DEFIES SECRETARY TO START BRANCH

Establishment of G. W. V. A. Command Would Be Difficult, Says Foster.

"Let him 'hop' to it," commented A. E. Foster, retiring secretary of the G. W. V. A., discussing today the report that J. Cunliffe was behind the movement to establish a new branch of that organization in the east end of the city under the name of Lord Ryng Command.

of the city under the name of Lord Byng Command.

"In my opinion he will experience difficulty in getting the branch command," he continued. "He will have to get permission first from Toronto before any charter can be issued to any group that desires to break away."

The secretary added that it was his belief that everything pertaining to a change of this nature should be left until after the annual Dominion convention of the G. W. The 41st annual conference of Association of Employed Officers of the Y. M. C. A. of North America was held at College Camp, Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, June 28 to July 1. Among the officials in charge of the conference were: Dr. J. Mott, international secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Dr. A. W. Beaven, Rochester; R. P. Kaighn, New York, chairman: Fletcher S. Brockman, president; Bishop Thomas Nicholson, Chicago, church representative, and L. Wilbur Messer.

The employed officers of the Y. M. C. A.; Dr. A. W. C. A. of North America present numbered 1,000, including 50 secretaries from Canadian associations. This was the first meeting of the employed officers since the close of the war. Reports presented showed that at no time has the association movement, both in North America and in Europe and Asia, grown so rapidly as during the past three years. The jury was said to be divided, nine for acquittal and three for conviction.

STORM CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE IN FLINT

Flint, Mich., July 6.—Heavy property loss was caused here late yesterday by a violent wind and rain storm, Streets and basements were flooded, many trees blown down, small buildings unroofed and wire communication demoralized. All traffic, including street car service, was at a standstill for several hours. A heavy fall of hail accompanied the storm, which broke the fact that only one-half of the alstreet car service, was at a standstill for several hours. Bolsheviki.

Although it is six days since Dr. Peter Macdonald officially retired as postmaster, the London office technically still lacks a successor to that office. Elevated to the position on July 1, Deputy Postmaster Duncan is to all intents and purposes postmaster, and as such is fulfilling the duties of the same.

It develops, however, that as yet he has not been properly sworn in. Superlintendent Ross has been expected daily in the city to administer the customary oath of office, but to date neither that official or any of his representatives have appeared. Despite the announcement appearing in the official bulletin of the department of trade and commerce at Ottawa a few weeks ago that a Japanese vice-consul, by the name of Y. Sati, would ment of trade and commerce as few weeks ago that a Japanese vice-consul, by the name of Y. Sati, would take up residence in this city, there is little likelihood that such an office will be opened in London, according to Gordon Philip of the local Chamber of Commerce. It is believed that the announcement had been made through an nouncement had been made through an error.

The report contained in the bulletin of the department was received very dubiously by the city officials and the officials of the Chamber of Commerce, as nothing had been heard previously of such an appointment. The officials, however, would have received such an office with gratification, because it was believed that a vice-consul could assist materially in building up trade relations between this city and firms in Japan.

Soon after the announcement had been made, G. R. Taggart, the American consul in this city, wrote to he Japanese consulate in Ottawa on behalf of the local officials, concerning the matter. The Japanese consul replied that he had heard nothing of such an appointment, and that no doubt some mistake had been made. Moreover he claimed that Y. Sati was not a Japanese anme.

As the result of this reply the offiese name.

As the result of this reply the officials of the Chamber of Commerce have no further hopes that such an office will be opened here.

Magistrate Decides To Fine Both Sparring Partners.

"I can lick any man on Hyman street, and that means you, Curtain," was the startling straight-from-the-shoulder challenge that Dan Curtain of Hyman Lane swore he received when he passed Joe Leonard's home on his way homeward last night.

This threat dazed Dan for a moment, but only for a moment, for Dan retorted in no uncertain tones: "If you mean me, I'm here!"

"There seems to be a regular pandemonium on this street," remarked the court. "What about this, Curtain?"

"I was defending myself, your worship."

"You apparently did not put up a good defence," stated Magistrate Graydon, looking hard at Dan's face, which resembled a cracked pane of glass.

Constable Agmon Barryman said that when he arrived Curtain was not ng anything, but Leonard was dis-doing anything, but Leonard was disorderly.

"What about this fight?" Curtain was asked again.

"It wasn't a fight; we were just rolling around a bit," replied Dan.

Joe, who looked a typical heavy-weight pugilist, was asked to explain his side of the matter.

"I was taking the cool air of the evening," Joe began eloquently. "They started it. When I was fighting with Curtain, his wife hit me a kick in the face. They're jealous of me, that's what they are. They hate to see me get along. They're like the dog in the manger. They won't let the horse eat hay and they can't eat it themselves."

This jealousy alibi refreshed the court's memory, for it brought to mind a similar occurrence some months ago when Joe said that he was going to shake the dust of the lane from his feet.

"I thought you were going to leave?" asserted the magistrate.

"I thought you were going to leave?" asserted the magistrate.
"So I will. I'm going to clear out of shack. I'm sick and tired of the whole affair," promised Joe.

Both gladiators took on a more sickly hue when Magistrate Graydon announced: "Ten dollars and costs or ten days."
