BURNABY MUNICIPALITY.

The municipality of Burnaby organized in 1892, occupies an area of over 21,000 acres. The district lies between New Westminster and Vancouver. It is bounded on the south by New Westminster and its other points by the Fraser River, Burrard Inlet, Hastings and South Vancouver. The population, which is partly residential, partly engaged in farming, fruit growing and logging, and the electric railway service numbers over 300.

The New Westminster and Vancouver Electric Railway and the C. P. R. run through Burnaby. The formers power house and works are within the municipality. The land in general is heavily timbered, with the exception of a tract of low ground on the Fraser, is mainly wild, but when cleared and cultivated grows excellent fruit and vegetables, and also affords scope for successful dairying.

Burnaby is provided with good roads. The municipal assessment exceeds $1,300,000, the bonded indebtedness amounting to $35,000. The municipality is governed by a Reeve, with a council of five members.
