TRORNE. about the same as last year, the places of those vessels which have been put out of commission within the past twelve months from expiration of the cruises or for other causes, having been supplied by commissioning and sending to sea a corresponding number of others.

The list will show a force slightly decreased in numbers by the sale of some useless vessels, which were, while we retained them, only a source of expense, and it is somewhat weakened also in strength by the condemnation and laying up of several of our white oak cruisers which have reached the limit of their cruising life, and can no longer be used with safety on the seas. Many of the ships now on the Navy list, and which serve to swell the number to the figures above given, are far from being such as are really needed, and their true condition, which has been often officially represented to Congress, can be fully understood and appreciated by reference to the reports of the Bureaus which are herewith submitted.

In the meanwhile, however, we have been engaged in completely repairing six of our live-oak cruising ships which, are now in various stages of forwardness at the several navy yards. These are all of moderate size, and none of them sufficiently advanced to be of present use, but they are adapted to the wants of our cruising navy, and will in a few months add materially to its strength and efficiency. The eight new sloops of war authorized by the last Congress are all in process of building—one-half at the various navy-pards, three under contract in private yards, and the remaining one under private contract in the Navy Yard at Kittery. S. quest on those killed by the awful boiler explosion at Harlem will do some good, if is enforced by the arrest and punishment of the contractors and engineer. Under present conditions of life, as we have many times pointed out, there is much more danger to life and property from carelessness than from design, and we can not live in even moderate security unless criminality is imputed, and its punishment awarded to those who accept the dangerous responsibilities of steam and other explosives, and betray the trust. If the law is not sufficient to cover this ground, common sense detates that it should be amended accordingly. MAPLE HILL. The building of those ships, with their engines and machinery, is progressing rapidly, and the work, widely distributed at more than a dozen naval stations and private establishments, is contributing to the remunerative employment of several thousand workmen, and the maintenance of a very large number of persons dependent upon their labor for support and education. It is not without gratification that I am able to report that, besides the great value and importance of this work to the service, we have also been able to utilize the liberality of Congress as to contribute materality of Congress as to contribute materality of the business interests of the country and to the support and comfort of many producing and dependent peope. The estimates for military purposes for the year ending June 30, 1874, were $33,-828,378.78. The estimates for the same purpose torthe year ending June 30, 1875, are $34,410,722.89.

It is very difficult, under existing laws, to supply the Army with field musicians, two off which are allowed to each company. As this is an essential part of the military establishment, better facilities for obtaining musicians should be afforded, by the passage of an act to authorize the outlay worth, when finished, what it cost.
