PEACE THEIR AIM SAYS W. J. BRYAN

SECRETARY OF STATE DELIVERS THREE ADDRESSES ON SUB- JECT IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Mar. 31.—Secretary of State William J. Bryan told three Chicago audiences yesterday that his efforts at Washington would be centered on keeping the United States at peace with all the world. He said that also would be the policy of the Wilson administration.

The secretary spent what he termed a "social" day in the city. He avoided political conferences of all kinds and made it plain that he was adhering to his determination to use both ears and say as little as possible.

He lunched with the Southern Club at noon and made a short talk; participated in the exhibit of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute at 2:30; addressed members of the Press Club of Chicago shortly afterwards, and at night attended a banquet at the Union League Club, where he also spoke. He departed for Washington on a late train.

At the Union League Club.

That the world in general and the United States as a leader is just entering into an era of real progress ready to overturn policies and fictions of centuries, was the gist of Secretary Bryan's speech at the Union League Club.

Moral awakening, governmental awakening, and quickening of public sentiment are taking place in every country in the world, according to the secretary, who took examples for this country to prove his points.

That the United States is only now ready to accept and appreciate reforms which he has been advocating for years, or which have been advocated by others, was one of his declarations.

"Had I been elected on one of the many occasions I sought the high office of president," he said, "I doubt if I should have been able to accomplish the things that I stood for as will Mr. Wilson be able to accomplish the reforms he stands for. The people now have reached an era of progress that was long in coming. But it is here now, not only in this country, but throughout the world."

Sees Many Advances.

Advance in education, awakening of the moral spirit, and a change in public aspect of governmental affairs are the marks of progress pointed out by the secretary of state.

"Illinois will have the record of being the last state to see a senatorial deadlock," he said. "The constitutional amendment is certain of passage, and such deadlocks as you now have will soon be a thing of the past."

"You also have seen your last national convention. Before another president is elected enough states will have adopted the presidential primaries to make the choice of a party the choice of the people and not of a set of men.

"This popular election of senators will raise the standard of our greatest body. It has been a long and hard fight of more than twenty years, but its final success means that whenever the people desire a thing they are going to rule."

"Throughout the world the sentiment of the present day is towards fairness for all people, and not for the special interests of a few. That is the trend of the time. It is the reign of progress and is the real sign of the present day."

Mr. Bryan was introduced by William McSurely, the newly elected president of the Union League Club, who took office last night along with the rest of the incoming administration.

Praises Tuberculosis Institute.

He praised the efforts of the Tuberculosis Institute to eradicate the white plague, predicted that the nation as well as the states would soon aid in this crusade and personally pledged himself to do everything in his power to assist in wiping out tuberculosis and like diseases.

He was heartily applauded when he said that the preservation of human life is of far more importance than the conservation of natural resources, the exhaustion of which, he said, is now causing so much alarm. Mayor Harrison was to have introduced Mr. Bryan at the tuberculosis exhibit but failed to put in an appearance.

At the Press Club he was presented by J. U. Higginbotham, who was a law student with Mr. Bryan. The secretary invited the newspaper men to criticize his official conduct and said if he found their criticism well founded he would do his utmost to correct the mistakes complained of.

Wants Errors Pointed Out.

"I will be grateful to you for calling my attention to any errors I may make," he said, "no matter what your motive, for sometimes even our enemies help us. In this respect I believe I can speak for my colleagues as well as myself."

"I have been with the president and his cabinet long enough to know that their sole desire is to help the country and that they will welcome suggestions. But of one thing I want to caution you. Say anything you want about me and my department, but be very careful what you say regarding questions affecting other countries."

"As secretary of state I come in contact with the people of other lands, and I am sure that I represent the majority of our people, the president and his advisers when I assure the people of other countries that we are at peace with all the world and desire to deal justly with them. It is our business to set an example; it is our business to show how high an ideal we have, just as it is the business of newspapers to show how high an ideal journalists may have."

Delayed by Storm.

Mr. Bryan arrived in the morning from his home in Lincoln. He passed through the Nebraska storm area and as a result his train was more than four hours late in reaching here. He expressed his sorrow at the extent of the storm damage and the loss of life, and also commended feelingly on the suffering caused by the Ohio and Indiana floods.

Mr. Bryan said he watched the approach of the Nebraska tornado from the porch of his home at Fairview.

"There seemed to be two great menacing clouds," he said, "sort of double twisters, and I was fascinated by them. They were high in the air and passed over Lincoln without doing any damage."

"As I rode on the train through the country between Lincoln and Omaha I was surprised to find that practically no damage had been done in the open country. It appeared as if the Tornado picked out the Omaha district, swept down on it, and then started on its way of further destruction."

At the station the secretary was met by Richard C. Hall, A. F. Allen, and Percy C. Eckhart of the Union League club, and Guy M. Armstrong and George Drewry of the Southern Club. At the Press Club he was joined by Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama and Congressman Martin B. Madden of Chicago.

POPE GRANTS AN AUDIENCE

Physicians Permit New Nuncio to Spain To See Pontiff.

Rome, Mar. 31.—Prof. Marchisavia and the other physicians in attendance on the Pope made an exception today and allowed him to grant a special audience to the new nuncio to Spain, Mgr. Ragonesi, who is on his way to Madrid to succeed Mgr. Vico, who has been made a Cardinal.

Despite the improvement in the pontiff's condition his physicians have forbidden him to say mass as this would necessitate fasting, which is impossible in his weakened condition.

The Pope will not hold any further audiences until April 4. His depression has increased since he learned of the death of Cardinal Respigni last Saturday.
