

The Literary Revolution.

What is it? It is a method of placing literature of the best class only, within reach of every one who is willing to pay for it. Books are reduced in price to half a fraction of their ordinary price. They are supplied to the best book stores of the country. Bookkeepers close also their eyes to the fact that a large number of people are unable to afford the ordinary price of books. Hence, the people are enabled to read the best literature. The literary revolution is now taking place in the United States, and it is spreading to this country. Our industry is now directed for the production of more books, and of a higher quality than ever before.
