmly supported the resolution. Mr. John A. Dawar highly eulogized Mr. Simpson, and expressed the opinion that no one in the House or outside of it could raise any objection to the action of the Government in paying Mr. Simpson's sessional indemnity. Mr. Dolan also supported the motion and added his tribute of praise. The House next resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider all matters relating to paupers. The Speaker took the chair and the report was adopted.

The Income amendment act was read a third time and passed. The Chancery amendment act was also read a third time and passed, so was the McGregor and McMillan act. Considerable good nature badinage was then indulged by the members until the House adjourned at 12 o'clock.

The House resumed at 2:30 p. m. Hon. Premier Matheson moved that the thanks of the Legislature be tendered the Hon. Charles Dalton for his generous donation of $20,000 for the establishment of a tuberculosis sanatorium, accompanied by an annuity of $1,000 for ten years. He said this was by far the best of any gift to public charity in this Province. "It was greatest both in its generosity and in its qualities. There were no conditions as to the class of patients to be received and treated. Hitherto we have been unable to take effective action for want of means; but this munificent donation had changed all that. It has been the custom in the Mother Country to tender the thanks of Parliament to those who have been successful in repelling by force of arms alien enemies; but here we are fighting a battle no less important; we are waging war against the enemy within our gates. The victories may not be so pronounced, but they will be none the less beneficial and enduring. Ours would be a grand victory in the domain of peace. The warfare we were engaged in was against a most deadly enemy to our people and to all peoples. Hon. Mr. Dalton by his munificent gift has shown a most worthy example for men of wealth to emulate."

Mr. Richards Leader of the Opposition in seconding the motion, said he heartily concurred in all that the Premier had said regarding the munificence of the gift of his honorable friend from Tignish. The dread disease in question, despite all that had been done by anti-tuberculosis societies and other means is making serious inroads among our people. He could conceive of no better way in which to spend one's wealth than in alleviating human suffering. He hoped Mr. Dalton would live many years to see the fruit of his generous gift.

Dr. Jenkins wished to express the thanks of the medical profession and the anti-tuberculosis society. He pointed out that not the least noticeable feature of the gift was the modesty of the donor. He thought this generous gift must necessarily have a most potent influence on those who might assist in philanthropic actions of this nature. He quoted statistics to show the beneficial effects of the Sanitarium in reducing the ratio of deaths from tuberculosis. Dr. Dowar supported what had already been said in commendation of the munificent donation of Hon. Mr. Dalton. Hon. J. A. McDonald in a few words supported the motion. The Speaker then put the motion and it was carried unanimously by a standing vote.

The Speaker in formally conveying the resolution to Mr. Dalton said that the thanks of parliament was one of the highest honors that could be conferred upon any person, and it had never been voted to any one unless it had been unquestionably well deserved. This was the only time, so far as he was aware from research of the records, that it had ever been voted by this parliament. This was the more significant when he remembered that this Legislature had been making laws before the nation to the south of us had proclaimed its independence, or the great revolution in France had first transformed that kingdom into a republic, that this Legislature was within a few years of being the oldest Legislature of British North America. The thanks of parliament had been generally reserved for those who made themselves conspicuous in brilliant achievement in war, but "Peace hath its victories no less renowned than war." Looking towards Mr. Dalton, who was standing up, the Speaker continued: "Your gift, Mr. Dalton, has placed you among the benefactors of a class suffering humanity and makes our hearts swell with pride and admiration. It reflects in many hearts the hope almost extinguished and brings joy and gladness to the homes of many heretofore companions with many dark forebodings and grim despair. It is well worthy of recognition and the highest honors which parliament can confer upon you. It is, therefore, my agreeable duty, in the name of and by the command of the Legislative Assembly to convey to you its unanimous thanks for your generous benevolence, as expressed in the unanimous resolution that has just been passed by the House. (Applause.)

