

Sable turned around and gave him a sharp blow on the head with the crooked stick. Then he turned and ran away as fast as he could. The Snake followed him, and as Sable ran past the hemlock tree, the Snake began to crawl over it.

At once Weasel jumped up and seized him. Then pulling out his knife, he killed him and cut him into pieces. After that he and Sable went back to the Snake's wigwam, and taking the kettle from the fire, they found that the maple sap had been turned into sugar, so they sat down and had a feast.