

CLOSING OF ROTHESAY COLLEGIATE SCHOOL

The fact that we usually have a number taking the McGill examination does not mean that all, if successful, will go up to McGill. Last year, for instance, we had seven boys who passed this examination; of these, three went to McGill, three to King's College, while one returned to us for another year before going on to college.

Here I should like to repeat what I said in my report in a former year, viz.: that the standard not only for entrance to the universities, but in the courses themselves is continually being raised. Most of the universities nowadays do not want freshmen to be under eighteen years of age, certainly not under seventeen, so it is not fair to ask us to prepare boys of sixteen, or even younger, for entrance at that age; nor is it fair to the boys themselves, who, even though they pass their matriculation, so often come to grief during their college course simply because they were not old enough when they went up.

The general work of the school has been satisfactory. Again I have to thank the Rev. A. W. Daniel for acting as examiner in the divinity subjects. In the other subjects the examinations were conducted by the masters of the school.

Recreation

In athletics we had about an average year. In football we started the season with a weak team, but one which improved greatly as the season progressed. Our hockey team was severely handicapped by the mild winter; there was only about a fortnight in all when we could use our open air rink. In the sports we lost for the second time in the interscholastic meet. This event was held for the second time in succession on our grounds, and though the events were not nearly so good as last year, yet we had a very successful and pleasant meet.

This year we inaugurated what will, I hope, become an annual event, a contest in athletic sports with the Collegiate School, Windsor. For the first meet we went to Windsor, next year they will come here. We won the first contest by the narrow margin of four points. The pleasure of winning was more than equalled by that afforded us by our entertainment in Windsor and by all the circumstances, except the weather, which attended the meet. We came home impressed by the fact that the boys of the Collegiate School, Windsor, are good sportsmen, whom it would be a pleasure to meet in any branch of athletics.

Our Cadet Corps was inspected on June 10 by Major Oulick, who commended its work very highly and congratulated the officers on the efficiency displayed by the corps in marching and drill. In this connection I ought to mention that a great deal of the success we attained was, of course, due to the taking of our ground, instructor, Col. Sgt. Doer, and also of Cadet Leader Hunter.

Joe P. Robertson very kindly presented us this year with instruments for a life and drum band and we at once started in to practice banding. If at times the noise of the piping was a trifle weak and faltering, yet this was hidden by the vigor with which the drummers wielded their sticks at the critical moments. Certainly the drums greatly improved the marching of the corps. Owing to unfavorable weather we were able to send only two shooting teams to practice on the St. John rifle ranges. We expect, nevertheless, to send a team to Sussex in August to compete for the cadet trophy.

Changes in the Staff

During the year we incurred the loss of one member of our teaching staff, F. S. Morrison, who resigned in order to take the position of director of manual training in the St. John schools. We felt Mr. Morrison's loss very keenly; and this not only in his special department of manual training, but also in the general life and activities of the school as well. We were, however, able to secure the services of B. B. Barnes, who came to us with the experience of several years of teaching and who has already won the confidence of all.

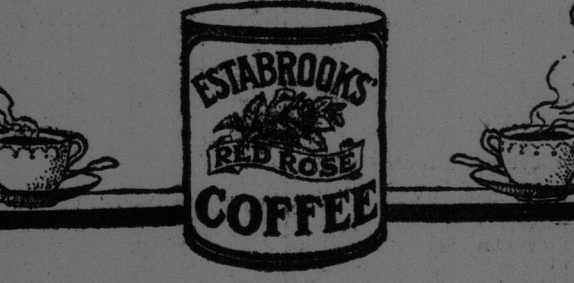

H. L. E. Adams, who has been a member of the staff for the past two years, has resigned his position. The vacancy caused by Mr. Adams' departure has been filled by the appointment of J. H. R. Harley, B. A., who recently graduated from King's college with first class honors.

Mrs. A. B. Pipes, better known to us all as Mrs. Foster, who, during the three years that she was mistress, won the esteem and affection of all the boys, left us just after Christmas. The one thing that could be said in her favor was that she happened in the appointment of Miss P. St. J. Beard as her successor. Miss Beard was no stranger to us when

Fragrance

WHEN you open a tin of Red Rose Coffee, you will surely be pleased with its unusual fragrance, and you will note particularly the small, even grains, free of the yellow flake or chaff which you have always been accustomed to see in the ground coffee you have used. This is the result of our new crushing process. The small grains settle quickly, so the coffee is never muddy, but always bright and clear. You will be convinced before you taste it, that it is a coffee of unusual quality.

Joe Jeannette, Who Claims the Title, Not Full Blooded Negro

By TOM ANDREWS

Who will succeed to the heavy-weight crown now that Luther McCarty has passed away and Jack Johnson has been barred in more ways than one? Dan McKetrick, manager of Joe Jeannette, undertakes to answer the question, and of course places his man—Jeannette—at the head of the list. There is no doubt about the legitimate claim of McKetrick for his man, but Sam Langford, too, has a legitimate claim, but of the two there are many who agree that Jeannette stands ahead of Samuel.

