

CHAPPED HANDS & COLD SORES

One thorough application of Zam-Buk at night will bring ease by morning. Zam-Buk stops the smarting, heals the cracks, and makes the hands smooth.

PROOF—Miss Hattie Bertrand, Galesburg, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with chapped hands and arms and nothing ever seemed to heal them thoroughly until we found Zam-Buk. It has cured them. My father has also used it for several skin troubles and injuries, and thinks there is nothing like Zam-Buk.

Mothers should see that their children use Zam-Buk daily, as there is nothing like prevent-on. A little Zam-Buk lightly smeared over the hands and wrists, after washing, will prevent chaps and cold sores.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for skin diseases, eczema, itch, ringworm, blood-poisoning, piles, and for cuts, burns and lacerations. 50¢ box at all druggists, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price list, because harmful substitutes and imitations.

MORMONS IN CANADA.

They Will Erect a Temple at Cardston, Alberta.

An unusual degree of interest is just now centered around the colony of Mormons residing in Alberta, over the surprising announcement, by President Joseph Smith, at the recent semi-annual conference at Salt Lake City, that the church would shortly commence the erection of a great temple in one of the settlements in the Canadian colony. President Smith stated in making the announcement to the conference that the assembled priesthood of the church had given a hearty and unanimous endorsement to the plan, in view of the rapidly increasing strength of the Canadian colony and the freedom and protection afforded them by the Government of the Dominion.

The announcement has startled all western Canada, especially those who have watched the colony since its inception twenty years ago. There are now about 10,000 Latter Day Saints in Alberta, and they have built some of the finest towns in the province. They are enterprising and industrious, and respect the laws of the Dominion and honor the flag of the Empire with as much zeal as do their "gentile" neighbors. The Government, apparently in respect to the colony, has a Mormon to the Provincial Assembly, Martin Woolf, of Cardston, being the representative.

Postulated by the free institutions of Britain, Mormonism has gained a firm footing on Canadian soil. United efforts have been made by various religious and women's organizations repeatedly to destroy the colony root and branch, asking that they be deported as undesirable. But thus far their energies have been expended in vain. The Government, apparently, sees no reason why the Mormons should not dwell in Canada so long as they observe the laws, especially in respect to plural marriage. The opponents of these people in Canada allege that polygamy is practiced, but they cannot prove it. Therefore, their hands are tied, and the colony is growing stronger and stronger as the years pass.

This latest project, however, has created great excitement. It is tantamount to the fact that the Mormons are in Canada to stay, for the proposed temple will be a massive structure constructed with a view to provide for the generations yet unborn. The estimated cost is $1,500,000 and all the magnificent interior embellishment and fixtures, characteristic of the temples in Utah will be placed in the edifice in the Dominion. The rites and ordinances, which can be performed only in the temples, will be fully provided for and in every respect the sacred building will be constructed as furnished after the revealed plan.

It is a marvel how these people have flourished on the plains of western Canada. Charles Ora Card from Utah—their purpose was to find a haven from the polygamy war then at its height in that state—they presented their lonely and unknown trek northward, similar to the gigantic migration of the Mormons from the east under Brigham Young. Crossing the international boundary line, they found a home on the grassy, open prairies that swept from the base of the Rockies far into the unknown horizon to the east. Alberta then was one vast stretch of inhospitable wilderness—the home of the trapper and isolated rancher. But with innate perseverance and industry the Mormons converted the broad, rolling plains into golden fields of grain, dotted here and there with prosperous towns and villages. This was really the first demonstration of the fertility and possibilities of the vast great west; and the same time a constant stream of immigration has poured into the land of farms, the future home of contented millions.

Two years ago the Mormons built a college in Raymond. This was viewed with anxiety by the ministerial associations, and strong resolutions were passed and strong words were said against this act. The people were unmoved, and nothing came of it save a great deal of discussion in the press and pulpit. But now that this latest and most gigantic enterprise is announced, the staggered public will undoubtedly be aroused as a unit. Just what tactics will be pursued is not known, but it is likely that an emphatic protest will go out from all over the country, forcing the Government to action.

B.-P. STORIES.

The Chief Scout Has Been a Merry Soul in His Time.

