Last week the village of Granville Ferry mas addened by the United States. On the other hand if the treaty result in a general alliance of these two great Anglo-Saxon nations, its importance will overshadow even that synonym for international unity—the Triple Alliance. Any treaty between the United States and Great Britain is this critical point in their history must be regarded as of great import even if it be but a treaty for the settlement of money disputes as this is claimed to be by a considerable portion of the Canadian press. But this is evidently not the construction placed on the agreement by the nations of Europe, by whom it is being discussed on much broader liner, and secretary Olney is quoted as saying that "it is an alliance with Great Britain in support of the Monroe doctrine." This would mean a direct blow at Russia who proffered her services in the same cause, actuated no doubt more by her enmity for England than by her friendship for the Republic. If Russia regards the matter at all sectiously she will likely use all the influence she can direct towards preventing the ratification of the treaty by the United States Senate.

—A meeting of the ratepayers has been called for this evening to discuss matters incident upon incorporation, and it should be published for the services in the same cause, actuated no doubt more by her enmity for England than by the friendship for the Republic. called for this evening to discuss matters incident upon incorporation, and it should be entative one. The committee who have had the subject in hand for the past few weeks have not been idle, and it is not unlikely that each will furnish a separate report of his findings. While we have not looked over the accumulated data we will venture the opinion that the preponderance of the evidence will be in favor of incorporation. It cannot well be otherwise, since, in the several incorporated towns in the province, no effort has been made to repeal the act of incorporation. There may be fault finders in each, but it will be well to look closely into their objections and see if they are not actuated more by a petty personal grievance than by any failure in the general grievance than by any failure in the general grievance than by any failure in the general more of the given mechinery. It would ment to the stands the province of the given mechinery. While we have not working of the civic machinery. It would seem to us that the interests of Bridgetown can be better subserved by a local self-government, than by the municipal council, whose work must be distributed over the whole county. No ratepayer would have the hardihood to doubt the soundness of this argument if he were sure his taxes would not be augmented by the change. Just why incorporation should increase taxation to any extent, we can not determine. The matter of heavy street and sidewalk expenditures is not an argument, since if the majority of the ratepayers are satisfied with the existing state of things, their instructions of the existing state of things, their instructions of the existing state of the existing state of things, their instructions of the existing state of the existing state of things, their instructions of the existing state o tions to the Town Councillors to that effect could not but carry weight. If the ratepayers are not satisfied with the existing condition of the streets and side walks, they will have to pay for any improvement whether under civic or municipal government. In the matter of incorporation the case of Bridgetown is not parallelled by D.G.M., O. T. Daniels, last Monday cyening:

Isaac Shaw, N.G.; H. E. Reed, V.G.; O. P. Neily, Treas.; F. E. Cox, R.S.; L. P. Shaffner, P.S.

—The influence of the proposed apple shipping company is already making itself to carry apples from Halifax not rowns have had to incorporate and then incur the heavy expense of instituting these systems and have necessarily had to raise the rate of taxation. In nearly every case, however, the increased rate has been reduced as these enterprises have become thoroughly catablished, and the citizens enjoy an increase of privileges and protection tions to the Town Councillors to that effect without having to pay extra for it. If the friends of incorporation can show, to night, by the figures they have collected, that inorporation will not materially increase the burden of taxation, the matter should be carried forward with all possible dispatch, and a poll called to test the feeling of the people on the subject. The MONITOR will try and give a digest of the evidence collected by the committee next week, and in the meantime its columns are open for a fair dis-

The Council are also to be congratulated on the dispatch with which they transacted the business of the late session. In two days and a half they did as much, and as satisfactory work, as they did in a week in '95 and next session we may perhaps expect them to get nearer the standard adopted by the neighboring county of Kings where they do the work in one or two days that used formerly to take them a week.

We notice that the report of the Scott Act

We notice that the report of the Scott Act inspector does not show that any very aggressive campaign was carried on against liquor vendors last year, but this is probably, in part, the fault of the temperance people themselves. The Council has re appointed the inspector—they have done their part and have shown their sympathy with the temperance movement—and it now remains for the temperance workers and the inspector to make a satisfactory record for 1897.

The Council evidently entertains a very friendly feeling for the proposed Bridgetown and Victoria Beach railway scheme, and have sanctioned the enterprise by granting the necessary right of way. The next thing is for the corporators to procure their charter and press their subsidy claims with the Federal and Provincial governments.

The county has good reason to be proud of FRITZ-BALSOR.

it is officials. The Warden, Clerk and Conseil have certainly rendered efficient services in the discharge of Municipal work.

The trial of John E. Sullivan for the murder of the Dutchers last September, at Meadow Brook, near Monoton, is now on at Michard Olney, United States Secretary of State, a treaty of arbitration has been negotiated between the greatest nations of the old and new worlds. Whatever else it may mean, it must be regarded as a bond of peace between John Bull and Brother Jonathan, which, it is not unlikely, will be elastic enough to embrace the diplomatic features of a treaty of defence and offence. Whether it does, or does not, imply Britain's acceptance of a treaty of defence and offence. Whether it does, or does not, imply Britain's acceptance of the Monroe doctrine has not yet been made clear, but it must be drawn on lines very nearly parallel with the text of that doctrine, else so astute a diplomate as Mr. Olney would never have affixed his signature to the document. He knows well that his country is not prepared to stulify itself by a too hasty retraction of the principles involved in that bone of contention, and that any treaty of arbitration, especially with Great Britain, must recognize the position taken by the Republic else it will meet a swift and sure fate at the hands of the position taken by the Republic else it will meet a swift and sure fate at the hands of the case, and fire sure the decide and the way obliged to sacrifice a good cow a few days ago in order to procure funds.