Hon. Charles Dalton, on rising to reply, was received with loud applause, in which the audience heartily joined. Speaking with some emotion, he said he had been very deeply touched by the resolution and the very kind way in which the speakers had referred to his gift. He was glad to be in a position to do something to counteract the effects of this terrible disease. Looking over the statistics he noticed that out of 1,000 deaths on this island, 217 were due to consumption, and those who were carried off were mostly in the prime of life, when they should be strong, healthy citizens, and of value to the community. For himself, he felt that "of him to whom much was given much would be required." It was the duty of every man to assist in alleviating suffering so far as was within his power. He had been complimented for having made his gift without any stipulation or restriction as to the beneficiaries. He remembered that when, as a boy, he went to catch one of the first operations he learned was, "Who is your neighbor?" And the answer was "mankind of every description." (Applause.) He, therefore, felt in providing an institution of this kind, it should be made to extend to the nation, and that in providing relief and assistance they should not stop to inquire the different classes or creeds of the would-be-recipients. Proceeding, the hon. gentleman said that he had noticed that Dr. Friedman, a man of world-wide reputation, had come from Europe to New York in connection with the discovery he had made for the cure of tuberculosis. He would like to see the Medical Association of the Province, and that in providing relief and assistance they should not stop to inquire the different classes or creeds of the would-be-recipients. Federal Parliament.

The House of Commons on Wednesday night last 23rd inst., on a vote of 108 to 73, adopted the "closure." The last Liberal speaker, Dr. Michael Clark, of Red Deer, he who was named for violating the rules of debate during the blockade of the Naval Bill, sat down at a quarter after twelve. Speaker Sproule put the question, and the House divided, first on the Hazen motion. "That the question be now put," and secondly on the closure resolution itself.

The vote was the same on both divisions. There was no defection and the only members present who did not vote were paired. These were Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon. C. J. Doherty, Hon. Dr. Beland and Messrs. Morrison, Aikens and Buchanan. The absentees represented by these pairs were Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Hon. Chas. Marcell, Dr. Chabot and Messrs. McNutt, Turfitt and R. B. Bennett.

The end of the debate was, on the whole, a tame affair, the opposition obviously shrinking from incurring additional odium by a further display of rowdiness. The prime minister and the leader of the opposition were both loudly cheered on raising to vote but the divisions were otherwise quiet. Hon. Jacques Bureau, on rising, announced that he was casting "a vote against the suppression of freedom," a declaration which occasioned some laughter.

Col. H. H. McLean, of Queens-Sunbury, the Liberal who bolted on the naval bill, voted against the measure to stop the obstruction of that bill. All the other Liberals voted against amending the rules which Liberal ministers in the last campaign pledged their government to amend.

Premier Borden announced the legislative program for next day, the highways and agriculture bills and supply and the house adjourned.

At that stage the Conservative members broke into a cheer. The only immediate answer from the other side was given by Dr. Neely of Humboldt; this member who was evidently laboring under strong excitement had shouted "shame" once during the division. On hearing the Conservatives cheering he stood up shook his fist at the other side of the house, and shouted "cowards," and repeated it a dozen of times or more.

To silence him the Liberal whips started a cheer for Sir Wilfrid Laurier, after which the opposition members left the chamber singing "John Brown's Body," to an accompaniment of Conservative cheers and laughter.

The debate had been going on during the afternoon and evening, the Liberals doing the talking. At 5 o'clock Mr. Emmerson took the floor. He denied that there had been obstruction against the Naval Bill, or that in 1908 there had been constitutional resistance to a measure not in the interest of the country. Mr. Emmerson spoke till 8:45 o'clock. E. M. MacDonald followed, saying that he would rejoice to see the Senate amend the rules so as to insist on a months notice of any government legislation sent up from the Commons. The Conservatives would live to see closure enforced upon themselves. Sir Edmund Osler spoke briefly, saying that the House should get its business through in two months and that the country would uphold the closure. Dr. Michael Clark followed. Dr. Clark finished at 12:15 o'clock and the division took place. The first division was on Mr. Hazen's motion: "That the question be now put," it was carried by 108 to 73.

The engine and two of the cars remained on the track. Fortunately no one was hurt. Only a few passengers were on the train. A few days ago a somewhat similar accident occurred near Suffolk Station.
