FIVE O'CLOCK TEA LADY CREWEERNE TO MRS. SEATON. PROBE LADY CREWKERNER TO MER. HATON.]

(From The Queen.)

QUEEN STREET, Mayfair.

Of course, my dear Maud, you will not expect that I should write about anything has the "crais." That is, I believe, the correct word for the stake of fras, flarry and excitement into which we have been plunged by Mr. Gladetone's unexpected manifesto, lance so inconsiderately into the midds of the curiosity and the gossife about the Imperial Royal wadding, and interly depriving that event of fair play as the event of the day. One always thinks one will remember one particular day in one's life, either for public or far private reasons, and then one Siways for gate it; set I really do believe I never a hall when thinks one will reasonable one particular day in one's life, either for public or for private reasons, and then one il way forget it; but I really do believe I mere shell forget last Saturday and Sunday. Sir Charles friends were rushing in and out all the believe in the same and more than the same in the same and more than the same in the same and more than the same in the same and the same in the same and more than the same in the same and more than the same in the same and the same in the same and th told you have only son had as at the st.

The hard latter the derived a street of the st.

Iournalism. "Depend on it," and pour lady Lomax, as she walked about the room as in resiliers agony, "one thing awful has happened—a surprise and massacre of our troops, or consching terrible of that kind; no one would be no cruel as to appead such an alarm, among handred of families, just out of supte to the Prime Minister! And to think that we cannot possibly by the cut of surpress until to "What could one say to this? Nothing, you know. She wouldn't say to dinner; and she led it us feeling quite low at the new aspect in which these thoughtless speculations upon these stoughtless appeal the surprise of the Ministry presented them selves. Mr. Forster's speech has of ourse disrupted these groundless but reasonable tears; still, it is said to think how men mainty a number of impoent people, whose relatives are serving shelf country under the surpress.

Though there is no absolutely bed news of a kind to warrant a panic concerning "this unhappy war"—as we are all formally entitled to call it new—there are some more is allowed to the surprise of the surprise of sweet the surgices when is the correspondent of these people. It is good thing to know matter in hand, and that the wenne when hands are for a angarwade peril will not be bet to sucreitor as a counter-tribual for the people. The people is a surgice of the people is a surgice of the people in the people in the people is a surgice of the people in the people in the people is a surgice of the people in the people is a surgice of the people in the people is a surgice of the people in the people is a surgice of the people in the people is a surgice of the peop