Then there is Gunboat Smith, who, after his defeat of Bombardier Wells, the British champion, was the toast of the hour. The late Luther McCarty, and would have been matched with him, had Luther lived, for the title—that is, the white title. Jess Willard will have to wipe his nose with a towel before he can get into the running again.

Talking about Jeannette recalls to my mind a story I heard in New York last fall when I attended the Wells-Kennedy fight. It was regarding Joe's parentage. Joe has the features of a Spaniard more than a negro and investigation brought to light the fact that he is really not a full-blooded negro. His mother was a white woman of German origin and his father, according to a physician who knew him well, said he was partly Arab. In fact, he is more than half white.

McKendrick says it is probably this mixture that makes Joe such a fine fellow and such a home body.

The feeling against colored boxers caused by Jack Johnson's actions will be eliminated in the case of Jeannette. There is no doubt at all about Jeannette's claim to recognition among the top-notch heavy weights. He was offered a match with Johnson in Paris, the latter to receive $80,000 for the fight, but he declined, although Johnson was offered a match in Australia with Jeannette he preferred to have others. In New York city Joe Jeannette is always sure of a hearty welcome from the fans when he steps into the ring, whether for a contest, or simply to show himself. He is a man of the people, and if actions count for anything he is certainly deserving of recognition.

she came; we knew her and felt sure that under her administration we should all be well and happy. We have not been disappointed.

Plans for Future

I will close with a few words about our plans for the future. This year we are launching out again in the building line and by the opening of next term we expect to have completed new and greatly improved kitchen and offices to replace the old ones. We are also planning for the growth of the school as the new addition will be half a story higher than the old one which it replaces; also early in January we expect to have finished a large extension replacing the old wing of the North House, giving us space for twenty-two more boys. The whole North House will be considerably remodelled and we shall have a larger reading room and library, while the domestic arrangements will be brought thoroughly up to date. Joe this, with the painting of all the buildings, will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. Can the expenditure of all this money be justified? I believe it can, for the growth of the school has been steady. For the past two years we have had all the time the school has been expanding and standing still. That we should not be content to stand still at the present time is what I firmly believe, and this for several reasons, one of which at least is a very practical one.

We have at present school-room and dining-room accommodation for over twenty more boys than we have lodging accommodation for; consequently it seems a wise thing to do to bring up our lodging accommodation to a level with these; moreover we want everything here to be in every respect first class and up to date and these additions will enable us to make the desired alterations.

Ever since I came to Rothesay, now about five years ago, I have been planning these additions and alterations, which, now I am happy to be able to say, are likely shortly to be accomplished, so, as far as I am concerned, this is no hastily conceived plan; moreover a recent visit to certain of the best of American schools, where I carefully observed their arrangement and equipment, convinced me that we have planned for our alterations on the right lines.

I don't believe much in boom tactics for anything, least of all for a school, but I confess I should like to see among the friends of the school, particularly among the old boys a good deal more of active work on behalf of their school. The Anglican church is not making any money out of this institution, in fact out of certain funds which are fortunately available for paying for improvements and additions, the church is putting a great deal of money into this school from which there is practically no prospect of getting any monetary return; she is doing it because she believes in the kind of training which can be given in a school of this sort and she is doing it for the benefit of the community, because there is equal opportunity for the members of all denominations to benefit by the money which she is putting into this place.

It seems to me therefore, that we might rightly expect a little more active support from the immediate community. Outside our clientele is rapidly growing and I have no doubt that, with the advantages which we have here to offer, we could eventually fill the vacancies

NOTED WAR CORRESPONDENT A SUICIDE IN NEW YORK

Angus Hamilton Was on Lecturing Tour and it proved a Failure

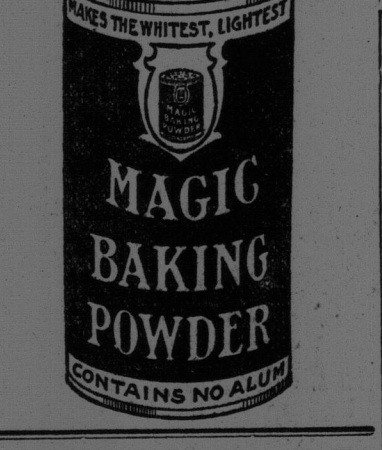

Angus Hamilton, war correspondent and lecturer, committed suicide in New York on Saturday night in his room in the Hotel St. Louis, West Thirty-second street, by cutting his throat with a razor. His lecture tour had not been a financial success.

Mr. Hamilton arrived in New York from London on February 18 to lecture on the Balkan war, in which he had been correspondent for the Central News. He was at the Hotel Astor until two weeks ago, when he moved to the St. Louis. It was said at the hotel that he had not been in the room since that time, devoted himself chiefly to his account, and that this was called to his attention by the management.

