A WOMAN'S LOVE.

A smiling angel sitting high in glory
Heard this shrill wail ring out from purgatory:
"Have mercy, mighty angel; hear my story!"

"I loved, and, blithely with passionate love, I fell,
Low, brought me down to death and death to hell,
For God is just, and death for sin is well."

"I do not rage against his high decree,
Nor for myself do ask that grace shall be,
But for my love on earth who mourns for me."

"Great Spirit, let me see my love again
And comfort him one hour, and I will gain
To pay a thousand years of fire and pain."

Then said the pitying angel: "Nay! Repeat
That wail woe! Look! The dial finger's bent
Down to the last hour of thy punishment!"

But still she wailed: "I pray thee, let me go!
I cannot rise to peace and leave him so!
Oh, let me soothe him in his bitter woe!"

The brass gates ground suddenly ajar,
And upward, joyous, like a rising star,
She rose and vanished in the ether far.

But soon down the dying sunset sailing,
And like a wounded bird her pinions trailing,
She fluttered back, with broken hearted wailing.

She sobbed: "I found him by the summer sea,
Reclined, his head upon a maiden's knee,
She curled his hair and kissed him. 'Woe is me!'"

She wept: "Now let my punishment begin!
I have been fond and foolish. Let me sin
To expiate my sorrow and my sin."

The angel answered: "Nay, and send; go higher!
To be decreed in your true heart's desire
Was bitterer than a thousand years of fire!"

DYNAMITE AND MINERS.

Long Immunity From Accident Results in Contempt of Danger.

"After a miner had handled dynamite for eight or ten years without a serious mishap it is a good idea to put him to doing something else about the works," said a gentleman of this city who has had a great deal of experience with high explosives. "The chances are a hundred to one that his long immunity from accident has given him such a contempt for danger that he is an unconscious menace to everybody on the premises. He will do things that not only imperil his own life, but the lives of all his comrades."

To give you an illustration, once I had an old Cornishman at work at a mine in which I was interested and had entrusted him with a general supervision of all the blasting. He had been handling dynamite for twenty years or more and was justly regarded as an expert. During that entire period he had never had an accident worth speaking of, and by degrees the care and vigilance that were responsible for his excellent record had worn away until he was beginning to entertain the delusion, common to old hands, that the danger of the stuff was very much exaggerated.

"One day I was passing through a cut where some blasting had been going on and noticed the old Cornishman hammering a drill into what seemed to be a boring in the rock. I asked him what he was doing, and he told me coolly there was a cartridge in the hole that had failed to explode and he was 'just knockin' out the tamper' to re-prime it. I was horrified, for at every blow he was liable to explode the dynamite, and I ordered him sternly to stop and never repeat such a performance. The proper method would have been to have drilled a new hole near by and exploded the first charge with a second blast. He obeyed sullenly, grumbling to himself, and less than a month afterward was blown up while doing exactly the same thing. He lost his left arm at the shoulder, his left eye and part of his left ear. He also lost his contempt for dynamite, and when he finally emerged from the hospital I gave him a more scrupulously careful employee than he was from that time on. It seems a brutal thing to say, but there is nothing that does an old dynamite hand as much good as to get blown up once or twice."

Parental Economy.

"Papa," said Dicky, "all the other boys are going to have torpedoes or firecrackers or something for the Fourth of July. Can't I have anything at all?"

"Dicky," said Mr. Stinley, beckoning mysteriously, "come with me, and I'll show you something."

He took him out to the summer kitchen and showed him a large package, neatly folded and tied with a string. "There," he said, "are all the paper bags that have been brought into the house for a whole year from grocery stores and other places. I have had your mother save them for you. Every one of them will make as much noise as a firecracker if you fill it with air and pop it right."

It was not exactly what Dicky had set his heart on, but it was all the Fourth of July he got.

Willing to Take Chances.
"So you're going to marry Mike?" said the minister indignantly.

"Yes, minister."

"Are you sure you are not making a mistake?"

"Well," returned the cook thoughtfully, "he's not the best man in the world, to be sure, but if I have him go how I've been thinkin' about it. I don't like to be like him right now, but I suppose it will be the usual programme. I'll imagine the fortune and some one else will realize it."

The Usual Way.
"Do you expect to realize a fortune from your latest invention?" asked the capitalist.

"No," said the inventor. "I don't really expect to. I had some hopes, but I suppose it will be the usual programme. I'll imagine the fortune and some one else will realize it."

ONLY ONE ESCAPE.

A man may break away from prison but he cannot get away from the torture of rheumatism until he takes Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. It is the only reliable remedy on the market. Mr. Charles H. Clarke, Kingston, Ont., who for fifteen years in succession held the civic street watering contract could not put on his boots or walk for several weeks. He tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure, and three bottles, with the Climax Iron Tonic Pills, completely cured him. This great blood purifier is put up in bottles containing thirty days treatment. A SALE OF WARTS.

