

it a more than passing notice. The town itself is very old, and much decayed. It once contained over 40,000 of a population—now there are not more than 10,000. But here it was that the Emperor Segismund convened the great council of 1414-18, to arrange the difficulties concerning the papal tiara, and to root out the Huss heresy. The council chamber is still in good

CASTLE OF HOHENTWIEL.