When a maid went to the room on Saturday morning the door was locked. There was no answer to repeated rapping and a bellboy finally got into the room by a window ledge and a fire escape. The body was found on the floor of the bathroom in front of a mirror. He was a son of the late Captain John Angus Lushington Hamilton. His mother is now the wife of Sir Arthur Hamilton, a playwright. He was educated at Cheltenham College and in England and France, and after doing newspaper work in England went to New York and for a time was a reporter on The Evening Sun. He returned to London, and since that time devoted himself chiefly to work as a war correspondent and special correspondent for various London papers. He was in the siege of Mafeking in 1899-1900, the Boer uprising in 1900-1902, the Balkan in 1903, the Russo-Japanese war in 1904-1905, the Armenian troubles in 1911-1912 and the recent Balkan war. His work as special correspondent included trips to America, Australia, the Far East and Central Asia. In 1910-1911 he was editor of the South China Morning Post.

Mr. Hamilton received South African, Somaliand, China and Russo-Japanese war medals, was invited to read papers at various times before several geographical societies, and in 1904 was commanded to private audience with King Edward at Buckingham Palace. His published books include: "The Siege of Mafeking," "Korea," "Map of Korea," "The Oxus River," "Afghanistan," "Problems of the Middle East," "Somaliand," "In Abor Jungles," published last year.

He was married in 1906 to Helen Frances, daughter of the late George Stiles Reilly. She survives him.

Steel and Shipbuilding

The mayor and city commissioners met Premier Fleury and members of the local government yesterday to discuss measures to encourage the establishment of a steel shipbuilding plant here. In addition to discussing the proposition of the Norton Griffiths Company, asking for a guarantee of about $60,000 a year from the province, city and county, they talked of inviting representatives of various shipbuilding firms in Great Britain to come here and look over the situation with a view to starting plants here.

Arrangements are being completed to have a trout hatchery established near St. John, the site chosen being Little River dam at $150 per annum.

All the Corns

In America Could be Ended This Week

If all people used what millions are using, there would be no corns next week. Every corn would be treated at once with a little Blue-Jay plaster.

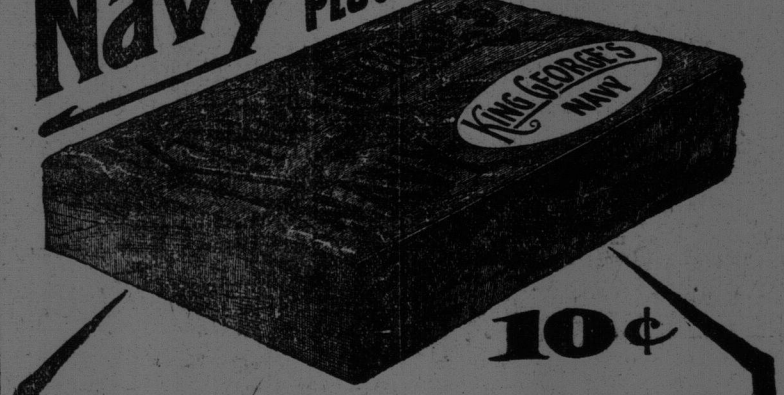

The pain would stop instantly. Then the B & B wax would gently loosen each corn. In 48 hours all the corns would come out.

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn. B stops the pain and keeps the wax from spreading. C wraps around the toe. It is guaranteed to be comfortable. D is rubber adhesive to fasten C's plaster on.

Health and Beauty Advice

By MRS. MAE MARTIN

Ratie: I advise you to use this formula for hair-toning because to my personal knowledge it does more for the hair and scalp than anything else and is easy to make. Into 1/2 pint alcohol pour 1 ounce quinine and add 1/2 pint water. This quinine tonic quickly stops the itching and cures the dandruff and is soothing to a sore or tender scalp. The regular use of this inexpensive tonic corrects dry, scaly conditions or excessive oiliness, because it makes the scalp and hair-scales healthy; and to dull, brittle hair will give a brilliant and softness, as well as restore the former color. For best results it is well to shampoo with cantrox. (See answer to "Jella").

Lydia: Yes, rubbing pyroxin on eyebrows will induce them to grow thick and glossy. Apply pyroxin to hair-roots with thumb and forefinger and they will grow long, silky and curly. This treatment is unailing, but be careful not to get any pyroxin where hair is not wanted.

Mabel P.: A thick paste made of delatone and water and applied to those hairs for 2 or 3 minutes will entirely dissolve them. After the delatone is removed the skin should be washed and dried. This is quick, harmless and in no way mars the delicate complexion. You must, however, be sure it is delatone you get.

Bertha: Yes, exercise and dieting sometimes reduce your weight. An easier and better way is to dissolve the unnecessary fat-tissues with the aid of the parrotis treatment. This reducer is made by adding 4 ounces parrotis to 1 1/2 pints hot water. When it cools, take one tablespoonful three times each day. Keep up the parrotis treatment regularly and in a short while you will have gotten rid of the annoying fat and your figure will be gracefully plump and rightly proportioned and the skin will be tight and smooth.

Laura: Your dull eyes will take on a delightful sparkle and expression when 2 or 3 drops of a cyrtos tonic are put in them daily for awhile. It is an old-fashioned and very economical remedy which does a benefit to the burning and relieves the aching after one or two applications. It is simply fine for granulated lids. To prepare, dissolve in one ounce cyrtos in 1 pint cold, clear water and it is ready. It is absolutely harmless under all conditions.

Leila: In a case like yours where the