One Juvenile Transaction That Seemed to Confirm a Theory.

"This theory," said the traveling man, "that warts will go away when you stop thinking about them may have something in it, and I am inclined to have faith in it. I know from actual observation that warts can be transferred and will give you the case in point."

"I was buying a newspaper when I noticed that the hands of the newsboy were covered with warts. His stand was within a block of my house, but I am away so much the little fellow did not know me by name. I said to him:—

"You should get some one to charm away those warts; that being the method of getting rid of them when I was a boy."

"They ain't mine now," he said. "I sold them last week to Teddie Stearns, and they'll all go to him."

"Now, Teddie Stearns is my own boy, and I did not like to think of his smooth, chubby hands being disfigured with warts, and we did not live in a wart atmosphere. They belong more exclusively to the barefoot boy with check of tan conditions. I had been such myself. When I went home, I called my boy to me and looked with some anxiety at his hands. They were as clean and white as a girl's."

"What is it, papa?" he asked curiously.

"I am looking for warts," "Oh," he drew a long, delighted breath, "there ain't any yet, but they're sure to come, for I bought them from 'Carrotty Mike' for a pin. He says I'm sure to get 'em. Ain't you glad?"

"Glad! I could have cried, and I believe his mother did cry. But that blamed little cub said he wouldn't be a tenderfoot, and he would have warts."

I read the riot act to him and went away for a month's trip, and when I came back he was as proud as Punch. His hands had grown a crop of warts that disconcerted anything I ever saw in that line. I hunted up 'Carrotty Mike,' and, would you believe it, there wasn't a wart on his hands! He had transferred them all to my boy."

CULLINGS FROM FICTION.
The man who knows a woman knows the world.—"A Summer Hymnal."

The people who help us most are those who make light of our achievements and have faith in our possibilities.—"Sir Christopher."

For things never come quite right in this world. The threads seem to slip out of our hands as we are going to tie the knot.—"Sister Teresa."

There's nothing like marrying a man if you want to know him better, only it limits your acquaintance with other people afterward, you know.—"A Little Gray Sheep."

But if you are looking for a wife, Carus, choose ye the woman ye would like to keep ye company through a month's rainy weather in the Isle of Mull.—"Chanderella."

What is the good of it? What will it bring her? No woman yet has possessed a wonderful head who did not pay for it at some time with her heart.—"A Woman Alone."

As a rule, the men whom men draw and the women whom women delect are nearer the truth, for it is a blessed law of nature that men and women shall view one another through the eyes of the imagination.

The Proofreader.
An anonymous writer in the American Printer of New York says:—"The ideal proofreader for a small printshop ought to be an accomplished printer, a sensible person, a person understanding the scope and limitations of the English language, one comprehending the true office of punctuation one with a keen and true appreciation of literature, a storehouse of exact knowledge, a perfect grammarian, a perfect speller and with a fund of humor sufficient to enable him to do his whole duty along these various lines without making for an early grave. If he does not really know everything, he ought assuredly to be able to scent out an error and to know how to get at a truth. If he reads the proofs for a weekly newspaper, he ought to know all about local affairs and all about the town or city in order to prevent the reported marriage of the girl who merely acted as bridesmaid and untangle the mixed topography of the reporters' articles."

Henry Ward Beecher's Wit.
On one occasion Mr. Beecher was in the midst of an impassioned speech some one attempted to interrupt him by suddenly crowing like a cock. The orator, however, was equal to the occasion. He stopped, listened till the crowing ceased, and then, with a look of surprise, pulled out his watch. "Morning already!" he said. "My watch is only at 10. But there can be no mistake about it. The instincts of the lower animals are infallible."

There was a roar of laughter. The "lower animals" in the gallery collapsed, and Mr. Beecher was able to resume as if nothing had occurred.

Don't Drink During Meals.
Be careful to limit the amount of water and fluids which you take during meals, since large quantities of these, especially ice water, hinder digestion. Not more than one glass of water should be taken during each meal. In order to quench the thirst which is so apt to clamor for water at meals an eminent authority suggests taking a glass of hot water fifteen or thirty minutes before meals. This acts especially well in the morning, as it cleanses the stomach.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A good friend is one's nearest relation. One's greatest relation is not always a good friend.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

It sharpens the appetite and you enjoy your food; you get color, and old time strength comes back. That's because Ferrozone aids digestion, makes red blood. Ferrozone is strength for the nerves and vigor for the brain. Be sure of the name, Ferrozone. Sold by McCall & Co.
