A Hard Nut to Crack
There has been a determined effort made for the past few years to produce something "Just as Good" as
GOLDEN SWEET MOLASSES
But all efforts have failed
GOLDEN SWEET is in a class by itself, and its quality is beyond competition, it is beautifully clear, free from sediment, and the Golden Sweet flavor, like Lea & Perrin's sauce, cannot be excelled.
GOLDEN SWEET is making new friends every day,

Mrs. McGibbon, of Fredericton, N. B., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. B. Baker, for a few weeks.
Miss Ella Palmer, accompanied by a lady friend, is spending her vacation at her home in Melvern West.
Mrs. Perry, of Wolfville, and daughter, Pauline, are visiting Mrs. J. P. Morse, and other friends, during this week.
Master Carl Masters, of Roxbury, Mass., is spending his vacation at the home of his uncle, Mr. John Masters, Melvern West.
Haying is well underway in this locality, the farmers being agreeably surprised to find the crop much heavier than they anticipated.
Mrs. C. Clark, of Malden, Mass., accompanied by friends from Granville Ferry, recently visited her mother, Mrs. Mary Reid, of this place.
Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, of Windsor, were recent guests of Mrs. Saunders' sister, Mrs. Ellyer Baker, who is spending the Summer at her Summer home here.
Among those who worshipped at the Baptist Church, here on Sabbath afternoon, were Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, of Bridgetown, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gates, of Middleton. The party came by auto.
Mr. Freeman Brown, who has for the past year been a student of the Lawrencetown High School, was successful in obtaining a "B" certificate. His friends tender congratulations.
Several of our Melvern young ladies are preparing to attend the Summer Sabbath School held at Berwick, at the close of the camp meeting, while the usual number will attend the Camp Meeting this year.
Our former teacher, Miss Daniel, has been engaged for the second term as Principal of the Melvern School, much to the satisfaction of all concerned; while Miss Winnifred Jacques, of Melvern, takes charge of the Primary Department. Doubtless, both young ladies will prove themselves efficient teachers, as one already has.

On Friday last, Mr. Kenneth McNeill, of the firm of E. F. McNeill & Sons, accompanied by Mrs. E. F. McNeill, Mrs. W. H. Pierce, and Miss Nan Pierce, motored to Granville Ferry, where they spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Whitman Plumb. Mrs. W. H. Pierce will remain a week or so with her daughter, Mrs. Plumb.
A meeting of the Raynor, Clark & Harlow Black Fox Co., was held here recently. We understand that several of our citizens have invested in shares and appear deeply interested in the scheme. Mr. B. I. The Caspian Sea
A great newspaper has been telling of a "dying sea," and what it means is that the Caspian Sea, if it is not drying up, is becoming in parts dangerously low for navigation. A professor who has been sent by the Russian Government to investigate the matter has reported that the supply of water flowing into the Caspian has gradually been lessening, and the level of the sea has been slowly declining for the past four years. Let us see what it is that is really happening.
Now, the Caspian, in common with all our seas and lakes and rivers, is a sort of partner of the sun. The sun causes the waters to evaporate into the air. At the right moment that vapour is condensed, and descends as snow or sleet, or, more commonly, as rain, eventually returning to the sea by river and stream. The air gives us back, in these forms, the same amount of water that the sun has lifted out of the sea; but, owing to winds and other causes, the redistribution does not exactly match the old. While the rainfall in one part of the world may increase, the rainfall in another part may show a corresponding decrease.
With its areas of 170,000 square miles, the Caspian is the largest inland sea or salt lake in the world. It receives the waters of the Volga, the greatest river in Europe, and of the rivers, Ural, Emba, Terek, Kura, and Atrek. Now, the rate at which the waters of the sea are evaporated is constant on the average; the heat of the sun causes a given quantity to turn to vapour and rise into the air every year.
The mean depth of the sea is maintained so long as the rivers carry down the quantity of water which they are accustomed to deliver. But during the last four years the supply from the Caspian's feeders has been below the average. The sea, spending more than its income, and so its surface has become unusually low. But four years is almost nothing in the life of seas and rivers, whose history is written in terms of millions of years. Ever since scientific records of the state of the Caspian have been kept, there have been these startling fluctuations in depth. We need not fear, therefore, that this grand sea is drying up. Time will bring a change in the conditions which govern the supply from the rivers, and the Caspian may be expected to receive full recompense for the water-vapour it gives up to the sun. For climates do not alter in a few years. We hear it said that the climate of the British Isles has altered, that we get none of the old-fashioned winters, for example. But Mr. J. A. Curtis, who has just retired after 45 years of experience at the Meteorological Office, tells us that there is no reliable evidence to support this view. The result of the most careful investigation shows that the climate is now substantially the same as it has been for two hundred years. Summers and Winters vary, but the results average the same. We shall get our old-fashioned Winters again, and wish them far enough, and the tide in the affairs of the weather which governs the supplies of rivers and seas will pay back to the Caspian the depth of water now owing to her.—Ex.

Lawrencetown
Aug. 3.
Prof. R. G. D. Richardson and wife are guests of W. C. McPherson.
Mrs. Rubie and daughter, of Winnipeg, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Heber Boland and other friends.
Mrs. Leslie Banks and Mrs. Corbett are with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Whitman. Her friends are anxious to hear of Mrs. Bank's recovery from a long, tedious illness.
Eric Freeman was successful in obtaining a "B" certificate at the recent examination. We have not heard from the others who attended the examinations in Bridgetown, but hope all were gratified with the results.
The proposed change in the mail route, as far as the Royal Delivery is concerned, is very distasteful, to say the least, to the owners of boxes. If the change is made, it will result in many boxes being withdrawn. People living in Lawrencetown, are not willing to have their mail addressed to Paradise, for no apparent reason.

Lawrencetown School Exhibition
The Lawrencetown School Exhibition will take place this year about the middle of September.
It is the wish of the teachers, officials, and parents, that this exhibition should be the best yet.
Much, however, will depend upon the active interest of pupils and parents. The work in the primary department will be excellent. The domestic Science in the girls' department will be far ahead of former years.
The Manual Training for boys is, we hope, progressing. A collection of models of woodwork has been received from Truro. These models may be copied by our boys. We hope that there may be much interest shown in the collections in woods, insects, plants and minerals.
Some new features mark this year. Prof. DeWolfe, the newly appointed inspector of School Gardens will be present and address the parents and pupils.
Dr. M. E. Armstrong, Mr. Vernon Leonard, Charles Strong, George B. McGill and Mrs. G. L. Pearson, have been invited as associate judges.
There are about forty garden plots planted; we hope to have a good show of poultry and calves.
Lawrencetown has taken another step forward in arranging for Medical inspection in our school. It is hoped that the President and Secretary will arrange to have the best of our exhibits shown at the County Exhibition.
The good work is progressing. Other schools in the County will hold an Exhibition this Autumn.

A MISTAKEN IDEA
There are some people who still resort to drugged pills or alcoholic syrups to overcome colds, nervousness or general debility, and who know that the pure, unadulterated nourishment in Scott's Emulsion is eminently better, but refrain from taking it because they fear it may lead to excessive fat or obesity.
This is a mistaken idea, because Scott's Emulsion first strengthens the body before making flesh. Its blood-forming properties aid nature to throw off sickness by building health from its very source, and flesh is formed only by its continued use. Avoid alcoholic substitutes for SCOTT'S.
