THE CONVENTION.

There is every indication of a very bright future ahead for the Liberal-Conservatives of West Kent. The big convention on Saturday performed the mission which was expected of it, and the result is that the work of the association has, once more, been started off on a firm and re-organized basis of unity, wisdom and power.

The association is first of all to be congratulated upon the excellent judgment displayed in the selection of its officers. Much depends upon the character and ability of the leaders in the work of any party, and in this particular the West Kent Conservatives will not be found wanting during the ensuing year. Mr. J. M. Pike, the new President, is a man well known throughout the county for his sterling principles and scholastic knowledge on matters both political and professional. He has done yeoman service in past elections and has at all times been esteemed by his co-workers and respected by his fellow men. The duties of this office, therefore, could not be placed in the hands of a more deserving man. Mr. S. B. Arnold, upon whom, as Secretary, so much important work has fallen in the past, was rewarded for his excellent services by being re-elected to that position. No other man was considered for a moment, which was indeed wise in the interests of the Conservative cause. The other officers were alike, able and representative men.

The association is also to be congratulated upon the choice of the candidates. Both are young men, and energetic workers, and with them as representatives and advocates of the principles of the party in Kent, the Conservatives of this county should be able to make a most excellent showing. This was undoubtedly the feeling of the meeting on Saturday.

It was a pleasure to his friends to note the straightforward and manly way in which Mr. Clements went before the convention. He did not seek the nomination, and stated this plainly to the assembled delegates. When it was unanimously tendered to him, he expressed himself as willing to fight the battle of the farmers of Kent, but he would not be bound by strict party ties. He would feel free to support any measure—no matter whether it be advocated by Liberals or Conservatives—which he considered to be in the best interests of the people in all walks of life. Needless to say this concession was granted him. The people of both parties in this riding recognize in Mr. Clements, a man who has their best interests at heart. He is above all things industrious, and his work has been crowned with a goodly share of success. The people are satisfied with such representation, and there is no reason to doubt that so long as he sustains this excellent reputation for honorable deportment, he will see many years of service in the Dominion Parliament as the representative of the people of West Kent.

Mr. Sulman, the nominee for the Legislature, is a man who needs no introduction to the people of this county. In previous elections his valued services have always been in evidence, in connection with the work of the Conservative party. He has exceptional advantages in matters of education and business ability. He is esteemed and respected by men of both political parties, popular with all, and a born hustler. His announcement that he will go in to win was given in no uncertain tone, and to those who know his unflinching reputation for accomplishing whatever he undertakes, this means much. The confident remark of one of the delegates five minutes after the meeting was, "Till bet Sully's working already." This was the feeling of everyone at the convention, when Mr. Sulman was nominated, and it is the spirit which wins elections. The people of any party will work with more zeal and enthusiasm when they know that they are working for a man who is himself an untiring and industrious worker. Mr. Sulman is by no means a novice in public life. He served for many years on municipal bodies and has always left an enviable and unimpeachable record behind him. Apart from this he will represent a Government which has proven itself a source of strength to the people of this Province of Ontario.

There was only one lamentable incident to mar the proceedings of the day. It arose in reference to the candidature of Mr. T. A. Smith for the Provincial nomination. Mr. Smith, who is one of the strong men of the Conservative ranks, and who is esteemed and respected by the men of his party, was nominated against Mr. Sulman. When the ballot was declared and Mr. Sulman was announced the fortunate man, it was moved by the president that the nomination be made unanimous. This was carried by the delegates, from the rural districts, but four or five of Mr. Smith's supporters from the city refused to join in this resolution. Their action was undoubtedly due to over-enthusiasm for their man, and was excusable under the circumstances. It is hoped that these dissenting ones will see the wisdom of falling in with the majority, and cast in their lot with the man who was given such spontaneous support from such a large majority of the delegates. Mr. Smith himself has been an untiring worker in the Conservative ranks and is deserving of honor from the members of his party. It was felt, however, that Mr. Sulman was the man to carry the riding, and there is no doubt that Mr. Smith himself understands that after all this is the important consideration, and he will be game enough to accept the ruling of the majority. The applause he received showed that he has innumerable friends who appreciate the splendid work he has always accomplished.

Mr. Smith is at fault if he thinks that the nomination was turned on the petty, slanderous stories which apparently have been circulated concerning him. Anyone who knows "T. A." knows that they are without foundation, and if they were circulated, they have not in the least respect injured his reputation with the Conservative party. Those who know Mr. Smith will look for him among the most enthusiastic Conservative workers when the next Provincial election campaign rolls around.

Those who anticipated a storm at this convention were doomed to disappointment. The nearest approach to it was the repeated "storms" of applause which greeted every speaker. Mr. Pike conducted the business of the meeting in a fair and most impartial manner. The Conservatives are now out for honest and conscientious voting, and if this is properly carried out, there will be no fears for the results, no matter when the election may come.

