Scouring Weel.

Our ancestors scoured their wool in tubs, much as our wives and daugh-with the suds, in which one or two men with long poles stirred the wool until clean, when they lifted it upon a trav-the water. The same principle is applied in the automatic scouring now in

M. Verduret had nothing more to do at Vesinet. Therefore, without taking leave of the banker, he quietly left the room and, taking his cab, ordered the driver to return to Paris and drive to the Hotel du Louvre as rapidly as possible. His mind was filled with anxiety. He knew that Raoul would give him no more trouble. The young rogue was probably taking his passage for some foreign land at that very moment. But Clameran should not escape the punishment he deserved. But how was it possible to inflict this punishment without compromising Mme. Fauvel? M. Verduret thought over the various cases similar to this, but not one among his repertory of expedients could be applied to the present circumstances. After long thought he decid-ed that an accusation of poisoning must come from Oloron. "I will go there and work upon public opinion, so that to satisfy the townspeople the au-thorities would order an inquest in Gaston's case. But this required time, and Clameran, being warned, would

MILLINERY NOTES.

Camellias are quite the smartest milfinery flower. There is something about its stiff waxen petals and important exterior which adapts itself particularly well to millinery purposes, and the foliage, too, is particularly effective against fur or lace. To get the very number of effect in hats the skins of cats and rabbits are being dyed all the hues of the rainbow, and flowers in velvet are placed on them of a contrasting or harmonizing shade.

As for the vogue of beaver, it still is on the increase, and no smooth felt can hope to be fashionable by its side.

The fluffy white beaver is the most fashionable material for bats, and this is often sewed with little ermine tails and trimmed with white ostrich tips. Black silk beavers are also modish, and they are trimmed with gold or silver braid and white or shaded pink

JUDIC CHOLLET.

One of Sale's Jokes,

Shortly after Mr. Burnand succeeded to the editorial chair of Punch, Sala wrote a panody of the "Notes" which he was himself contributing to The Illustrated London News. It was attributed to the editor, and friends who knew Sala's short temper were anxious, not, as it soon seemed, without reason. At the Beefsteak Club Sala politely asked for the author's name.

"I cannot give it," replied the editor, "without his permission."
"It is a personal attack on me;" said Sala, apparently waxing wroth.

Peacemaking friends suggested that

"I join issue," replied Sala. "Bur nand ought to have rejected it."

So the debate went on, growing hotter and hotter. When Sala declared that when he was younger he would have pulled the nose of anyone who attacked him, and the editor replied that if Sala wished to carry out his threat he had the matter in his own hards it seemed the

"I can!" exclaimed George, rising up excitedly, "and will." Everyone jumped to his feet. It seemed as though he were going to assault me there and then! What was their surprise at seeing George, first with one hand, then with the other, wring his own nose, and, murmuring humbly, "I apologize," drop down abashed into his seat.—Records and Reminiscences of Sir F. Whole waists of chiffon trimmed with lace are very dressy, but, alas, very perishable. The all over lace waist trimmed with taffeta bands seems to be the most practical to wear under a coat, and it can be softened around the neck by the addition of a

Owing to the low dressing of the hair talle bows are now word in front un-der the chin instead of at the back of

These are the days of nervous wrecks. You meet people every day who are nervous, irritable, low spirited and generally run down. They are the results, you say, of this strenuous business age is only an indirect cause. The real and direct cause is a neglected stomach.

No man or woman with a good stomach ever became a nervous wreck. No man or woman need have a bad stomach if he or she takes the necessary precautions. It is when the stemach is overworked the trouble begins. If it gets the rest it needs it will right itself. If it idoes not get the rest it needs it will go from bad to worse.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets give the stomach the rest it requires. They digest the food while the stomach rests. They cure all stomach ills and all ills resulting from bad stomachs. M. Mongeot, of Masson, Que, says:

"I suffered from Dyspepsia and was terribly troubled with nervousness and low spirits. An advertisement led me to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They helped me from the first and I was soon completely cured. I recommended Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to my friends and they have all been benefited by them."
