

the two holidays? Saturday is a busy day for you must be pretty tired for you have had a strenuous session and from all accounts there is no more of a holiday before you. Mrs has come over with your letter this afternoon. I promised her I would write you when she did but we had a minute. We had Mrs Mackenzie hair with us a couple of weeks ago. The hair was preening for her they were both so interested in the pictures of Laurier's stone and in everything about you.
Did you know the brother of Mrs Stork's has accepted the call to our church here so he
