There are many

Merchants, manufacturers and selling agents reading The Union Advocate regularly who ought to be general advertisers. They would be if they only knew the selling force there is in reaching the consumer by advertising. They would like to try it, perhaps, if they knew how to make it succeed, or had complete confidence in some one to look after their advertising, who would relieve them of the details. We wish to tell these people that The Union Advocate with its guaranteed circulation for 1903 of 1857 and for the first six months of 1904 a weekly average of 1931, covers the whole northern part of New Brunswick, reaching all the best people, consequently the best buyers-that it is sufficient to use this one medium for a starter. What we say seems to be interested advice. Nevertheless we have kept up this line of argument, believing that sooner or later the man who is interested will sarely find out the truth of our statements through the success of his friends or competitors who are using our