STOMACH'S IMPORTANCE

How To Strengthen It So That It Will Act As It Should.

The stomach is the principal organ concerned in the digestion of food. If it is weak, inactive or out of order and unable to properly digest the food, the body will soon be in a state of semi-starvation.

Then, too, when the stomach is weak, the food is not properly digested and lies in it for hours, decomposing, fermenting and forming poisonous gases and ptomaines that are absorbed into the blood, poisoning the system and impoverishing the blood.

To enjoy good health, it is absolutely necessary that the stomach and digestive organs should be strong, and no other remedy equals Mi-o-na in strengthening and giving tone to the whole digestive system.

Believed from the use of Mi-o-na is permanent and lasting. Use Mi-o-na for a few days, and the digestion will be good, the appetite keen, and there will be no nausea or distress after eating, no sleeplessness, no nervousness, and the headache, backache, and disturbed heart action that are the direct result of a weakened stomach will soon be overcome.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents.

Clements and Sulman For West Kent

tive Club, while the men there were subscribing their 25 cents I went down for $5. The statement that I did not speak to him is also false. I went to him several times. Is the man in the audience who was with me when I went to Mr. Clancy?

E. J. MacIntyre (rising in the audience)—I am the man.

Mr. Smith—Did I speak to Mr. Clancy?

Mr. MacIntyre—You did.

Mr. Smith—Thank you.

Mr. Smith (continuing)—Some one said that I was a drinking man.

Now that also is false. I never wronged a human being in all my life, and I do not think it right for people to make these statements about me. Someone also said that I did not vote for Herb Clements.

I ask him now if I did not go to Fletcher to hold a meeting for him when I was a sick man, and disobeyed the orders of my physician in so doing.

Mr. Clements—That's right.

Mr. Smith—Yes. I got out of a sick bed to go to the polls and vote for Clements, and I went home afterwards and fainted on the floor.

Mr. Smith (continuing)—There is another, and if this story is true, I am not deserving of the name of a man. I should be in an insane asylum.

Someone said that I went to John McCoig and said that I wanted to see A. B. McCoig, because I had a scheme to beat Clements.

Here Geo. G. Martin rose in the audience, and when he was addressed from the chair he said that he wanted to corroborate Mr. Smith.

The chairman thought that Mr. Smith should be allowed to complete what he had to say, and Mr. Martin's time for speaking should come afterwards.

Mr. Martin—This is a put up job.

Mr. Smith—Surely when a man arises to corroborate me he should be allowed to speak. My honor is at stake.

Mr. Martin was allowed to speak, and he said that a man had come to him with the yarn that Mr. Smith spoke of, and he (Martin) said that if it was true, Mr. Smith must be a lunatic. He (Martin) was sure that Smith did not say it. The man then said to Martin, "Well, let us circulate it anyway."

Mr. Smith then concluded with the remark that he did not say half what he wanted to say.

It was, however, unnecessary for him to say more. There was no man in the audience who put any faith in the yarns that may have been circulated about Mr. Smith. He is looked upon as a man of honor in the party, as his excellent vote showed, and his support is appreciated and sought by any Conservative candidate, no matter who he is. It is safe to say that no one would accuse him of doing or saying anything which he did not believe to be in the best interests of the party to which he pins his faith.

The vote was then taken, Messrs. M. J. Wilson, Geo. S. Heyward, Neil Watson and Wm. Potter acting as scrutineers. The ballot showed 75 for Mr. Sulman and 48 for Mr. Smith.

President Pike in announcing the vote moved that he be made unanimous. This was done with the exception of four or five Smith supporters from the city who stood near the door, and who refused to fall in line with the other delegates at the convention. This was no doubt due to their heated enthusiasm for their candidate, and on this ground it was perhaps pardonable for the moment. With the exception of this half-dozen men, who will no doubt see their indiscretion to-day, the nomination was made unanimous and the general feeling was that a winner had been picked.

Mr. Sulman received the applause of the convention when he rose to extend his thanks for the spontaneous nomination.

"I thank you for the confidence you have placed in me," said he, "and in thanking you, I wish to say that there is only one way in which the election will be won, and that is by every Conservative in the riding doing his part. Do not hesitate to call on me for any work you wish done. From this out I will never cease to work. No road will be too long and no night too dark for me to go on in my power to win your fight."

"I am sorry that there are a few members dissatisfied with the proceeding of to-day. I hope they will have the good grace to abide by the decision of the majority, as I would have done if I had been defeated. I will not at this time discuss politics. The Whitney Government needs no word of praise from me. It is satisfying everyone, and even the strongest reformers eulogize Mr. Whitney, and well they may. I thank you all, and promise that I will see you all, many, many times before the election."

Mr. Pike then closed the convention with an enthusiastic speech, and the enthusiasm expressed by the newly elected President was felt by everyone in the house. "Herb" and "Sully" are recognized as the winning pair.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, Mr. Eaden, Premier Whitney, H. S. Clements, M. P., Mr. Sulman and President Pike.

