SARATOGAS N.Y., July 9 .- The telephone people at Amsterdam state that a washout at Aiken, N.Y., three miles west of that place. has torn up 400 feet of track and cut off communication with the west. Whether the washout was caused by a cloud burst at Alken, or by the breaking of a dam at Johnstown, N.Y., as rumored, cannot be ascertained.

TRAINS DRIVEN BACK.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., July 9 .-- A cloud burst washed away the Central railroad track between Aikens and Tribes Hill stations, about five miles west of Amsterdam this afternoon causing another delay to all trains. A wrecked insight train which blocked all four tracks in the morning had just been cleared and delayed trains began to move both east amd west when some of them were caught by this mishap and a second blockade occurred more serious than the first. The west-bound limited and two other express trains, which left here about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, came back here between 7 and 8 o'clock and were sent west over the West Shore road.

TOBONTO, July 9.-Crop reports received from all parts of Ontario and a few points in western Quebec show that fall wheat will be more than an average crop. The spring wheat, barley and oats crops will be average ones. Peas are slightly below the average ; roote are average ; fruits almost a failure.

OTTAWA, July 9 .- The crops throughout the counties of Carleton, Prescott and Russell and Ostawa are in a flourishing condition at present, but fear is expressed that unless the present wet weather is followed by dry, warm weather, the grain crops will become lodged owing to the rapid growth, the heaviness of the grain and the weakness of the straw. The barley, rye and oat crops throughout the counties of Carleton and Prescott and Russell promise to be phenomenally large. here that three big dams have been washed away near Johnstown, N.Y., and that crowds of people got on a bridge to watch the flood and it was carried away, several people being drowned.

A complete prostration of telegraph wires makes it impossible to communicate with Johnstown at the present hour (10.30 p.m.) Every effort is being made hereabout to get definite information.

NINE BRIDGES WASHED AWAY.

TROY, N. Y., July 9.-[Midnight.]-A telephone from Johnstown says : The town is in total darkness and nine bridges were washed away. The electric light plant has been washed away ; also three skin mills at Gioversville. One body has been recovered. The water is three feet deep in the town of Fonds.

ASSUMING & TEBRIBLE ASPECT.

Rain is falling in terrents in Johnstown at midnight and the flood is assuming a terrible aspect. Mills and sheds are being carried rapidly away.

NO COMMUNICATION POSSIBLE.

July 10, 12.30 a.m.-A reporter who started on the 11 p.m. train from Albany to get facts about the storm near Fonda and Johnsstown has not been heard from since. Amsterdam telephones that there are no trains west of that point on account of the washout.

[Johnstown is the county seat of Fulton county, New York, and is situated on the line of the Fonds, Johnstown & Gloversville regiver. It is on the left bank of a branch of the Mohawk river, and is a flourishing manufacturing town, with a population of nearly 7,000. It is four miles from Fonds, also reported under water, which is on the north bank of the Mohawk, and in an exceedingly dangerous position. The Mehawk, in fact, along the south bank of which runs the Delaware & Hudson Canal, frequently overflows its banks, but nothing like the present has been known for some years. Alken and Tribe's Hill, as well as Amsterdam, are all situated within fifteen miles of Johnstewn, are all on the river, and probably are all more or less damaged by the flood. The scene of the disaster is about fifty miles the misfortune in jail by a visit from his six northwest of Albany.]

Doctors are Hard to Kill.

New YORK, July 9.-Dr. John W. Waters committed suicide Sunday evening at his lodging house in College Place. The record of his forty-eight-hour experiment with poison is contained in a letter found yesterday in his room. Dr. Waters was 60 year old and was at one time the leading physician of Carson Oity, Nevada, where he had a fine to New York and after losing his money in Wall street became reduced in circumstances, and finally concluded that life was not worth the living. In a letter to A Wonderful Photographic Inven-Dr. Wells, Dr. Waters gives a detailed account of his sensation after he had swallowed poison enough to kill three men, He intended that it should be a contribution to medical science. The dector took 58 grains of merphine and several doses of cocaine. For more than thirty-six hours he endured the agony the poison caused him. Although his hand trembled so much that much of his writing is almost illegible, he cooly jotted down his observations on the effects of the poison.

It falled to kill him and he put and end to the terrible tragedy with two shots from a revolver.

Crop prospects have been materially improving during the past week, and in some places a full yield of wheat is now expected.

Since the discovery of photography, the greatest ingenuity has been displayed in the improvement of processes and the elaboration of appliances. The development of photo-graphy and its application to an everincreasing range of subjects have been phenomenal. In this development and application American ingenuity has been foremost. We have to announce now a discovery and invention by Mr. George Eastman, of Rochester, N.Y., which is the most important since the discovery of photography steelf. In recent years some progress has been made in dispensing with the glass plate in out-door photography. A carefully-prepared paper has been coated with gelatine emulsion and wound upon rollers in a camera. This was but a partial solution of the problem, for the paper is of necessity opaque, and to secure the best recults it was necessary to strip the delicate film from the paper and attach it to glass, or some other transparent support. This was a tedious process. The discovery and invention by Mr. Eastman obviate every difficulty. He has succeeded in producing a strong and perfectly transparent support, of great flexibility and extreme thinness, which can be wound upon rollers, te be exposed, developed and printed like ordinary glass negatives. The transparent suppert is a medification of celluloid, specially prepared by a process invented by Mr. East-man. The celluleid product is but feur ensthousandths of an inch in thickness, and the geltaine film upon it is one two-thousandthe of an inch in thickness. It will thus be seen that a great magazine of photographic material can be carried in a very small space and with no incenvenience, on account of weight. As a scientific discovery the new transparent support for sensitive gelatine ceived the formal approval of the Executive must take first rank.
