On 279 Special Trains, C. G. Railways

Up to March 1st 757,400 Troops have travelled over Government Railways.

Thousands arrive each week at Halifax and are sent forward to Dispersal Areas.

Since the war began in 1914 up to March 1st, when S.S. Belgie disembarked her returned soldier passengers at Halifax 757,400 troops have been carried on special trains over the Canadian Government Railways.

The first train which carried troops over the Government Railways the year the war was declared was numbered one and all special troop trains to and from Halifax since that time have been numbered consecutively. The last train from the Belgie on Saturday was No. 1279. Each train averages about twelve cars with an average of 50 men to a car, which figures up a total of 767,400 men carried. Of course in addition to this thousands of soldiers have journeyed between Montreal and Halifax by regular trains during the past two years.

The movement of troops back to Canada is now approaching its greatest activity. Last Sunday 5000 arrived at Halifax by the transports Lapland and Belgie, and fifteen special trains were despatched westward inside of fourteen hours.

S. S. Megantic with soldiers and dependents arrived Wednesday and S.S. Adriatic is due Sunday. The movement of returning men is to be kept up actively all summer.

The process of disembarkation at Halifax is being carried on without a hitch, and there is a fine system of co-operation between the Military and the Railway officials.

"It Is Finished."

The evening light begins to glimmer again upon Calvary, the three crosses and the little group that waits for the end; and as it falls upon the Face of Christ the look of agony is gone. He has cried alike on God and man to have pity on tortured soul and parched body, and each has answered. Now, in that face, bleared by the sadness of the soul and the eyes, smitten with sorrow, a new look begins to rise, as those who stand by watch Him, until the whole face is radiant once more. The breaths come fuller and fuller, the body nailed by its extremities begins to lift itself higher and higher till strength is gained sufficient for Him not only to speak, but to utter a cry so loud and triumphant as to startle and amaze the officer who has watched many men die; but not as this Man dies. The cry peals out like the cry of a King in the moment of victory, and in an instant failure and labor and bitterness are behind Him forever. "It is finished!"

Christ's work then is "finished" on the Cross—finished as bread is finished from the mills and fire, that it may be eaten; as wine is finished after the stress and tramping of the wine-press—finished as a man's body is finished in the womb of his mother and brought forth with travail. It is finished for a new and glorious beginning. The enormous process which has crushed and mangled Him in His assumed nature begins effectively to carry on that same work of Redemption in the Human Nature of His Church.

And yet we, His friends, live for the most part as if He had never died. Compare the life of a cultured, fastidious pagan with the life of a cultivated, fastidious Christian. Draw the two from corresponding classes and set them side by side. Is there so enormous a difference? There are a few differences in the religious emblems of the two. The one has an Apollo; the other a Crucifix.

The one has an Egyptian goddess with her son in her arms; the other has the Immaculate Mother of God with her Holy Child. Their talk is different, their dresses, their houses—all those external matters that are wholly indifferent to the soul's life. But are their virtues so different, their outlook on eternity, their sorrow beside open graves, their hope behind new cradles? Even before Christ died children loved their parents and parents their children. Even before Christ died chastity was a virtue. Are we so advanced now in that purity of heart without which no man can see God? Even a Roman emperor once preached self-control and practiced it. Are our own houses any better models of the peace of brethren who dwell together in unity?

Did Christ finish His work merely in order that society might decay no further? God help us! As we look at what is called Christian society today it seems as if Christ had not even begun. Yet there is this vast river of grace pouring from Calvary, the river that ought to be making glad the City of God. Here is this enormous reservoir of grace bubbling up in every Sacrament, soaking the ground beneath our feet, freshening the air we breathe. And we still in our hateful, false humility talk as if perfection were a dream, and sanctity the privilege of those who see God in glory.

In Christ's name let us begin. For Christ has finished. —Mgr. Benson.

The Great Little Things

In Catholic enterprises one sometimes is saddened to observe how much failure comes and how much avoidable trouble is incurred by the disregard of the immensely important little things that make for secure success. We have a great cause and a secure hope, but it is the will of God that even His work should go forward with human helps and in ordinary ways. So all the little details that taken together build success must be watched over and attended to if we are to do all that our great causes require. Yet many a promising enterprise fails or falls short by reason of neglect of little things. Diligence in answering letters, accuracy in keeping accounts, system in work method of procedure—these things are sometimes so vexing and so trifling that one may be tempted to overlook and neglect them altogether in the intense enthusiasm of a great cause. But overlooked, they have their revenge and bring us to whole or partial failure.

Does Novel Reading Pay?

Whilst some of our Catholic people don't read at all, some others seem to devour everything that comes along. The one defect is as dangerous as the other. One is almost tempted by disgust to belong to the former class. The output of the daily press is something enormous, and much, perhaps most of it, isn't fit to be read. This applies, to a great extent, to the novels.