General Sir Robert Baden-Powell is in many ways a most remarkable man. His memorable defence of Mafeking is well known in Britain's annals; and had he not been destined for an army career he might have made his mark on the stage, for he is an accomplished actor. He could have shone professionally as an artist also, for his drawings and his mastery of color management evince genius; while he is quite accomplished in certain walks of science, being almost as much an authority on aerial machinery as his brother, the military aeronaut.

Moreover, "B.-P." is ambidextrous, writing or drawing with equal facility with either hand. And the Chief Scout has this conspicuous carelessness for convention that bespeaks the man of affairs who "gets there" always.

When, in his younger days, he was Military Secretary at Malta, his "hippancy" was now and then more than a trifle trying to his serious chief.

At a swell Government House function "B.-P." was depicted by his superior to ask a young lady to kindly repeat a skirt dance which had greatly pleased the company present.

The fair artist, who—after the manner of some of her kind—was somewhat affected, protested that she positively couldn't, and that if she did she would be completely "blown."

"B.-P." returned to the Governor looking rather crestfallen and hesitant, as if there was something he would rather not say.

"Well?" questioned the great man. "She won't," replied the messenger. "Why?" demanded the Governor. "Don't know," "B.-P." except that she said she'd be blown if she did!"

An old soldier who was in Malta at the time Baden-Powell was there as a major, has been telling some good stories about him.

"When 'B.-P.' was side-de-camp to the Governor at Malta in 1884," he said, "he was the life and soul of everything connected with keeping Tommy Atkins contented with his lot. He did more to keep the soldiers of the Garrison together than anybody else. He not only started a soldier's club, but one night each week he had a concert for the men.

"On one particular evening I attended with some friends, and we noticed that Major Baden-Powell was down on the program. To our astonishment, when his turn arrived a Tommy Atkins came upon the stage, and in a little speech regretted that Major Baden-Powell couldn't appear, and that the latter had begged him to take his place, whereupon he proceeded to deliver a song caricaturing a foppish officer inspecting the guard. The house went into roars of laughter, and it was not until the song was half-way finished that the audience awoke to the realization that the soldier on the platform was really 'B.-P.' himself."

New Coin For England.

One of the direct results of the Insurance Act is the suggestion, welcomed heartily by large employers of labor, that an eight penny (8-cent) piece be struck by the Mint as a solution of the copper famine caused by the act.

Take, for instance, the weekly wage ($7.50) which is a good average wage for the British workman. He formerly received a gold sovereign and a gold half sovereign. Now he gets 29s. and 8d. This has caused a great increase in the demand for copper, and during the Christmas trade when thousands of small articles were purchased, the trouble had become more acute.

One objection raised is that the suggested new coin will be very similar in size to the sixpence and will lead to confusion and mistakes, but the Mint officials advocate the issue of a coin with a lower percentage of silver than the ordinary silver coin—a piece not too closely resembling the shilling and the sixpence. The question will be raised in Parliament shortly.

As the Maid Saw It.

In her book, "Thirteen Years of a Busy Life," Mrs. Alec Tweedie tells this story on herself.

Before she started on a journey from New York to Mexico, she packed away her jewelry, including her rings and watch chain. Her maid was sitting opposite her in the train, and suddenly she noticed they were missing.

"Oh," she exclaimed in a sudden panic, "where are your rings?"

"I put them away," Mrs. Tweedie replied. I never travel off the beaten track wearing jewelry of any kind."

"Oh, dear, what a pity!" commented the maid. "The made you look such a lady!"

The English of England.

The London Chronicle gives these eccentric pronunciations of a few of the curious place names that dot the map of England: Rhubadabton is Ribson, Woodmancoote is Uddenmuckat, Sawbridgeworth is Sapses, Churchdown is Chosen, Sandisore is Benjiker, Little Urswick is Lileok, Aspatia is Spethy, St. Osith is Toosy, Chaddenwyche is Charnage, Hapshburgh is Hazeboro, Salt Fleetly is Sollaby, Almondsbury is Amesbury, Congresbury is Coomsbury.

London's "Uncovered" Land.

"Uncovered land" in London at present is estimated at 12,600 acres, compared with 15,000 acres in 1296, according to an answer given at a recent meeting of the London County Council to a question as to the amount of land vacant for building purposes.