LITERARY

Pictures made from postage stamps as described and illustrated in the November number of the Quiver, is a decidedly new pastime.

From Essex to Manitoba is a sketch of the work being done by the Church Army in assisting worthy laborers to emigrate to this country.

The Things of the Kingdom is from the pen of The Dean of Peterborough, who is one of the ablest writers of the day.

"The Woman of Babylon" is concluded in this number, and with December, which will be the beginning of another year for this popular Sunday magazine, a new serial story from the pen of Katharine Tynan will be commenced.

We are told in the editorial of the November number of Watson's magazine that the Hon. Thomas Watson has severed his connection with the magazine, but that the owners have formed a new company and will continue it along the same lines as formerly, but will show more tolerance for those who differ from them in politics.

This course will be one which should make the magazine much more popular, for although Mr. Watson is one of the strongest writers of the day, he does not appear to be broadminded. We wish the publishers of Watson's magazine success under the new management.

Besides two complete stories and the continuation of the three serial stories which have been running during 1906, the current number of The Girls' Own Paper contains articles on lace work, embroidery, nursing, voice production, in addition to the usual department devoted to art and music. There are also many short articles that will make interesting reading for girls.

The American edition of The Girls' Own Paper is published by Warwick Bros. and Butler, Toronto.

With three continued stories, several short stories that tell of trips, adventures, etc., and various articles describing places and things that are dear to a boy's heart, the current number of The Boys' Own Paper is as full of interest as ever. This would be a good month to subscribe, as another volume will be commenced in the next number, and The Boys' Own Paper ought to be in every house where there is a boy. Warwick Bros. and Butler, Toronto, publishers.

"Venice Bride of the Sea," with which the November number of "Everyday Housekeeping" opens, is a concise description of this romantic city, the numerous illustrations show many of its beauties. "The Return to Domesticity" is a timely article on the housework question, which is such a knotty problem for all housewives.

"Thanksgiving Old and New" not only describes an old time Thanksgiving, but gives menus for modern Thanksgiving dinners, ranging from one which should be elaborate enough to suit the most fastidious epicure, to a plain dinner than an intelligent child could prepare. The recipes for each dish are minutely given. "Sweet Sixteen" gives candy recipes that can be enjoyed by all either in the making or eating.

These are only a few of the many interesting articles of this bright practical home magazine, which is published by the Clark-Clark Publishing Co., of Boston, Mass.

Being an American publication, and November being the month when the Americans always hold their Thanksgiving, naturally What To Eat devotes many pages of the November number to Thanksgiving dainties and novel ways of serving. But even with Thanksgiving as the foremost thought the publishers do not lose sight of their chief aim, viz., advocating Pure Foods. The opening paper deals with the campaign in Chicago of the raids that have been made against short weight. In answers to correspondents there are a few reasonable suggestions for serving luncheons. Just one more note. They tell us that brown sugar is to take the place of white under the Pure Food rulings, and already the grocers are charging more for it than for white.

Published by The Pierce Publishing Company, Chicago.

"The Little Fifer" with which the November number of Little Folks opens, is a Thanksgiving story of the sort which will delight the older children. Princess Wisla's Necktie is a continued story which commences in this number. There are many little poems that are suitable for children of all ages.

Little Folks is published by The S. E. Cassino Co., Salem, Mass.

In the November Canadian Magazine, "In the Haunts of the Rail," by Bonnycaste Dale, is a study which will delight the students of nature. To photograph this bird and its nest must have been a work of patience as well as love, for there is nothing more shy than the rail in the whole bird world. "The Port of Western Canada," is the title of an illustrated sketch of Fort William, where much of the wheat pouring out of the West is transhipped to the coast.

"The Link of Montreal and Toronto" recalls the opening of the first railway between the two cities just fifty years ago. A full-page illustration shows a characteristic scene in the Toronto railway station of 1857. A Nova Scotia writer recalls the career of a rector, the reader will glean that the number is by no means weak in its appeal.

The frontispiece of the November number of the Canadian Pictorial is a beautiful woodland scene entitled "Canadian Woods After the First Snow."

The photographs of the late Archbishop Bond, and his successor to the Bishopric of Montreal, the Right Rev. Dr. James Carmichael, are excellent.

One of the most interesting places in New York to study human nature is at a counter in a photographer's shop where the customers come to get amateur photographs they have had developed and printed. The anxiety they display to get the products of their "shots" would seem to be out of all proportion to the results, when you catch a glimpse of them, and their disappointment if the prints are not ready as soon as they expected, as if some important business transaction had fallen through. And when they do get the prints their faces are even more interesting. The satisfaction of these amateur photographers over a set of fairly good pictures is absolutely idiotic, and their dismay at a lot of failures is tragic. The frankness of these exhibitions is not the least interesting phase of the whole thing.
