Kuntz's Old German Lager

"Yes! Kuntz's Old German Lager is my choice. There's nothing to match that 'Old German' flavor, you know. And just watch how it sparkles when I pour it out. See the beautiful foam, too. You can't beat it. Kuntz's Old German has the class, alright. And it's put in Peacock Green bottles to prevent it from deteriorating when exposed to light. Better order a bottle yourself, old man."

Kuntz's OLD GERMAN LAGER

To make certain of getting Kuntz's Old German, be sure the "Old German" name is on the label.

SAFE PRIMED READY FOR BIG EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Can. Press.)—Adams Express Co. employees at Greenport, L. I., took their books and waybills with fear and trembling to a coal bin 50 yards away from the office today and there transacted the day's business. The unexpected exodus from the office was caused by a visit of burglars during the night. After blowing the railroad safe and forcing open a mail car, the burglars wired the express safe, charged it with nitroglycerine and left it. It was primed for an explosion when the clerks reported for duty this morning.

"Bonesetter" Reese Doesn't Know Names Of Baseball Players He Has Attended

About every baseball fan in the country has heard of "Bonesetter" Reese, the one big man who cures baseball players of bun muscles and broken bones. Reese in the past ten or fifteen years has cured more ball players than all the doctors in the country, yet this same Reese does not know any of the men by name.

Dr. Reese repaired the injured arms and legs of hundreds of major league ball players. Still he doesn't believe that the public, especially the baseball public, is interested.

"I know very few ball players," said Dr. Reese recently. "While it is true enough that I have treated hundreds of them, I rarely ask a player's name. In fact, I haven't asked a man his name since 1908. That's a long time, you know. I have been to but one baseball game in four years. That was this spring, when I attended the opening game in Pittsburgh. I went there at the earnest request of Barney Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburgh club."

"He wanted me to be there because I had treated Hans Wagner but a short time before. And, by the way, Hans is far from being 'all in' as a major league player. His leg is just as strong as ever it was and there is no reason—unless the great player succumbs to the criticism of the masses—why Hans should not continue in the game for some years. His muscles show no sign of exhaustion, but there is a grave fear in my mind that Hans will sink before the adverse comment of the newspapers."

GOTHAM READY TO BUILD GIANT DOCK

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(Can. Press.)—Aroused by port improvements elsewhere, particularly in Boston, the dock department of New York has decided upon building a drydock big enough to accommodate the "forthcoming 1000 foot ship."

The dock will be located on the south Brooklyn waterfront, on land that has been owned by the city for seven years without bringing any return. The project will cost about $2,500,000, and the dock department is confident that it will prove to be a self-sustaining municipal enterprise. When the space is not used as a drydock it will be convertible by simply flooding it into a berthing space for general shipping.
