The examinations at the Convent of Our Lady of Lake Huron, prior to the mid-summer vacation, were held last week and showed very satisfactory results for the term. The proceedings on the closing day, Thursday, were of special interest. The examination of Miss Nellie Murphy, the examination of Miss Nellie Murphy, the graduating pupil, formed the principal feature. Her answers to test questions in logic, rhetoric, mythology, history (ancient and modern), astronomy, natural philosophy, and other branches, showed a remarkable proficiency and testified to the thoroughness of the course of studies pursued at the convent. All the valuables have been sent to the Rue de Bac, and there is not a clean shirt in the place. Pere Forbes is not the only Jesuit in the Rue de Sevres. He is part owner of the college, and naturally feels himself personcollege, and naturally teels nimself personally outraged by the decrees. He hopes Mr. Gladstone will take his case up. About thirty Jesuits are in the college and in the Rue la Fayette, most of the latter being Alsatians ministering to the spiritual wants of about one hundred thousand German-speaking men and women of the lowest class. The property purchased lately by the Jesuits in Jersey is intended to be used as a theological college, not as a school.

A solemn farewell service was celebrated in the Jesuit chapel of the monks at the convents in the Rue de Sevres this after-noon. The air was fragrant with floral offerings. A large number of wreaths were heaped upon the stones commemorating the death of the Jesuits killed during the commune. Most of the monks at the convents of the Dominicans, Franciscans Warists and Oratorians have left already. Several foreign Jesuits attached to the two schools lately conducted in the Rue de schools lately conducted in the Rue de Madrid are said to have taken private rooms in a house in the Quarter de L'Europe, and will appeal to the ambassador if molested. I have reasons to believe they will be let alone. The Government will be legally entitled to execute the decrees at dawn to-morrow.

Paris, July 1.—Up to the present time 49 magistrates have resigned rather than execute the religious decrees. The proprietor of a house occupied by Jesuits in Rue de Sevres has made preliminary ap-plication to the President of the Tribunal of the Seine asking that the house may be restored to the possession of its owner.

London, July 3.—In the French Chamber of Deputies to-day there was a heated discussion on the expulsion of the Jesuits. Moneignor Freppel asked the Government why violence had been used in the execution of the decrees, and why they were executed without legal warrant. He asked if the Minister of War had authorized the army to assist, and protested against acts army to assist, and protested against acts of barbarity unworthy of the nation. In the hall-ways the visitors were entirely fascinated with the grand exhibition of needle work, painting, &c.

It would occupy too much of your space to give a minute detail of everything that was exhibited in these hall-tways; but before closing, I would say to parents who wish to give their daughters a good Christian education that they should a vail themselves of the great advantages which are derived from this institution; if they wish to have their daughters thoroughly qualified to fulfil their duties in whatever station Divine Providence may be pleased to place them, they should at the opening of the scholastic year which are derived from the care of those good nuns of the Ursuline Convent at Chatham.

AMICUS.

THE JESUITS. Chartreux and suits have already arranged to establish houses and schools in Madrid. The Primate Cardinal Archishop of Toledo publishes in most of the Catholic papers an exhertation to found relief committees in aid of the orders expelled from France. The greatest sympathy is displayed by the aristocracy, middle classes and gentler sex, who are eagerly responding to this call, except in the frontier provinces and the Pyrenees. El Imperial, as chief organ of the Radicals, and El Glabor, organ of Castelar, advise the French Republicans to imitate the toleration and prudence of the American Republic. The houses and large buildings are, in many towns, being placed at the disposal of the Jesuits and monks. There already exist in Spain Jesuit colleges which are very prosperous. Many monks and Jesuits have arrived in Madrid from Pau to settle in their Madrid from Pau to settle in their founder's monastery at Loyola."

Fresh resignations of magis-trates, who decline to execute the decrees, are received daily. are received daily.

A Paris despatch says, "It now begins to be apparent that the courts generally throughtout the country will hold that the religious congregations, as citizens of France, had the same right to retain property which they bought and paid for citizens have and Government in expelling them without cause, exceeded its constitutional authority. It is further believed that as a result of the suits which are being brought in Paris and in the provinces, the Govern-ment will be compelled both by law and public opinion to restore the property and guarantee the religious societies against further molestation." Paris, July 4.—Several disturbances in connection with the expulsion of the Jesuits is reported from the provinces. The most serious occurred at Havre, where soldiers charged the crowd.

THE PICNIC AT MOUNT HOPE.

On Dominion Day was held a grand pieric on the grounds of the Mount Hope Orphan Asylum, the object of which was to assist in the maintenance of the large number of persons, both young and old, depending for sustenance on that admirable institution. Had it not been for the heavy showers of rain in the afternoon, we would have been able to claim this as the most successful picnic ever held at the asylum. Under the circumstances, the results were very satisfactory, and the sum of $467.35 is the results of the day's labors. For some time the good sisters had been making preparations for the picnic, and a very large amount of re-freshments were laid out in profusion for the accommodation of those who felt a desire to partake of them. Rev. Father Tiernan had the management of the affairs, and to his untiring exertions were in a large measure due the eminent success which attended it. The orphans appeared on ground during the day, and their happy faces, and neat and tidy appearance fully demonstrated the fact that they had a comfortable home. The band of the 26th Battalion supplied the music, and we might simply add that Mr. St. John Hyttenrauch has reason to feel proud of this organization, which has grown up under his careful tuition to its present standard of excellence. Too much praise cannot be given the number of ladies and gentlemen who kindly assisted at the tables during the day, and remained faith fully at their posts—even the rain could not drive them off. The following are the names of the committee. Rev. Father Tiernan, Mesdames F. Harper, J. P. O'Byrne, Reynolds, O'Brien, Misses A. Dewan, Hogan and Egan, Messrs. D. Mc-Carty, J. P. O'Byrne, M.