Here's a quotation from the American Cyclopaedia on the subject: "From a view of some of the best authors in the highest class of novel writers, it will be abundantly evident that the perusal of these works is more calculated to be prejudicial than advantageous, unless the mind is previously fortified with sound principles, and the passions and feelings are completely under the mastery of the judgment. Even then their claim must rest rather on the interest which they excite than on the instruction which they afford."

"Whoever draws his opinions of the world, of the manners, characters and pursuits of mankind from novels will enter on real life to great disadvantage; the personages of novels, especially of those which team from the modern press, either bear no resemblance to mankind, or that resemblance consists in such narrow peculiarity of feature as renders it rather an individual than a general picture."

"But the strongest and most undoubted objection to novels arises from the effects which the perusal of them produces on the mental faculties and the literary taste; during it the mind is nearly passive; a lounging, desultory habit of reading is acquired, so that when works are to be perused which require close and regular attention, and a judgment constantly on the alert to follow and comprehend the author's observations and arguments, the mind is unequal to the task. The literary taste will suffer equally if the reading is not confined to a very few select novels. Unless, therefore, the habits of close, active and vigorous attention are a very powerful and predominant nature, and the taste had been modelled to correctness and purity by long and regular discipline, novels ought to be avoided."

Kindly notice, dear reader, that the above quotation is not taken from a Catholic book or sermon! Some thirty years ago William D. Howells had this to say:

"It may be safely assumed that most of the novel-reading, which people fancy is an intellectual pastime is the emptiest dissipation, hardly more related to thought or the wholesome exercise of the mental faculties than opium-eating; in either case the brain is drugged, and left weaker and crazier by the debauch? If this may be called the negative result of the fiction-habit, the positive injury that most novels work is by no means so easily to be measured in the case of young men whose character they help so much to form or deform, and the women of all ages whom they keep so much in ignorance of the world they misrepresent."

The above quotation may seem extreme, but it comes from one who is eminent as a novelist!

PAIN ACROSS KIDNEYS

Was So Bad
Had To Go To Bed.

Women are the greatest sufferers from weak, sore, lame and aching backs, owing to the continual stooping, bending and lifting necessary to perform their household duties.

On the first sign of any weakness of the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken, and thus prevent serious kidney troubles which are sure to follow if the back be neglected.

Miss Gladys M. Buckler, Tatamagouche, N.S., writes—"I feel it my duty to let you know what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. I suffered for years with a sore back. I was so bad I had to take to my bed sometimes with the pain across my kidneys. I went to two different doctors; they treated me but I got very little relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for sore back, so sent for two boxes, and before I had the first one taken I felt a change. I cannot recommend your medicine enough."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUFFERED 5 YEARS WITH HEART TROUBLE.

Through one cause or other a large majority of people are troubled with some form of heart trouble, but do not know it. When the heart becomes affected there occurs a feeling of a choking sensation, the breath becomes so short it is hard to breathe and you feel as if you were swooning; you become weak and dizzy, the heart palpitates, throbs and beats irregularly.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened you will find that a few boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will strengthen and invigorate it so that it beats strong and regular, and the lost vitality is replaced by vigor and energy.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes—"I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk to the barn without resting. I do not get so short of breath. The doctors could not help me. My wife told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got a box and felt better; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son work the farm; and can truthfully say I feel like a different man. I can highly recommend your pills to anyone who has a weak heart."

Price 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

St. Teresa was the very model of a contemplative soul. Yet she could never make her meditation properly or retire satisfied to rest unless she had answered all the important correspondence of that day. So she would many a time put off more sacred things to answer a tedious letter of business and then seek God with the more fervor because she had attended to His business promptly and sedulously. Details are vexatious things. But there is a consecration and a glory that comes even to the most trivial and vexatious details when they are beautifully done for the love and glory of God. Those who are in command and those who serve in the work of God these distracted times will do well from day to day to increase in care and esteem for the immensely important little things.—The Queen's Work.

Venerable Neumann

The cause of the Venerable John Nepomucene Neumann, Bishop of Philadelphia, which had rested during the war, has been resumed by the Sacred Congregation of Rites. The Venerable Bishop Neumann was consecrated Bishop in 1852. He was a learned prelate, well versed in the sacred and natural sciences. He spoke fluently many Slavonic dialects and at least eight modern languages, besides Latin, Greek and Hebrew. When made Bishop he acquired the Celtic language in order to help his Irish immigrants.

"How's that new cook I saw you taking home the other night?"
"By George, I think we are going to please her."

W. H. O. Wilkinson Streetford says—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatic Pill Price 25 cents a box."

"Now, Rastus," said the Captain, "don't you want to make your will before you go over?"
"Will, nuthin' sah. De only will I see worrin' about is, will I come back?"
